Hard to Be Brief.
The Mellons Do Business.
Yes, All Will Come Back.
Earthquake, Down Below.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN DEALING with news, wisdom would write few lines about many things, not many words and lines about few things.

But that is difficult. A few possess brevity. Mr. Will Rogers is one. Montesquieu, as illustrated in his "Spirit of Laws," was another. Cromwell, in his letters, a third.

Perfect condensation in Genesis described the creation of the world in fewer words than it takes a reporter to tell about the funeral of a woman too fat to be carried downstairs, her coffin lowered out of the window.

CHARLES E. DUBOIS, jeweler of Tuckahoe, New York, not able to explain the disappearance of his wife, and asked if he had killed her, was embarrassed. Yesterday he killed himself.

Suicide is a confession.

MR. MELLON'S company sends a million dollars worth of aluminum wire to Russia in trade for gasoline. Perhaps he will use the gasoline to make more aluminum or carry around what he makes. Russians are hard pressed for food, and farmers would be glad to trade wheat, potatoes, to get gasoline for their cars. But they are not ORGANIZED.

The wise Mellon brothers can always do business somehow.

They suggest the man who raised rats and cats. He fed the rats to the cats, skinned the cats, sold the fur and fed the skinned cats' carcases to the rats. He always sold furs, never had to buy anything.

AT THE REQUEST of Cyrus H. K. Curtis—you will be glad to know that his health is good—Mr. Knickerbocker will answer the question: "Can Europe Come Back?"

That question was asked when Attila came marching from the East, and when the Black Death killed one-quarter of all the people in Europe; also when, after Waterloo, England was called bankrupt, and the Continent worse than bankrupt.

The answer always has been, and the answer is now: "Yes, Europe will come back." And in case it interests you, the United States will also come back, and you will ask yourself, with bitterness:

"Why did I buy nothing when prices were low?"

GERMANY, by the way, is coming back without waiting for others. Three hundred thousand young fighting Germans, well trained by the "Steel Helmets," are taken over by the German government in such a way as to evade the Versailles treaty.

AND GERMANS are laying the keel of a third "pocket size battleship," a kind that the Versailles treaty permits, and, in spite of its smallness, more efficient than the bigger, more expensive cruisers built by England and the United States. It will outshoot and outrun them.

VIOLENT EARTHQUAKE shocks in New Zealand, just under your feet, "minor shocks continuing regularly every few minutes," make us realize how grateful we should be for earth's average stability.

Lands, islands, rise and fall even continents slip around on the hard core of the earth like non-floating soap on the floor of a bathtub. The whole thing is wonderfully managed.

A GENTLEMAN in Cleveland advertised a lecture "for women only" on "Married Love." The police forbade the lecture.

Five hundred angry ladies almost tore down the auditorium, and proved their business capacity by getting in "refunds for tickets" $62 more than they had paid.

Disappointed ladies may go to Reno and hear lawyers deliver lectures on "married love," free and enlightening.

WALL STREET is blossoming out in all sorts of virtues. The Stock Exchange is particular about this and about that, even about short sellings to knock down prices.

Now the committee on business tells brokers they must not talk about politics, or send to customers anything that might seem like propaganda for either important political party.

THE UNITED STATES has a gigantic supply of rubber on hand; Mr. Litchfield, Mr. Firestone and other tire makers have not tried to resist the temptation to buy rubber at four cents a pound, and lower. You are told that "synthetic rubber," made scientifically, without help from the rubber tree, "amounts to little or nothing." That will sound strange a few years hence, when science will make all of our rubber sythetically, the rubber trees growing in peace, untapped.

GOOD REPUBLICANS, including Mr R. W. Robey, suggest that alleged Democratic plans to help the farmer would "mean a paternalistic attitude toward agriculture and a burden on the Treasury." Another good Republican reveals the fact that the Treasury recently handed to Mr Dawes' bank in Chicago NINETY MILLION DOLLARS to help it out of trouble.

Ten dollars handed to a farmer is "paternalism." Ninety million dollars handed to one bank is "statesmanship."

PRICE OF MILK TO GO UP

A raise of one cent per quart for milk delivered to the consumer has been put into effect by the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Association, to be in effect for the last half of September. Farmers and distributors divide the increase. The agreement was reached a week ago at a meeting between delegates of the Dairymen's Co-operative Sales Association and representatives of the milk companies of the city.

The increase is the result of demands made by the farmers for higher price for their milk. The farmers at first had demanded $2 a hundredweight for Class A milk and $1.50 a hundredweight for Class B milk. The distributors offered $1.90 for the first and $1.35 for the second grade, but an agreement was reached setting the price at $1.95 for Class A and $1.44 for Class B.

Last month the farmer was receiving $1.70 a hundredweight for Class A milk, his increase being 25 cents. At the new scale the distributor will get about 46 cents more for a hundred pounds of milk, and of this 25 cents, or more than half, will go to the farmer. The new price will be 10 cents a quart delivered and 8 cents at stores.

State G. O. P. Repeal Platform Drafted

STATE PLANK ON REPEAL DRAFTED

Curtis Will Launch Republican Drive At Allentown

By MARK SHIELDS

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Sept. 17.—The resolutions committee of the Republican State Committee today recommended adoption of a state platform including a declaration for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act.

The committee was silent on any recommendation for repeal or relaxation of the Snyder state enforcement act.

Indications when the state committee met today were that the contest on adoption of the resolutions committee report would be hard fought, with the final verdict in doubt.

LONG CONFERENCES

Decision to recommend repeal and modification came after a series of protracted conferences which lasted until after midnight. The decision to adopt the liberal course was made at the insistence of Roy T. Clunk, of Allegheny County, and City Chairman James M. Hazlett, of Philadelphia, the former representing the sentiment of Senator James J. Coyne and the latter bearing word from William S. Vare.

Their position was strengthened by the attitude of State Chairman Edward Martin, who in private conferences declared he hoped the prohibition laws would be amended in a manner to liberalize the permissive alcoholic content, that Pennsylvania might levy a tax on the product and thus relieve the burden now placed on real estate for the conduct of the state government.

DAVIS ABSENT

Participating in the resolutions committee conferences with the committee members were the Republican state candidates with the exception of Senator James J. Davis, who is expected late this afternoon to speak at the traditional Fogelsville picnic, which will open the state campaign.

Judge Joseph Stadtfeld and William M. Parker and former Lieut. Gov. Arthur James, candidates for the Superior Court, together with Senator Frank J. Baldwin, candidate for Auditor General, and Auditor General Charles Waters, candidate for State Treasurer, sat in the decisive session and spoke for a change in the prohibition laws.

The action of the resolutions committee represented a switch from the previous endeavors of state committee leaders to straddle on the prohibition issue.

Secondary to the adoption of a platform was the appearance of Vice President Charles Curtis, slated to kick off the Pennsylvania Republican campaign with a keynote speech at Fogelsville this afternoon. He will confine himself to a discussion of farm problems and the tariff and will seek to answer the farm speech of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in Kansas.

Republican leaders were hopeful this morning that the appearance of Curtis would not involve any prohibition heckling. It is known that some ardent anti-drys have prepared questions to be fired at Mr. Hoover's running mate, but regular Republican leaders were attempting to dissuade them from raising any controversy.

TEN HELD UP IN CAFE IN E. LIBERTY

Truckman Kidnaped, $1,300 Cargo Stolen By Armed Gang

While county detectives today sought members of a bandit gang that held a truck driver prisoner for six hours as they leisurely looted his truck of $1,300 merchandise, a bandit trio held 10 persons at bay in an East Liberty restaurant, looted the cash register and escaped with $150.

Wearing handkerchief masks, two of the trio, with drawn guns, entered Gammon's Restaurant at 208 North Highland avenue and while one threatened Ross Timms, night manager and H. F. Humphries, of 828 North Lincoln avenue, North Side, the other forced four customers and four waitresses to the rear of the room.

LOOT CASH REGISTER

Scooping up $150 from the cash register, the two men backed out of the restaurant and joined their comrade waiting in an automobile. They made no attempt to rob either the customers or the waitresses.

Edward Kramer, 20, of 1845 Webster avenue, reported to county detectives four armed men forced him to drive to a woods near the County Airport, in Mifflin Township, where he was bound, gagged and held captive while the quartet looted the truck of its load of cigarets and cigars.

In a statement to Frank Corwin, County Airport policeman, he declared an armed man jumped to the running board of his truck as he neared Bettis Field and forced him to drive along Lebanon road to a woods off Willock road in Mifflin Township. He said his captor was joined in the woods by three others who followed in an automobile.

TELLS OF ROBBERY

He told Police Chief Jess Crawford, of Mifflin Township:

"They tied me with rope, stuffed my handkerchief in my mouth and forced me to lie face downward. While a big man in a tweed suit, soft hat and black and white oxfords stood guard over me, the other three looted the truck. I don't know how long I had to lie there.

"I finally freed myself, but saw a man in the woods and was afraid to make an outcry. When he had gone, I walked through the woods to the airport and reported the robbery."

Chief Crawford said Kramer was unable to lead police to the scene of the alleged robbery and, when searched at the police station had $109 in his pocket. He was held for county detectives.

LOSS SET AT $1,300

Ernest Prince, of 3475 Beechwood boulevard, manager of the McKeesport Candy Company, of which Kramer was an employe, said a partial check revealed more than $1,300 worth of merchandise missing from the truck.

A lone gunman held up William Sykes, attendant at the Sun Oil Company service station at Boulevard of the Allies and Kennett square early today and escaped with $25.

Woman, 106, Struck By Auto, Walks Away

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Mrs. Michalena Bucchia says she has lived 106 years and a little thing like an automobile accident can't bother her. Knocked down by a motor car, she picked herself up, brushed herself off and went about her business.

Woman Killed In Two-Story Fall

Injured when she fell while cleaning a second-story window at the home of Mrs. Sadie Aronson, 5615 Phillips avenue, yesterday, Mrs. Elizabeth Paloyo, 47, of 212 South Sixth street, Duquesne, died in Pittsburgh Hospital today.

The Homer City blonde at a police court hearing today with her two companions when they were held for further investigation. They were arrested in Beaver Falls in an automobile which police say was stolen from in front of the home of R. W. Carroll, 7306 Hamilton avenue. Miss O'Hara declared she missed a Cleveland bus and the two men offered to drive her there after she met them in an East Liberty restaurant. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

MRS. LIVERMORE FREED, WEDS

RENO, Nev., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Five minutes after obtaining a divorce from Jesse L. Livermore, widely known stock market operator of New York and Chicago, Mrs. Dorothea F Livermore married Walter Longcope, of New York, here yesterday.

Judge Thomas F. Moran, who granted Mrs. Livermore the divorce, performed the marriage ceremony.

Mrs. Livermore charged she was deserted on July 15, 1931, by the stock market operator. They were married in New York December 2, 1918. It was understood a property settlement and the matter of custody of the two children had been arranged out of court.

Longcope, who gave his age as "over 21," was at one time an "under cover" prohibition agent in New York. He was credited with getting the evidence which brought Texas Guinan into Federal Court five years ago. Longcope was quoted as saying he spent $7,000 in her club to get the evidence.

Boy Prince Michael On Way to London

BUCHAREST, Sept. 17.—(INS.)—Prince Michael, former boy king of Rumania, accompanied by two high army officers, began his first journey abroad today.

He departed for London to visit his mother, Princess Helen. After he meets her there, they both plan to make a tour of Italy.

Guard Nurse Blamed for 3 Deaths

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—A woman hospital attache whose error in administering an anesthetic was blamed by her superintendent for the death of three patients was under close observation today by officials who expressed fear she might attempt to end her life.

The woman, Miss Maybelle Viall, 35, misread a formula and gave three women two grams of an anesthetic instead of two grains, said Supt. E. A. Baber, of the Longview State Hospital for the Insane. They died in about 20 minutes.

Baber, who described Miss Viall as "a very conscientious woman," and the tragedy as "an unfortunate mistake," said she was in a highly nervous condition and that he feared she might try to kill herself.

The victims—Jennie Branham, 54; Anna McCullough, 45, Negro, and Willie Schockley, 30, Negro, were given the anesthetic yesterday preparatory to a tonsil operation.

Coroner M. Scott Kearns returned a verdict of accidental death.

Ex-Mayor Walker Reaches Gibraltar

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Former Mayor Walker, of New York, arrived here today aboard the steamer Conte Grande accompanied by his secretary, George Collins. He looked well and seemed cheerful.

He told correspondents he was taking the trip for his health and that he expected to go back home at the first opportunity. He added:

"I am not prepared to talk about politics."

Van Dine, Vitaphone Sued for $500,000

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—A $500,000 plagiarism suit has been filed in Federal Court against S. S. Van Dine, novelist, and the Vitaphone Film Company by A. Channing Edington and Carmen Ballen Edington, who charge their mystery novels had been "lifted" and produced by the film company with authorship credited to Van Dine.

Dr. Russell A. Hibbs, Noted Surgeon, Dies

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Russell A. Hibbs, 63, surgeon-in-chief at the New York Orthopedic Hospital and world-renowned for his research in orthopedy, is dead.

He was a native of Birdsville, Ky. He leaves his wife, a brother and three sisters.

ARREST BLONDE IN CAR THEFTS

A tall, willowy platinum blonde who told police she is Mrs. Mary O'Hara, 21, of Homer City, and two men companions were being held today in the theft of an automobile in which they were arrested and pending a "standup" at which numerous robber victims will be asked to attempt to identify them.

The trio was arrested in Beaver Falls early today. The men said they are Edward Duffy, 26, of Sheridan avenue, and George Murray, 22, of Hamilton avenue.

Mrs. O'Hara told Magistrate Leo Rothenberg she missed a bus to Cleveland, and, meeting the men in an East Liberty restaurant, asked them to drive her to the Ohio city.

Man, Hurt as Suicide Noose Breaks, Dies

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 17.—James Mondell, 71, is dead today, defeated in his attempt to commit suicide, according to police.

A clothes line with which Mondell attempted to hang himself, police said, broke, and in his fall to the concrete floor he fractured his skull. He was found dead by his son. Despondency over the death of his wife was given as the cause.

Lindbergh and Wife Vacation in Maine

NORTH HAVEN, Me., Sept. 17.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were vacationing quitly today at the island home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh. They arrived this week from New Jersey in a two-seated open cockpit plane which Col. Lindbergh chartered for two weeks.

KILLER HELD GAY PARTIES OVER GRAVE

Victim Told Friend She Had Lost Love Of Husband

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Charles Dubois, wealthy jeweler, dug his wife's basement tomb while she sat above and listened, unknowing its meaning.

She wrote to a friend, a Mrs. Gillott, that her husband was acting queerly, that in the cellar he would "dig for days" and be strangely silent when he came up.

It was in this basement grave that Mrs. Dubois' body was found last night after the jeweler killed himself by shooting himself with the same caliber of bullet that ended the life of his wife.

'LIKE CRAZY MAN'

Police said Mrs. Dubois also wrote to Mrs. Gillott that her husband apparently no longer loved her and was "like a crazy man over that other woman."

Dubois was 39, one year younger than his wife. His home was in Tuckahoe, N. Y. The cottage in which his wife was slain and buried was his summer residence.

After the body was placed in the concrete crypt, Dubois entertained at gay parties in a bottle-strewn room only eight feet above his wife's body, detectives said, as they cast new light on the case before marking it "closed."

DUBOIS SUICIDE

Dubois, against whom the police had sought a murder warrant in vain because they had no corpus delicti, killed himself in a Quincy rooming house. He had shaved off his smartly curled moustache and taken the name "Ralph Anderson."

Immediately Assistant District Attorney John V. Sullivan rushed 10 men with pickaxes to the Dubois summer cottage near Great Herring Pond, with orders to demolish it if necessary in the search.

British Flier Claims New Altitude Mark

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Capt. Cyril Unwins, World War flier, claimed a new world altitude record for airplanes today with a flight to 45,000 feet. His performance must be ratified by the Royal Aero Club.

"Jane's All the World's Aircaft" says the airplane altitude record was 43,154.9 feet, set by Lieut. Apollo Soucek, of the United States Navy, June 4, 1930.

Germany Sets New Reichstag Election

BERLIN, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The government ordered a new Reichstag election today for November 6.

This is in accordance with the terms of the constitution, which stipulates that when the Reichstag is dissolved a new election must be held within 60 days. Chancellor von Papen dissolved the last Reichstag on September 12. This election will be the fifth in Germany this year.

Roger Williams Taken From Soap Box 'Tomb'

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The dust of Roger Williams, founder of Rhode Island and apostle of religious toleration, has been removed from a wooden soap box in a tomb at North Burial Ground, where it had lain for 72 years, and was placed in a steel container in the cemetery vault.

There it will remain entrusted to the Providence Tercentenary committee until erection of an appropriate and permament memorial.

Until yesterday the remains had been in the Stephen Randal tomb since 1860, when they were disinterred from the place where Williams had been buried in 1683.

Kaye Don's Society Bride Waits as Racer Sails

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Kaye Don, British speed wizard of motorboat and automobile racing fame, sailed for Europe today—no longer the "perpetual bachelor" he liked to call himself.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Martin, of Greenwich, Conn., socially prominent, disclosed that Don and their daughter, Aileen, 21, were married in Greenwich Friday morning. The bride, at a farewell dinner with Don, said:

"Of course, we're married, but we wanted to keep it secret."

A few hours later Don sailed on the Olympic. Mrs. Don will follow him next week, and they will spend their honeymoon on Lake Como.

Don, who started as a schoolboy bicycle racer, has many speed records to his credit. He came to this country to race Gar Wood for the Harmworth Trophy at Detroit, but Wood won the first heat, and Don was unable to finish the second because of trouble with his boat.

GARNER DROPS CAMPAIGN, RUSHES TO DYING MOTHER

SPEAKER RACES TO HOME IN TEXAS

May Board Plane to Reach Side of Stricken Parent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Speaker John N. Garner left early today for Detroit, Tex., to be at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. Sarah Garner, who is reported critically ill.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate left by train, but planned to make connections with an airplane over the southern route in order to reach his destination as soon as possible.

Informed late last night of his aged mother's condition, Garner reached a decision to make the trip without notifying his closest friends. He left his hotel at 3 a. m., alone and boarded a train, the Memphis Special via Chattanooga. He told the hotel manager he would probably take a plane sometime today.

His mother is 81 years old and physicians there reported her recovery doubtful.

Only yesterday Garner told friends he regretted he had been unable to visit his mother recently. The original Garner home was on Blossom Prairie, near Detroit, in Red River County, bordering Southern Oklahoma.

Garner arrived here yesterday to discuss plans for participation in the presidential campaign and had planned to go to New York to confer with James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee. He left a note to his secretary, Harry Sexton, explaining that he planned to remain with his mother indefinitely.

All of his engagements are to be cancelled pending his return to Washington.

GOV. ROOSEVELT IN UTAH, G.O.P. STRONGHOLD

Democrats Hopeful of Carrying Home State Of Reed Smoot

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Sept. 17.—In pursuance of his theory that every state is fighting ground and debatable territory this year, despite its political past performances, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt brought his presidential candidacy into traditionally Republican Utah today and squared away for a battle.

Only one Democratic candidate for the presidency has carried Utah since the turn of the century. Woodrow Wilson carried it in 1916 with his "keep us out of war" slogan, but he was the only Democrat to crash through the line of Republican defense.

Taft carried it in 1912, the year of the Republican split, although he carried only one other state, Vermont. And even Bryan lost it by 2,000 in 1900, despite his free silver platform in a state that boasts of silver as one of its major industries.

STRONGLY G. O. P.

Since 1916, Utah has been unvarying in its adherence to the Republican national ticket. Harding carried it by 35,000, Coolidge by 30,000, although the combined Davis-Lafollette vote in 1924 exceeded the Coolidge vote; and in 1928 Hoover won by 14,000.

This year, non-partisan observers are agreed that Utah is debatable territory. Silver is an important industry. Its world price is well known. The cattle and sheep industry has suffered in Utah as in other parts of the West. Unemployment is as widespread, and even Republicans agree that there is going to be a "protest vote" in November of incalculable proportions.

Senator Reed Smoot, one of the deans of the Senate, chairman of the all-powerful finance committee and a Utah institution at Washington, is up for re-election. He faces a hard fight, but Utah observers assert that he will "help" the national ticket.

SMOOT OPPOSED

Smoot's opponent for the senatorship is Dr. Elbert D. Thomas, a professor of political science at the University of Utah, who, although politically inexperienced, is accounted a popular figure and probably a vote-getter in this year of political unrest.

Gov. Roosevelt spends the weekend in Salt Lake City, his longest stay in any place on his invasion of the West. He faced a busy program today, with conferences with state leaders occupying the forenoon, a luncheon in his honor by the Chamber of Commerce at noon, more conferences in the afternoon; a major speech dealing with the railroads in the Mormon Tabernacle at night, and following this speech, a banquet which will be attended by not only Democratic leaders of Utah, but from all the Intermountain states.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(INS.)—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, will soon make public his attitude on the World War veterans' bonus issue, International News Service learned today.

Gov. Roosevelt will probably make his views known in a speech to be delivered in the East upon his return from his western campaign tour, it was stated from an authoritative source.

In any event, it was pointed out, he will speak his mind clearly on the question before election day.

UNION BLAMED FOR STRIKE ON POSTOFFICE

Chamber of Commerce Backs Contractors And Employers

The Chamber of Commerce has issued a statement supporting the contractors in their stand on the sand and gravel agreement, the point at issue in the postoffice strike of more than nine weeks duration.

The responsibility for maintaining the strike since August 22 does not rest with the Aronberg-Fried Company, general contractors, nor with the Building Trades Employers Association, the report states.

"NOT SURPRISED"

P. J. Dagnall, business agent of local N. 905, Hoisting Engineers Union, declared he was not surprised at the report of the Chamber of Commerce. He said:

"The union recognizes the fairness of some individual members of the Chamber of Commerce in their attitude to organized labor. The majority of the membership, however, are well known employers of non-union labor."

Dagnal declared that President Thomas A. Dunn of the chamber admitted in the presence of Miss M. Emmelinne Pitt, federal conciliator, that the union did have a definite agreement covering sand and gravel hoists wherever located, but, that under existing conditions, the union should declare a moratorium and resume work on the postoffice job.

REPORT OF CHAMBER

The chamber report, in discussing the sand and gravel agreement, says there is nothing to show what hoists are included in the requirement to be manned by union engineers. The report saates:

"Since the contract is made with the Building Trades Employers Association, it would be reasonable to assume that it related to work carried on by its members, and not work carried on by sand and gravel companies that are not members of the association and not eligible for membership."

The arrangement by the Aronberg-Fried Company for a special float to handle sand and gravel for the postoffice job with union engineers has fully taken care of any occasion that may have existed for the strike, the report declares.

The report quotes a letter by William G. Doak, United States Secretary of Labor, stating that the steps taken by the contractor and the Employers Association to comply with the demands of the union should be satisfactory to all concerned and the men ordered to return to work.

GARNER SCORES HOOVER RECORD

By ARTHUR HACHTEN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—With an attack on President Hoover's "inconsistency, vacillation and lack of leadership in the unemployment crisis," Speaker John N. Garner opened his campaign in the East as Democratic vice presidential nominee.

The President opposed a federal public works program, delayed in putting it into operation after Congress had given a mandate, and now claims credit for the move as relief to unemployment, the Speaker said.

GARNER'S STATEMENT

The complete text of Speaker Garner's statement follows:

The Republican leaders throughout the country are in a state of panic. Moreover, there is plain evidence here in Washington that this condition of extreme uncertainty and apprehension over the outcome of the election in November extends to the White House itself.

The administration's assumption of credit for all relief measures passed by the last Congress is amazing in view of the fact that there was not a relief measure passed that did not run the gauntlet of administration criticism or active opposition.

President Hoover in his address Thursday before the welfare and relief mobilization conference stated:

"I secured to the Red Cross $5,000,000 bushels of wheat, 500,000 bales of cotton, and an authorization to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to advance $300,000,000 to such states as could not finance themselves to take care of distress."

ATTACKS HOOVER CLAIM

President Hoover did not obtain a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton for the Red Cross. It was the Congress that initiated and passed this legislation, and received no encouragement from the Republican administration or its leaders. The proposal to loan $300,000,000 to the states through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to relieve distress originated with Senator Wagner, of New York, and was written into the relief act despite the administration opposition.

This also is true of the funds for public buildings for unemployment relief. This feature of the act was vigorously assailed by the President and Administration leaders, and in order to prevent its elimination from the bill it was necessary to compromise by inserting the clause which gave to the Secretary of the Treasury the power to initiate public building construction. After months of delay the President and Secretary of the Treasury apparently have come to the conclusion that a public building program is essential as the government's contribution toward relief of unemployed.

One of the major factors in retarding improvement of conditions throughout the country is the inconsistency and vacillation of the Hoover administration. This is exemplified in the sudden change of front with respect to public works. In his acceptance speech of August 11, the President said:

"The opposition leadership insisted, as the price of vital reconstruction legislation and over the protests of our leaders upon adding $300,000,000 of costs to the taxpayer through public works inadvisable at this time."

The demand of the country for a public works program, for something tangible in the way of unemployment relief at the hands of the government, continued to rise. On September 9, less than a month after the President had delivered his attack upon the proposition, we find him issuing the following statement:

"In order to further aid employment, I have instructed the various departments to undertake the speeding up of the federal construction program to the amount of slightly less than $200,000,000, being the contigent appropriation in the 1932 relief construction act. This speeding up from this additional fund will be largely in the river and harbor, flood control and public building projects which were authorized from two to five years ago."

CHANGE OF FRONT

This is a complete change of front, effected in less than 30 days. That is one reason why the country has concluded the Hoover administration must be turned out.

The question today is not how many states will the Democrats carry, but how few will the Republicans win. If the elections were to be held tomorrow there isn't a doubt in the minds of disinterested observers that the Democrats would be swept into power by at least 7,000,000. And if the swing which has set in continues—and there is justification for predicting that it will—Democratic victory will be measured in a lead of 10,000,000 at the lowest calculation.

No one can visit the states that I have traveled through during the past few days and talk with the people of these and adjacent states without being absolutely convinced that the Republican administration is certain to be repudiated at the polls in November by a lack-of-confidence vote unprecedented in the history of the nation.

SHOW RESENTMENT

On my way up from Texas to Kansas City, where I joined Gov. Roosevelt to accompany him to Topeka, large groups of men and women were assembled at every wayside station. I made few speeches, but I did converse with them. I asked what their attitude was—what they intended to do. Their dissatisfaction—really their deep-seated resentment over the manner in which their country's affairs have been mismanaged — was expressed in no unmistakable terms.

Maine went Democratic. That was just a foretaste of what will come later. Kansas will follow Maine's example. There isn't the slightest doubt of that. Practically every test poll proves it, and so does the attitude of the people. Ohio is safely in the Democratic column. Polls have given the Democrats leads, even in strongly Republican Cincinnati and Hamilton County, of from two to one. Almost similar conditions obtain in Indiana.

No wonder the Republican leaders are panicky. They can foresee what is coming and all their efforts to stay the storm are proving impotent. The most menacing opponent of Democracy at the moment is overconfidence, and our party must guard against that.

FRIEND TAKES HURLEY BLAME

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Responsibility for placing copies of Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley's statement on "Bonus Marchers in Washington" before delegates to the American Legion national convention here was accepted today by Brig. Gen. Joseph P. O'Neil, retired, of Portland, personal friend of Hurley. O'Neil retired from the Army last August.

The Legion convention adopted a motion condemning the War Department when copies of Secretary's Hurley's statement were found at the desks in official War Department envelopes.

Gen. O'Neil expressed surprise and chagrin that his action, complicated, he said, by a clerk's error, should have served to provide criticism against Hurley and the War Department. He said:

"The War Department didn't know a thing about the copies of that speech that were distributed to the delegates at the Legion convention. Neither did Pat Hurley."

Police Rout 200 At Reds' Meeting

An alleged Communist meeting at Center avenue and Overhill street, was halted last night by Center avenue police, who declared no permit had been issued for it. There was no disorder as police dispersed about 200 persons attending the meeting. The speakers were not arrested.

MALONEY TOLD TO GET ON JOB

Judge George V. Moore late yesterday refused to vacate his recent appointment of City Detective Andrew M. Maloney as constable of the First Ward, and instructed the detective to report to Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan, who had petitioned his ousting, to report for work.

Flanigan contended that Maloney had not reported for duty, and that political differences between him and Maloney prevented effective co-operation.

Judge Frank P. Patterson told Maloney:

"At the time you took your oath as constable you promised to spend all your time in connection with its duties. Now you say you will give to the task all the time it demands."

Judge Thomas M. Marshall interjected:

"I think that either job of city detective or of constable would require all of any man's time."

Judge Moore closed the case by saying:

"This was my appointment and I see no reason to revoke it."

Husband Burned In Rescue of Wife

Burned on the hands and arms as he carried his wife from their second floor bedroom, Charles Schaeffer, of 106 West South Diamond street, was treated at Allegheny General Hospital last night. Damage by the fire was estimated at $50.

REVELED OVER WIFE'S TOMB

New construction there had aroused his suspicions.

A few blocks of a sledge laid open the funeral vault, a strong concrete box in the cellar. The body lay inside, wrapped in black cloth, a pillow underneath the head and a window cord about the waist. Medical examination showed Mrs. Dubois had died of a bullet wound about August 10, the day when police had figured she disappeared.

GIRL QUESTIONED

After Dubois was released last Monday by a judge who refused to issue a warrant for him, police questioned Miss Grace Atwood, of Middleboro, blonde and youthful daughter of a wealthy manufacturer. They said she told them she had been friendly with Dubois. He had informed her, she said, that his wife was killed in an automobile accident in Montreal. Authorities absolved Miss Atwood of any knowledge of the slaying.

Lawrence Frasier, former chauffeur for the Dubois family, was brought here from Braintree for questioning. He told police he assisted Dubois in laying a concrete layer in the cellar, but he said Dubois informed him it was a foundation for a pump and washing machine. Sullivan said Frasier was in New York when the tomb itself was built.

SPURRED BY NEIGHBORS

It was neighbors' curiosity over Mrs. Dubois' absence that led to the widespread hunt, in which troops were called to assist police. Police said Dubois told conflicting stories, one that she was killed in an auto accident, and again that she ran away with $25,000 of his money.

Dubois and his wife were considered well-to-do. They had homes in Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Braintree, Mass., as well as the summer cottage. A few days ago investigators found the record of a deed in which the Braintree property was transferred from Mrs. Edith Dubois (the slain woman) to a "Grace Dubois, of New York," with the consent of Charles Dubois.

Dubois' attorney said he believed the man shot himself because he was "weighted down by the publicity and the use of Miss Atwood's name."

Assistant District Attorney Sullivan said the state's inquiry was closed. He declared:

"The sole culprit is dead."

Wilkinsburg Home Looted, $35 Stolen

Sneak thieves entered the home of Mrs. Pearl Ferrell, of 853 Ardmore boulevard, Wilkinsburg, during her absence last night and stole a purse containing $35, police reported.

OAKLAND BLAZE INVESTIGATED

Firemen today were endeavoring to learn the cause of a blaze which swept through the three-story frame home of Harry Tobe, at 1 McDevitt place, last night.

Fear that the fire would spread to an adjoining apartment building resulted in the sounding of two alarms. Traffic in the Boulevard of the Allies and Forbes street at Craft avenue was blocked for almost an hour.

The Tobe family was absent when the flames were discovered by neighbors. Tobe was shopping at the farmers' market on the Monongahela wharf, he told police. Deputy Fire Chief Frank Jones estimated the damage at $8,000.

Smith Makes First Campaign Speech

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Alfred E. Smith made his first speech of the campaign last night, but it had nothing to do with the presidential contest. He introduced Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, Democratic congressional nominee, at a reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, at Southampton, L. I.

Stanfield to Vote For Gov. Roosevelt

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The Journal yesterday quoted Robert N. Stanfield, former Republican United States Senator from Oregon, as saying he "cannot vote for Mr. Hoover" but that he will cast his ballot for Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner, Democratic candidates for president and vice president.

Von Wiegand on Radio To Tell of Germany

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—A nation-wide audience will be taken "behind the scenes in Germany" by Karl von Wiegand, chief foreign correspondent of Universal Service, in a broadcast over the WEAF red network of the National Broadcasting Company on Monday at 6:30 p. m. (Pittsburgh time). Mr. von Wiegand, who has his headquarters in Berlin, is in the United States on a vacation. He will speak for 15 minutes.

Mr. von Wiegand is credited with having a wider acquaintance among German officialdom and a more intimate knowledge of German affairs than any other correspondent.

The hookup through which the Universal Service correspondent will be heard will be coast-to-coast.

1,100 Cancer Cure Cases Told by Noted Surgeon

DETROIT, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Dr. Franklin H. Martin, director general of the American College of Surgeons, said here that the college will announce definitely next month that there are completed records of 1,100 cases of cancer in the last five years that have been cured.

Speaking yesterday at a joint meeting of the health committees of the Wayne County Medical Society and the Board of Commerce, Dr. Martin said further that he has information showing cures of more than 5,000 cases. He emphasized, however, that the cases cured or arrested represented patients who were treated in early stages of the disease. He said:

"If everyone in this country submitted himself to physicians for periodic examinations, say twice a year, there would be practically no deaths from cancer in the United States. Cancer can be definitely arrested when caught in its infancy."

75 REVELERS IN FLIGHT AS RAIDERS CRASH UPTOWN CLUB

WOMEN IN RUSH TO ESCAPE SLEUTHS

Hill Man Arrested as Racketeer Believed 'Big Shot'

More than 75 persons, many of them women, fled through windows and down the rear fire escape in a midnight raid by county detectives on a second-floor club at 1603 Fifth avenue, allegedly operated by Jackie Fromme, well known night life figure.

Revelry halted abruptly when Detectives Thomas Calig, Samuel Riddle and Frank Ritz began to batter down the door after a heavy bar was dropped against the inside of it. Fromme was found alone when the detectives entered and confiscated four cases of Canadian ale and several bottles of gin and whisky, the detectives said. Fromme was held in $1,000 bail.

ARREST LOOMS

The alleged "big shot" of Hill district rackets was revealed today with the arrest of Irwin Johnson, Negro, of 605 Junilla street. He had been named by Benjamin Shalonsky, proprietor of a confectionery at 2349 Center avenue, as the man who had forced him to accept slot machines. County detectives charged Johnson with maintaining gambling devices. He was held for court in $2,500 bail by Alderman T. M. Geary.

Johnson said he is a rent collector and had been named by Shalonsky because he is a friend of Constable Earl Sams.

At a hearing before Judge F. P. Patterson yesterday it developed that the "boss" arbitrarily forced the proprietor of a confectionery to countenance a slot machine which was seized by detectives.

Chauncey Jackson, 31, a Negro, arrested in the first raid on the store three weeks ago, denied ownership of the place when arraigned before Judge Patterson and named Benjamin Shalonsky as the owner of the store. Judge Patterson then ordered the arrest of the proprietor. In the second visit to the store the sleuths arrested Shalonsky and confiscated the slot machine, they said.

During his testimony before the court, Shalonsky admitted he was the proprietor of the store and declared he had been forced to have the slot machine in his store.

"RACKET BOSS"

Shalonsky then revealed the identity and whereabouts of the man to whom he referred as "the boss of the rackets."

Shalonsky, charged with maintaining a gambling device, posted $1,000 bond for a hearing before Alderman Thomas M. Geary.

Meanwhile, police were without trace of the gunmen who early yesterday riddled with bullets the front of the home of Deputy Constable Hyman Shalansky, 2408 Wylie avenue, said to be a cousin of Benjamin Shalonsky. Shalonsky blamed his raiding activities for the shooting.

Shalansky and Abe Feldman, another deputy constable, appeared as prosecuting witnesses against eight persons arraigned before Justice of the Peace Lawrence V. Gibb, of Sewickley, last night. They have been taking their cases to Gibb instead of to Alderman Robert H. Logan, of the Fifth Ward, where the raids were staged.

POLITICIAN CALLS

While the hearings were in progress 'Squire Gibbs received a telephone call from Gus Greenlee, Hill district political figure, who asked the amount of bond each defendant would have to post. He was informed the amount was $2,500.

The eight arraigned were held for court. Seven of them posted bond immediately. Those held, according to Gibb, were Fred Dolden, Henry Williams, George Randall, William Jackson and Sam Greenberg, each charged with operating a lottery; Sam Haney and Goldie Lerner, charged with violating the Snyder act. George Gaines was committed to county jail in default of bond.

CLEARED AS AIDE IN KILLING

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 17.—Areligh Tennant, 22, was acquitted on a charge of murder today in connection with the slaying by James Barnhart of Miss Mary Temple at Oak Forest last April 14. Tennant, said by witnesses to have been employed by Barnhart as a bootlegger, was charged by the state with having aided in planning the shooting. Barnhart was convicted last week of second degree murder.

Although the state showed that Barnhart and Temple had been together the day of the shooting and that they went to the Temple home together that evening, it failed to prove that Tennant aided in planning the slaying. The jury deliberated less than an hour before returning a verdict.

MISSING ROBINS SEEN AGAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Raymond Robins, missing prohibition leader who disappeared in New York City September 4 while on his way to Washington to visit President Hoover, was again reported as having been seen in Chicago.

Richard Smith, an acquaintance of the missing man, said he saw Robins yesterday near the Chicago City Club. Smith said he rushed into the club to get Joseph Desmond, the manager and a friend of Robins. When the two returned, he said, the man was gone.

Robins was reported last week as having been seen in Chicago, where he lived at one time, by several other friends. Investigators later abandoned thier clues as worthless.

Police Seek Home For Jobless Indian

West Homestead police today sought a home for homeless and jobless Frank Jones, 72, who claims to be an Indian. Taken ill in Homestead streets last night a few hours after he had hitchhiked from Mansfield, O., Jones was treated at the Homestead Hospital and returned to the police station.

Sharpsburg Estate Willed to Niece

An estate valued at $10,000 was disposed of by the will of Richard H. Scriven, Sharpsburg, probated yesterday. The bulk was left to a niece, Mrs. Melvin Cartwright, after bequests of $3,000 to a sister, Prue Scriven, $1,000 to James Cartwright, and $500 each to two friends.

County's Sluths Clear Nine Places

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Nick Bahny and his wife, of Albion, walked 18 miles to answer a charge of assault with firearms on Hugh Ball in an argument over water rights.

When the Bahnys entered the court room they learned their case was continued until Monday because they failed to appear at the scheduled time.

Bahny told the court he had no funds with which to ride to Erie and was unable to get a "lift" from motorists.

$55,000 SAVED BY INSTITUTE

More than 2,600 school teachers were expected to attend the eighty-second annual Allegheny County Teachers' Institute in Memorial Hall today. It will be the first time in 40 years that the teachers have attended without being paid.

Inaugurated as an economy move, the payless plan will save the county $55,000, County Supt. Charles E. Dickey declared.

Instructors at today's sessions were to be Dr. Joseph Rosier, president of the National Education Association; Dr. Edwin W. Chubb, dean of the college of liberal arts, Ohio University, and Dr. Edwin W. Adams, associate superintendent of city schools.

Four Sentenced For Bank Holdup

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 17.—Three men and a youth, who pleaded guilty in Criminal Court to the holdup of the Smithton National Bank on July 29, 1931, were sentenced yesterday.

Jess Sager, Smithton; Richard Dawson and Frank Gillingham, both of Montour No. 9, Washington County, were given from five to 20 years in Western Penitentiary. Earl Sager, son of Jess Sager, was sentenced to Huntingdon Reformatory.

Wilkinsburg Cut Baffles Councilmen

Wilkinsburg's Council went into executive session last night to seek ways and means of providing $100,000 for operating expenses during the balance of the year.

Four hours after its members, headed by Burgess William Turner, emerged shaking their heads doubtfully. They'll meet again Monday, Burgess Turner said.

'FLYING NURSE' HOPE GONE

ROME, Sept. 17.—(INS.)—Hope the plane American Nurse, lost on an attempted nonstop flight from New York to this city, would be found virtually vanished here today.

Officials admitted it was almost impossible the fliers could still be surviving if their plane had been forced down at sea.

It was thought unlikely the plane had reached Europe, since the extensive search under way since it became overdue three days ago would probably have revealed some trace of it. Nevertheless, aviators throughout Italy were still on the lookout for the craft, as were numerous ships at sea.

The American Nurse took off from New York early Tuesday morning with Edna Newcomer, nurse; William Ulbrich, pilot, and Dr. Leon M. Piscuilli, owner, aboard.

POLICE FACING NEW LAYOFFS

In police circles another rumored cut of 12 days a month was being discussed today. The threatened slash will come, according to unverified reports, unless tax payments increase.

Coupled with these reports was one which had Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh working on a new schedule giving lieutenants and sergeants fewer payless days than patrolmen. The schedule is understood to provide for nine payless days this month and seven and one-half days in the succeeding months. At present the police department is working on a pay schedule which calls for 25 days pay for 30 days work.

Thief Steals Wagon From Crippled Man

Neighbors and friends of Ralph Stotz, 22, a cripple, have joined with police in searching for a wagon belonging to Stotz, which was stolen last night.

Stotz, a victim of infantile paralysis, has been crippled since he was 7 years old. Last night he was carried from the wagon into a confectionery store by companions, and when he was ready to be taken home it was discovered the vehicle had been stolen.

250,000 TO JOIN IN TRIBUTE TO MRS. HEARST

New York Pays Honor To 11 Years Work For Milk Fund

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—New York pays tribute today to Mrs. William Randolph Hearst in one of the greatest demonstrations ever tendered an individual.

More than 250,000, it is estimated, will take part in parades, pageant, exercises and meetings to thank her for the great work of charity performed in the past 11 years through the milk fund.

CHILDREN TO JOIN

Children in every East Side playground have prepared celebrations of some kind; charitable and civic organizations will hold exercises; and churches and synagogues will join in the tribute.

Gov. Roosevelt added his congratulations in a telegram sent to Harry Schlacht, chairman of the committee in charge. He said in part:

"May I take this opportunity to express my heartfelt interest and my keen appreciation of the great and humanitarian work that is being done through the agency of the Free Milk Fund? There is nothing that tugs at our heartstrings like the suffering of little children, and it is almost impossible for me to voice what I feel about the wholehearted effort of Mrs. William Randolph Hearst to better the condition of the little ones in those sections where the need is so great.

"Her unstinted giving of herself, her time, her energies and money should be an inspiration to all of us."

MIDNIGHT SHOW

A midnight show at which scores of stars of stage and screen will perform will be the climax of the celebration. The show will begin at 11:30 at the Academy of Music and indications were that the theater will be packed to its capacity of 4,000.

A distinguished audience which will include Mayor McKee, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, and hundreds of leaders in the city's social and civic life, will be present.

Grover A. Whalen will be chairman and will introduce Mrs. Hearst, who will speak briefly.

COX AGAIN SEES MERGER WITH LIBERTY PARTY

'Coin' Harvey Blamed For Rift, Ouster Action Looms

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 17.—Fusion of the Jobless and Liberty is likely after all, it developed here last night upon the arrival of Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, presidential nominee of the Jobless party.

Father Cox said the matter was discussed in a conference he had in Kansas City, Mo., with Roland E. Bruner, national chairman of the Liberty party. Bruner said he was disappointed that the two parties were unable to get together at the St. Louis convention last month. He placed responsibility for the rift between the two parties, after tentative arrangements for their fusion had been made, upon Col. William F. (Coin) Harvey.

According to Bruner, Col. Harvey gave up his right to the presidential nomination of the Liberty party when, in an article in the Liberty Bell, official organ of that party, he announced that he would step aside in favor of Father Cox.

In refusing to do so in St. Louis, Col. Harvey accepted a nomination to which he is not entitled, Bruner stated, adding:

"Col. Harvey was illegally nominated. His resignation from the candidacy has been asked. If he refuses, we shall take court action."

Father Cox addressed two meeting here last night. One was an open-air meeting on city property. The other was indoors, before 400 members of the National Service Union, an organization of jobless men.

In his talks the campaigning priest referred to President Hoover as "the best president England ever had."

PITT STUDENTS PLAN SUIT

Victor in their appeal from a police court magistrate's decision finding them guilty of disorderly conduct, three Pitt University students today planned civil action against W. Don Harrison, athletic director at the University of Pittsburgh, their counsel, Attorney Percy C. Pachtman, said.

The trio, Leonard J. Grumet, 23; Alonzo D. Brewer, 21, Negro, and Louis M. Teitelbaum, 23, planned a conference with Attorney Pachtman today. They were accused of disorderly conduct in connection with an anti-militarist demonstration during Pitt commencement, June 8.

CATTLE DEALER AMBUSHED BY SON, SLAIN

Youth Admits Killing, Shared Loot With 2 Brothers

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 17.—In the fastness of the mountains of the Northern West Virginia border line, the picturesque and somewhat violent career of Iley Tate, 75-year-old cattle dealer of Bruceton Mills, W. Va., came to an end late yesterday.

Held in the county jail here charged with the shooting, is a son, George Tate, 19.

VICTIM AMBUSHED

Leading state police to a spot within 15 feet of where the body was found, the boy told how he had lain in ambush and as the veteran mountaineer passed fired a bullet through his head. George confessed, police say, that he had taken $160 from the clothing of his father and divided it with two other brothers, Sam, 17, and John, 24.

The youth said he had quarreled with his father earlier this week because he would not permit him to leave the house in the evening.

The killing ended the career of a sturdy mountaineer who has survived a dozen shootings. Neighbors said he bore a reputation of being a good shot and they said a newcomer was warned:

"Never draw a gun on Iley Tate unless you mean it."

CLEARED OF MURDER

Years ago, it is alleged, Decatur Tasker, a mountaineer, became involved with Tate in an argument over a woman. Tasker, it was said, went to Tate's home. There he is reported to have boasted:

"I'll eat my breakfast in hell, if I don't bring him out."

Picking up a club, Tasker is alleged to have broken a window. As he started to climb through the broken window, a shot rang out and Tasker fell on the outside dead. Tate, tried in West Virginia for Tasker's murder, was acquitted.

Another tale they tell about Tate was a duel in which he had a horse shot from under him.

A few years ago, while conducting a store on a mountain trail, four bandits entered and commanded Tate to "stick 'em up."

They beat Tate to the draw, however, one of their bullets almost scalping him. Tate fell unconscious. Recovering rapidly, he pursued the quartet, firing as he ran. He wounded two.

A few years ago a four year old son of Tate's was crying. It's cries were silenced by a bullet through its head. Tate claimed the shooting was accidental.

Tate was 45 when he married his present wife. She was 12. Eleven children have been born to the union. Another child is expected in a few weeks.

GUARD HARLOW RIVAL'S RIGHTS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The "presumption" that Dorothy Millette was legally the widow of Paul Bern, self-slain film executive, despite his marriage to Jean Harlow, platinum-haired screen star, was the basis of a public administrator's petition on file here today to protect possible claimants to the Millette estate.

Public Administrator Herman Koch petitioned for letters of administration in Miss Millette's estate, explaining he did so to protect her relatives and to pave the way for a possible claim to a share in Bern's estate.

He added, however, he did not know whether any relatives survived the auburn-haired woman who was once known as "Mrs. Paul Bern," or whether she had any legitimate claim to Bern's estate.

Funeral services for Miss Millette, who leaped to her death from a Sacramento River steamer two days after Bern shot himself in Beverly Hills, Cal., were to be held here this afternoon. Coroner James R. Garlick prepared to inter her body in East Lawn Cemetery after receiving instructions from Mendel Silberberg, attorney for Miss Harlow.

The attorney telegraphed:

"Clients of my office desire to see the body of Miss Millette properly cared for."

3 CHILDREN HURT BY AUTOS

Mary O'Hara, 9, of 112 Pump way, North Side, was critically injured when struck by an automobile in Henderson street last night. David Solomon, of 5538 Avondale street, alleged driver of the car, took the child to Presbyterian Hospital.

Believed to have fallen from a truck at South Twenty-first and Josephine streets, Louis Lorkowski, 10, of 2705 Oakley way, was taken to South Side Hospital.

Paul Ondek, 12, of 2332 California avenue, suffered lacerations of the leg when he dodged one automobile and ran into the path of another near his home last night, police said. He was in St. John's Hospital.

George Burkhardt, 30, of 3607 Brownsville road, Brentwood, suffered a fracture of the jaw when his automobile crashed against a pole in Brownsville road at Carrick avenue.

Auto Accidents To Show Decline

For the first time in a decade, automobile accidents in Pennsylvania probably will show a decline in 1932, Robert L. Wickline, chairman of the highway safety committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, said in a radio address last night.

SHE FEARS PREJUDICE IN TRIAL

LIBBY HOLMAN REYNOLDS . . . SHE'LL SEEK A CHANGE OF VENUE IN WINSTON-SALEM

The beautiful torch-singing widow of Smith Reynolds, tobacco heir, who with Ab Walker, her co-defendant, will ask that they be tried for murder elsewhere than in the North Carolina town where the young millionaire was found shot to death, according to information obtained by International News Service. Mrs. Reynolds and Walker are free on $25,000 bond each.

Hurley Stole First Base In Gibbons Tilt

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

The administration efforts to hornswoggle the American Legion were just the same as the nearsighted old lady who patted the porcupine.

The boys not only want their bonus but also took a slam at Secretary Hurley and demanded beer.

Mr. Hurley was sure trying to steal first base when he got into an argument with Floyd Gibbons. Floyd can talk at the rate of a thousand words a minute without adjusting his bridgework.

It certainly was a tough week for the Republicans all round. Looks like their platform is just a commutation ticket for a series of wrecks.

And that Democratic baby up in Maine was such a surprise that even Winchell didn't know about it.

All Mr. Hoover can say about the situation is that it is going to be a tough winter.

And, as the golfer said when he missed the easy putt, "It's that way all over the West."

Open Safety Pin Taken From Baby Girl's Throat

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—A nine-months-old girl was back home in North Dakota today, an open safety pin gone from her throat, after 680 miles of traveling with a kindly neighbor.

Gloria Norell, daughter of Mr and Mrs. D. W. Norell, was playing in her Leal, N. D., home when the pin became lodged. The parents called J. C. Hayden, a neighbor, to take them to Valley City, 30 miles away.

There the child was considered as requiring more attention than was available so they went to Fargo, 50 miles away.

At Fargo a specialist was deemed necessary so the drive continued to Minneapolis, 260 miles away. The pin was extracted and the child taken back home by parents and the nighbor. Physicians said she would recover.

PASTORS MEET THURSDAY TO PLAN WEEK OF PENITENCE

PRAYER PERIOD TO BEGIN ON OCTOBER 2

A special meeting of ministers of all Protestant denominations is to be held Thursday night in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, at which leaders will discuss plans for a week of penitence and prayer to be observed throughout the United States beginning October 2.

The Rev. Dr. Albert Edward Day, of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, will preside and the Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of Shadyside Presbyterian Church, will lead the discussion. Pittsburgh's observance will be similar to that planned for other parts of the country.

Arrangements for the meeting were prepared by a committee headed by the Rev. Dr. Jacob S. Payton, Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, aided by the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, East Liberty Presbyterian Church; the Rev. A. C. Robinson, Sixth United Presbyterian Church; the Rev. William Porkess, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, and the Rev. Edward Bleakney, Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church.

MISSIONARIES TO LEAVE

Missionaries who are to leave next week for foreign countries to carry on the work of the Pittsburgh Bible Institute, will be honored at a farewell meeting tomorrow night in the institute, Congress street and Wylie avenue. At the same time several of the party will be ordained.

Five of the missionaries are to leave for Central China. They are the Rev. E. O. Parker, Mrs. E. C. Parker, William Meyer, Miss Lulu Cleeland and Miss Helen Cruickshank. This group will join others in the Szechuan province, where missionaries from the Evangelization Society of the Institute have been working 10 years.

The Rev. Raymond Moore is returning to the Belgian Congo. He, too, will be tendered the farewell of the institute.

The golden-jubilee celebrants 25 years hence will remove the hand-written Bible, photo albums, newspapers, photographs and church records. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

TWO LUTHERAN SCHOOLS TO BE OPENED

Two Lutheran standard leadership training schools are to open in Pittsburgh next month, one on the North Side and the other in East Liberty. The schools are to be operated under the auspices of the Sunday School Association of the Central Conference of the Pittsburgh Synod, United Lutheran Church. They are for officers, teachers and pupils of Sunday schools and members of young people's societies.

The East Liberty school will be held in Bethany Lutheran Church, Highland avenue, on Monday evenings from October 3, to November 7 inclusive. The North Side school will be in the Mt. Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, Perrysville avenue and Waldorf street, on Thursday nights from October 13, to November 17. David R. Sumstine has been named dean of the schools.

Subjects for discussion will be: the pupil, principles of religious training, the Old and New Testaments, primary materials and methods and Sunday School administration. The dean and the instructors have been accredited by the Lutheran Parish and Church School Board.

Mrs. Rose G. Fossee, of 1829 Montier street, Wilkinsburg, is registrar for the East Liberty school, while Miss W. Adella Ramage, of 115 Perryview avenue, is in charge of the North Side enrollment.

SILVER JUBILEE TO BE MARKED AT ST. LUKE'S

The Rev. H. J. Schuh, of Anna,, O., formerly a North Side pastor, who years ago assisted in laying the cornerstone of the first edifice of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, West View, will return and preach the silver jubilee sermon in St. Luke's tomorrow morning. At the morning service the six remaining active charter members out of the 19 who organized this congregation will be given seats of honor.

Tomorrow nigh the speaker will be the Rev. Eugene C. Snoehr, of Mars, Pa., Father of the Rev. Luther P. Spoehr, the present pastor. At this service a memorial marble stone, sunk in the platform of the Sunday school room will be filled and sealed. It is planned to open the stone when the golden jubilee is observed. The stone is to contain pictures of the congregation, a hand-written New Testament, a gavel made from the wood of the old frame church which burned five years ago and pictures of the recent eclipse of the sun.

In the 25 years of its existence, 907 persons have become members of the church. Eight pastors have served the congregation, and the present pastor, the Rev. Spoehr, has been at the church 14 years.

Debt Cut Foe

DR. JOHN R. EWERS

Dr. Ewers, pastor of the East End Christian Church, just returned from a tour of Europe, believes France should be forced to pay the United States the total amount of its war debt. An attack on propaganda favoring cancellation or reduction will be a feature of his talk tomorrow night when he reviews his travels abroad.

FRANCE SHOULD PAY, PASTOR DECLARES

The United States would be very foolish not to make France pay her war debts, the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers of the East End Christian Church said today. He returned recently after an extensive trip abroad during which he studied social conditions.

Dr. Ewers, in his sermon tomorrow night, will tell of his trip abroad. His subject is "Bird's Eye Story of Our Trip." At the morning services at 11 o'clock he will discuss "The Towers of Rothenberg."

Regarding France and the war debts, Dr. Ewers said:

"France is old and hard. We would be very foolish not to make France pay. She has plenty of money for military equipment, and Americans may consider themselves very soft, if they do not make France pay every penny that she owes. There seems to be a concerted movement in Europe to impress America that Europe cannot and will not pay. Economists like St. Arthur Salter try to teach us that it would destroy our trade if she pays."

CHURCH TO HOLD ANNIVERSARY

The fortieth anniversary of the dedication of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, North avenue and Middle street, North Side, will be observed with special services tomorrow and Monday. The Rev. C. B. King, pastor, will deliver a special anniversary sermon tomorrow morning and Monday night, at a social hour in the church rooms, he will make an historical report of the congregation.

The Rev. Dr. King came to St. Mark's in 1890 and helped organize it into a church from a small mission. He also served congregations in Sewickley and Charleroi and in March, 1931, was returned as pastor of St. Mark's.

During his former pastorate at the North Side church, he aided young members of his congregation in establishing a mission on Spring Hill, which later grew into the Mt. Olivet Lutheran Church.

Volunteers to Pray For Bedfast Head

Prayers for the recovery of the Rev. Fay Decker, director of religious activities of the Volunteers of America, will be offered at services tomorrow night in the Volunteers Church, Sandusky and East North Diamond streets, North Side. The Rev. Decker has been bedfast for two months. Staff Capt. George H. Hotchkiss will have charge of the services and will preach on "The Duty and Privilege of the Church of God in Times of Depression."

Numbers Racket To Draw Fire Of Pastor

The Rev. W. H. Hanna, pastor of the Knoxville Christian Church, who last week in a sermon suggested that Mayor Charles H. Kline resign from office, was to continue his attack upon the present city administration and the evils which exist in Pittsburgh in a sermon tomorrow night. He announced his sermon subject as "Evils of Numbers Writing."

Last Sunday the Hilltop clergyman lauded Judge Frank P. Patterson for refusing to accept the reports of constables who stated their respective districts were free from vice and crime. He held the jurist up as an example of the type of man needed in public office.

An informal debutante party can be just as delightful as the elaborately formal affairs of yesteryear. And the proof is the charming dinner party the Lewis A. Parks gave at their beautiful Sewickley Heights place for petite, golden-blonde Nancy Byers.

Nancy is the debutante daughter of the J. Frederic Byerses, of Sewickley Heights. The date for her debut party has not been decided on, Nancy tells me.

The dinner was served last night on the terrace overlooking the swimming pool in the beautifully landscaped Park garden. The same scene was the setting, I recall, for the wedding of Josephine Nicola and David Meade Gilmore.

An old-fashioned-style gown of orchid chiffon was worn by the debutante, having tiny sleeves worn off the shoulder, the type of decolletage favored by so many of the older painters.

And the hostess chose a simple gown of white crepe. The guests were members of the debutante set of this season, their friends and men of the younger set. Do you realize that this affair is the first deb party of the season?

First Bud Affair

* * *

Have you heard that the Donald Briens are expected today or tomorrow and that they will be at home in Maryland avenue?

They arrived from their European honeymoon on the Bremen, which docked Tuesday in New York. Their marriage took place, I mention to refresh your memories, July 27, in the old Trappe Crurch, Trappe, Pa., the oldest Protestant church in America. They sailed then for Europe for a German honeymoon.

Mrs. Brien is Louise Lerch, former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Lucretia Billings one of the prettiest girls in the younger set, is in Baltimore, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Janor Fischer.

* * *

The Henry Mason Reeds have a son now, their second child, Henry Mason Reed, Jr., born Tuesday at the Allegheny Hospital. They have a little daughter, Martha Lockhart Reed. Pretty brunette Mrs. Reed is the former Betty McCullough, daughter of the W. T. McCulloughs.

Heir Arrives

* * *

The Donald Smith Gwinns are in town. They've been living in Akron, O., and are now visiting Mrs. Gwinn's mother, Mrs. Stansbury Sutton, of the Alder Court Apartments. Mrs. Gwinn made her debut a few years ago when she was Oliveretta Sutton.

Miss Evelyn C. Kaplan To Wed A. L. Greenberg

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Kaplan, of Fawcett avenue, McKeesport, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Evelyn C. Kaplan, to Albert L. Greenberg, son of Mrs. Jeanette Greenberg, of Jackson street, East End.

Helen McC. Drake To Marry G. F. Ryan

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy McClintock, of Crafton, announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen McClintock Drake, to George P. Ryan, of Pittsburgh. A fall wedding is planned.

Grace Dietrich Is Married In Church

At 6:30 o'clock last evening in the Mt. Washington Presbyterian Church, the Rev. C. B. Wible solemnized the marriage of Miss Grace Irma Dietrich, daughter of J. W. Dietrich, of Shiloh street, Mt. Washington, to W. Rodney Snodgrass, son of Mrs. Alice Snodgrass, of Oneida street, Duquesne Heights. The ceremony was a quiet affair with the members of the families present.

The bride, who was unattended, wore a brown crepe traveling costume with a matching hat.

Mr. Snodgrass and his bride left on a trip through the Shenandoah Valley and the East and will be at home later in Oneida street.

Le Roy, O., Girl Married To Wilkinsburg Man

Mr. and Mrs. Orlo H. Wertenberger, of Le Roy, O., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Alberta Wertenberger, to George Bailey Mullin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Mullin, of South avenue, Wilkinsburg, which was solemnized at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, September 10, in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Le Roy. The altar was decorated with ferns and garden flowers, and the officiating minister was the Rev. Dr. P. S. Hyde.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore white lace over satin, and a veil of tulle cascading from a tulle cap. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Ruth Wertenberger, as her sister's maid of honor, wore turquoise satin crepe and carried yellow roses. Mrs. Robert Tissot, of Cleveland, as matron of honor, wore pink satin crepe and carried pink roses. Another sister, Miss Alice Wertenberger, was bridesmaid, and wore yellow crepe and carried pink roses. The two little flower girls were nieces of the bride. Sara Jane England and Jeanette Wertenberger, and a nephew, Jack England, was ringbearer.

Serving as best man was James A. Patterson, of Columbus, O., and ushers were Lester E. Witherspoon, of Wilkinsburg; Willard E. Wertenberger and Robert Tissot, both of Cleveland, and Charles E. Vierck, of Columbus.

There was a reception at Westfield Inn after which Mr. Mullin and his bride left by motor for the south. They both attended Ohio Wesleyan and the bridegroom is a member of Alpha Sigma Phi.

Benefit Dance Held At Edgeworth Club To Aid Needy

Gayer and gayer is growing the social season. And a high point for this month was reached with the dance last night in the Edgeworth Club, given for the benefit of Sewickley needy. The sweet young things of the younger school set had the largest representation.

I noticed that the new mode, having evening gowns with a suggestion of sleeve or a cape, has been adopted with great gusto.

Betty Wheat wore a perky yellow organdie frock, having a plaid design of green tucks and a green ribbon girdle. With her was Helen Diescher, wearing scintillating cream satin. Mary Curry's attractive gown was of shell pink crepe having a cowl neckline, embroidered with gold medallions, which were repeated in the narrow sash.

One of the new pebbly crepes in a soft pink shade fashioned the gown of attractive Margaret Painter. It had brief sleeves and a narrow band of Kolinsky across either shoulder.

Mimi Singer represented the still younger set, in yellow crepe with a cape collar. The titian-haired Lippincott sisters were there, Adele wearing pistachio green satin having a cowl neckline in front, and a deep V decolletage, and Marianna choosing pale blue chiffon with a melon pink girdle, made with a deep ruffle around the decolletage, and a peplum.

Wears Yellow

Lydia Irish was in her favorite color, red, made of crepe and had a perky matching jacket. Susan O'Neil, the chairman of the dance, wore paddy green satin with crystal beaded shoulder straps. Mary Edwards I saw, too, wearing white satin with a cowl decolletage, having horizontal stitching at the hipline.

Harriet Ramsburg was stately in white lace, featuring the new high neckline, with the cape collar draped high to the left caught with a clip of brilliants. Her narrow belt featured green stones.

Betty Cappeau's gown was of pink, which seemed to be a favorite last night, made of crepe beaded with crystal. Polly Schoyer, whom I saw dancing with Andrew Black III, wore a beruffled gown of white chiffon with a wide ruffle at the neckline suggesting sleeves.

Mrs. Robert Carson, Jr., was there wearing black chiffon lace, having a deep cape, and I saw Mrs. Raymond Hilliard, in white lace, chatting with Mrs. F. Bourdette Kirkendall, who was in a pink lace gown having a cape. Miss Eleanor Grier's gown was of flowered chiffon with pink the predominating note.

In Black Chiffon

Chatting with Mrs. Paul Griffiths, who was taking tickets, in black crepe having a criss-cross motif of crystal beads in the front, was Mrs. William McBride, in embroidered white lace with a deep cape.

Deeply tanned, Mrs. Edward Wallace Woods was there, wearing black crepe and Mrs. Lawrence W. Blair in a most distinctive gown having the draped skirt of garnet velvet and bodice of heavy cream satin with a cowl decolletage. Mrs. Van Lear Perry Sriver, Jr., wore white lace with cap sleeves.

Sallie Gibson to Make Bow on December 23

With Nancy Byers' debutante party last night the deb season is now open. And to assure pessimists who think it might be over, there's a new date just taken for a debut.

The junior John Gibsons, of Bennington avenue, have decided on December 23. They'll present their daughter, Sallie, that day in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. But whether the affair will be a dance or a luncheon for the debutante set, Mrs. Gibson hasn't decided. The family is just back from a summer at Chester, Nova Scotia.

Pittsburghers Visit At Seashore Resort

Pittsburghers at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, include Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Wettach and Mrs. Edna Wettach, Miss Mary O'Connor, Robert W. Flennikon, Miss Dorothy McBride, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caldwell and Robert B. Caldwell and Mrs. William Christman.

Miss Helen Patterson, of Pittsburgh, is in New York where she is staying for a short time at the Hotel New Weston.

Floda Reitler Marries Clarence H. Shaffer, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Reitler, Sr., of Ford City, Pa., announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Floda Reitler, to Clarence H. Shaffer, Jr., son of Mrs. Phoebe Shaffer, of East End avenue. The ceremony took place Thursday, in the home of the Rev. F. J. Fuerst, Brookline.

After an extended lake trip, Mr. Shaffer, Jr., and his bride will be at home in East End avenue, about October 3.

Audition Group Will Include Club Women

A number of well known club women have been asked to serve on the honorary committee for the local Atwater-Kent radio audition September 27 in the William Penn Hotel. Mrs. Lucille Miller Werner is Western Pennsylvania chairman, and Miss Mabel King, local chairman.

On the honorary committee are Mrs. Christine Miller Clemson, Mrs. W. C. Dierks, Mrs. T. C. Donovan, Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, J. Fred Lissfelt, Harvery Gaul, Dr. C. N. Boyd, Dr. Thomas F. Arbuthnot and Ralph Lewando.

The active committee, under Miss Kling, includes Mrs. Anna Laura Cree, Mrs. J. Smith Christy, Mrs. Jean McCrory Newman and Mrs. Margaret Spaulgin Stockdale.

Sheraden Book's Cover In Spirit of Club's Anniversary Year

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A most attractive silver cover binds the new year books of the Sheraden Woman's Club and apprises the reader that the club will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary this season. The celebration will take place November 18 in charge of an especially appointed committee, Mrs. R. S. McMillen, Mrs. C. S. Banker, Mrs. R. T. Lewis, Mrs. W. H. Wicks and Mrs. J. G. Taylor.

The new year books also carry two pages of quotations from the club's very first publication. When Mrs. Edward M. Wilson, the new president, greets her constituents on October 7, the new season will be inaugurated and Mrs. Bruce Cobaugh will give a preview of it.

Ruth Day Exline, of the Birth Control League of Allegheny County, is listed for a talk on "Child Welfare as Related to Birth Control" at the following meeting. "Prudent Use of Leisure Time" promises something especially interesting: Ralph E. Blakeslee is to talk on "The Indian," there will be a Christmas meeting and a round table of current events in the first half of the year.

Mrs. M. M. Redenbaugh's talk on "Home Furnishing Trends for the Year" is the first program feature for the new year, preceding by one meeting the president's day, plans for which are being kept secret. Cy Hungerford, in one of his clever cartoon talks, will furnish entertainment for the club members and their husbands in February, and that same month the club will have an all-day sewing. Later events include a visit to the Association for the Blind, a party for the junior section, a program on "Friendship," a spring musicale, election, the customary "achievement day" and the closing luncheon.

Nearly all the late and popular novels cater to the tastes of idle people who spend their lives enjoying themselves; they express the philosophy of the appetites, Marie Tello Phillips Yaegle said yesterday in reviewing "Christopher Strong" for the literary department of the Congress of Clubs. It was the department's first meeting under its new chairman, Mrs. William Noble Zortman, who introduced her vice chairman, Mrs. May T. Neff and the secretary, Miss May Kenny.

Gives Review

Mrs. Chester B. Story, speaking in behalf of the American Theater Society, said "good taste is moral judgment." The principal speaker was the Rev. Waldo Amos, who discussed Pirandello and O'Neill, as the two outstanding dramatists of today.

* * *

Mrs. L. L. Greer, president of the South Hills College Club, was honor guest at the reception given yesterday by the club in the home of Mrs. R. H. Brann, Jr., Standish boulevard. Mrs. Ross K. Conaway and Mrs. G. Reed Schreiner poured and there was music by the Redmond Trio.

Entries in more than a dozen classes were made yesterday at the flower exhibit of the Fox Chapel Garden Club at the Pittsburgh Field Club. Mrs. K. C. Gardner, Mrs. Elsie McFate and Mrs. Clarence Succop were the judges.

Pittsburgh Field Club To Give Dance Sept 24

The house committee at the Pittsburgh Field Club announces a dinner dance to be held Saturday evening, September 24.

Pauline A. Rock Is Married to J. W. Connolly

Miss Pauline Anne Rock, daughter of David L. Rock, of Kennedy avenue, North Hills, became the bride of John Wray Connolly, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Connolly, of Riverview avenue, North Hills, on Saturday morning, September 10, at 9:30 o'clock in the Church of the Annunciation. The Rev. Patrick Graney officiated.

The bride wore a gown of white lace over satin, fashioned with a train, over which cascaded her tulle veil, finished with a cap of tulle. She carried a missal from which showered a marker of rosebuds and satin ribbons.

Miss Helen Tuttle was the maid of honor, and Miss Ruth Hoffman, a bridesmaid. Willard F. Connolly served as best man and ushers included Ralph H. Rock and Russell G. Connolly. The wedding breakfast was held at The Pines. Mr. Connolly and his bride left on a motor trip through New England and Canada and will be at home in Orchard road, Ingomar, upon their return.

The bride is a graduate of the Frick Training School and the bridegroom of the University of Pittsburgh Law School.

Ruth Florence Oartel Marries W. A. Grubbs, Jr.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Florence Oartel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Oartel, of Ella street, Wilkinsburg, and William Alfred Grubbs, Jr., took place late yesterday afternoon in the parsonage of the Shoemaker Memorial Church, McKeesport, with the Rev. Earl C. Weaver, of the First United Brethren Church, Somerset, officiating. Dinner in the home of the bride's parents followed the service.

The bride attended the Carnegie Institute School of Fine Arts. Mr. Grubbs was graduated from the Westinghouse Technical Night School. He is a son of W. Alfred Grubbs, formerly of Turtle Creek, now in the Panama Canal Zone.

PARIS ESTABLISHES VOGUE FOR CHIC FURRED WINTER COSTUMES

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Furs are abundant—both as scarfs and as trimmings—in the new assortments of winter clothes that Paris is making. So popular is the present French vogue for furs that pelts of all kinds are being used. There are the long-haired foxes, of both the silver and lighter beige and brown varieties: there are the mid-length furs, like dyed skunk and the fur known as ragondin; and there are innumerable quantities of the flat furs—astrakan, caracul, shaved lamb, breitshwantz and other varieties.

* * *

MANY DESIGNERS go so far as to employ fabrics that imitate successfully the texture of furs. There are velvets designed to look like both shaved lamb and astrakan. Others have every appearance, at a distance, of ermine and chevrette. Both the fur fabrics and furs themselves are used to make not only the customary collars and cuffs on coats and suits, but as trimming bands on sports costumes, daytime dresses and even evening gowns.

* * *

THERE ARE two kinds of flat furs used on Bruyere's formal coat sketched today—black astrakan and white shaved lamb. Both are used as if they were fabric—the black astrakan to make trimming bands which accent the large size of the sleeves, and to edge the wide collar; and the white shaved lamb to make a tiny added collar which forms a frame for face and neck.

* * *

THE BRUYERE hat, of felt, is one of her versions of folded crown, showing how this type of hat appears with a narrowed cloche brim. It is particularly successful with fur-collared coats or with fur scarfs. The handbag of black antelope, has a slender frame and metal studs on the leather handle—all finished in the bright gold effect that is so popular right now.

SIR HENRI SEES OIL INDUSTRY 'FAR AHEAD'

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Sir Henri Deterding is certainly the ablest oil executive outside of the United States, and many consider him without a peer here or elsewhere.

Responding to my request for his views on the oil situation, Sir Henri has sent me his diagnosis of present economic ills from London:

Mr. Rukeyser

"I think it would be entirely wrong to comment on present conditions in the oil industry otherwise than to say that: 'that industry is far ahead of any other industry in the world in putting its big house in order, so as to be the first to reap the full benefit when the world's industry once more rights itself.

HIGHER LIVING AIM

"The oil industry being paramountly the pivot of every other industry—providing as it does the most economic energy—no great lasting good can be realized in any industry before the industrial world begins to see where the shoe pinches, and at present staring (as the world does) blindly on wages, as well as on numbers of employes, she is looking at the wrong 'pinched' foot: it is the other shoe that pinches, namely the 'consumption shoe.'

"Surely, it is impossible to contradict the fact that it is solely lack of consumption or purchasing-power which is at the bottom of the social crisis."

It strikes me as an important development when farseeing business executives recognize that prosperity in the future must be predicated on raising the standard of living of the common man. Under the necessities and opportunities of the power age, good business becomes identical with the aims of good sociology.

CHINA, SOVIET CITED

It seems to me that the to start raising the stan living is at home. Sir Hen ever, points to two opport abroad, saying:

"Then why not increase buying power by:

"1. Increasing the value of the sole purchasing unit of 500,000,000 Chinese, who can us only half for a 28 cents ch ounce of silver as against a 56 cents ounce (although it has been ever nearer a dollar an ounce)?

"2. 160,000,000 Soviet inhabitants are starving because their government wants them to produce as cheaply as possible, thus allowing them half rations only; why not force the issue: of allowing those poor human beings to consume what they like to consume, thus adding the equivalent of 80,000,000 consumers to the world?"

Sir Henri concludes:

"Without these two items, 'the scientists have it,' and we shall go on talking about credits and over-production, thus looking at the wrong shoe, until . . . the other foot cannot any longer stand the pain. I hope it will then still be in time to get a 'better shoe'."

PAIR HOLDS UP DRUG STORE

East End police today were searching for two bandits who held up McCarthy's drug store, 7601 Penn avenue, and escaped with $46 last night.

The bandits entered the store and ordered sodas. Philip Haney, of 310 North Graham street, the manager, told police. As he was preparing the drinks, they drew revolvers and ordered him to keep still. Henry A. Wallace, of 226 East End avenue, a patron, was forced into the rear room. The cash register was looted of $44 and the two men were robbed of $1 each and their driver's licenses.

Boy Scout Official To Speak at Rally

Ray O. Wyland, national director of education of Boy Scouts, will make the principal talk tonight at the Boy and Girl Scout rally, Guyasuta Reservation. Between four to five hundred scout executives are expected to attend, and to discuss plans for aiding the Welfare Fund campaign.

Driverless Auto Holds Up Traffic

An automobile abandoned in the middle of the street tied up theater traffic at Seventh and Liberty avenue late last night. The machine, owned by Tommie Hill, of 1919 Bedford avenue, was reported stolen by Center avenue police. It was abandoned a short time later by two youths who were seen running away.

GARBAGE COSTS BEING SIFTED

Recommendations by the Bureau of Governmental Research to bring about economies in the 1933 garbage collection appropriation for the city will be studied by Council's committee on finance.

Permission to allow Health Director Charles B. Maits to advertise for contracts for next year's garbage and rubbish collections, is being held in abeyance, according to President John S. Herron.

The present contract is held by the American Reduction Company and its subsidiary, the Allegheny Garbage Company. Three other bidders have signified their intention of competing for the $1,700,000 contract, and Dr. Maits told Council he feels that with early advertising of the contract better bids can be secured.

HOWELL WARNS DEBT PLEADERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(Universal.)—Warning to the administration, European debtors and international bankers that Congress will fight to the last ditch against any moves for drastic reduction or cancellation of war debts had been sounded by Senator Howell (Rep.), of Nebraska.

Back in Washington after a nationwide tour, Howell reported the American people are aroused by the disclosures of private understandings and negotiations for debt revision.

Howell, an ardent foe of cancellation, smilingly remarked he had not been let into the secret of the recent mysterious mission in this country of Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England. Howell said:

"Congress took a definite stand at the last session in opposition to cancellation of war debts. There is nothing to indicate there has been a change in its views."

Unitarian Church Series to Start

A series of five sermons on the general subject of "See Life Steadily and See It Whole," will be started tomorrow morning by the Rev. Dr. Frank Edwin Smith, of the First Unitarian Church, Ellsworth avenue.

The subject of his first sermon will be "The Future of the Social Order in the Light of World Movements." A discussion group will meet at the close of each service to consider the sermon subject of that morning.

Junior Minister To Occupy Pulpit

The Rev. Theodore E Millier, junior minister at the First Baptist Church, Bellefield avenue, will occupy the pulpit for both morning and evening services tomorrow, due to the death of the Rev. Dr. C. Wallace Petty.

At 11 o'clock, the Rev. Miller will speak on "The Challenge of a Great Need." Tomorrow night his sermon subject will be "Living or Just Existing."

North Side Man Gets Purple Heart

Daniel J. Greaney, of 929 Haslage avenue, who served with the 74th Company, 6th Marines, during the World War, has been awarded the Purple Heart decoration, according to an announcement made today. He was wounded during the St. Mihiel offensive.

SAYS SHERMAN LAW RETARDS OIL TRADE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Voluntary agreement among individual producers of oil for the control of distribution and production and co-operation through state laws and supervision were named as the two roads to stabilization in the petroleum industry by E. W. Mayo, of New York, editor of World Petroleum, at the final session of the thirtieth annual meeting of the National Petroleum Association yesterday.

COURT'S POSITION

Mayo said the so-called anti-trust laws stand as a "formidable obstacle" to voluntary agreements. He continued:

"The Sherman Act declares that contracts in restraint of trade are unlawful. Obviously an agreement to pro-rate production or distribution can be construed as an act in restraint of trade. In the light of past decisions it is probable that the Supreme Court would hold it could not be construed otherwise.

"From the points of view both of political feasibility and practical operation stablization through voluntary action is so difficult under existing circumstances that many practical oil men regard all schemes dependent upon such action as chimerical."

ADVOCATE SALES TAX

Gilbert Montague, of the New York bar, asserted that "a little experimentation in the liberalization of the anti-trust laws might possibly do much to relieve unemployment and economic stress."

With the federal gasoline tax expiring next June and the federal oil tax in June, 1934, the association passed a resolution opposing any further extension of the two taxes and in its place favored a general manufacturers sales tax. Another resolution favored the continuance of efforts to restrict the production and refining operation in view of present economic conditions.

PRODUCE EXCHANGE SECURITIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Following is a summary of transactions on the New York Produce Exchange yesterday:

|

CARRIERS PULL STOCK PRICES UPWARD

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Rails steamed upgrade in the early trading in today's stock market, pulling much of the list after them.

During the first half hour, gains of 1 to 2 points appeared in such issues as Union Pacific, Santa Fe, New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Pacific, New Haven, Lehigh and Lackawanna. Similar gains appeared in Corn Products, Westinghouse, Case, United Aircraft, United States Steel and others.

The weekly trade reviews were encouraging, noting definite improvement in lighter lines of manufacture which in some cases have carried manufacturing activity to the best levels of the year. They also stressed the recent gains reported in steel and railway traffic.

The August figures on foreign trade, while still reflecting the low ebb to which international commerce has fallen, were interpreted favorably from the standpoint of this country's trade balance. Exports totaled $109,000,000 against $106,842,000 in July, imports rose to $91,000,000 against $79,420,000 in July.

Foreign exchanges opened steady to firm, with sterling up 15-16 cents to $3.48⅝ for London cables. French francs gained 1-16th point.

RULE ON SHORT DATA EASED

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The New York Stock Exchange slackened its grip upon the bears today.

A notice to members said the daily reports of short positions would be discontinued and that the short position should be reported only as of the close of business each Monday, until further notice, starting next week.

The exchange also notified members that they might discontinue the tabulation of the short sales made and covered the same day, known as "out-and-in" transactions.

Exchange officials made no comment upon the action, but it was felt in brokerage circles that since the latest monthly report had shown bear operations at the smallest volume for any time since figures became available, it might well have been concluded that less drastic supervision was called for.

The exchange, it was explained, will exercise great care to prevent bear raids. The regulation that no short sale may be executed at a price lower than the last sale of long stock, was still left in effect.

COTTON PRICES WEAK, OFF

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 10-13 lower, under southern hedge selling and in response to disappointing Liverpool cables. October, 6.88; December, 7.02; January, 7.07; March, 7.20; May, 7.28; July, 7.41.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 17.—Cotton—Receipts, 5,000 bales; American nil; spot in fair demand; prices 23 points lower; quotations in pence; American strict good middling, 6.25; good middling, 6.00; strict middling, 5.80; middling, 5.65; strict low middling, 5.50; low middling, 5.45; strict good ordinary, 5.25; good ordinary, 4.95; Futures closed barely steady; October, 5.43; December, 5.40; January, 5.42; March, 5.46; May, 5.49; July, 5.52.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Rout

Autumn shall bring no rebirth of desire,
Gladly I drop my mad and futile quest;
Try as you may to stir the dying fire,
I will greet love as my unwelcome guest.

Let the mad winds go howling through the town,
They have no gift to wound my feeble pride;
You are but one more torture written down,
You are but one more tiny dream that died.

I am gone sick of eerie ghosts that creep
Down old unbidden highways of my past;
Is it not time to leave the dead asleep—
Is it not time to keep our humble fast?

What can you gain by stabbing at a foe
Whom you have vanquished countless moons ago?

—Don Wahn.

Too Great a Risk

Just before Jimmy Walker suddenly sailed for the old country, one of the revusical producers, who was stuck for a big name in his troupe, decided that a sensational headliner would be the former Mayor.

He raced to a phone and called the Mayfair House:

"Mr Walker," said a voice, "is still sleeping. He can't be disturbed."

The producer looked at his watch. It read 3:30 p. m.

"The deuce with it," he said to himself, "he'd never make the the matinees, anyway!"

And They Gas Tanks!

Ide Gruber is in again. This time she can make up a sentence with the first name of Ozzie Nelson, the orchestra leader, like this:

"Ozzie can you see?"

Ouch!

Then there was the time Wilson Mizner was haled to court after a card-game raid. The district attorney asked Mizner what he thought of the intelligence of the man who ran the game.

"Intelligence?" growled Mizner, "why he has so few brains—he could wear a demi-tasse for a high hat!"

Heheheh

Ethel Whitton, of Chicago, would have you believe that a local theater's marquee lights billed a double feature in this manner:

"Winner Take All," and, "My Wife's Family."

There, Now!

Raymond Ally Smith was riding on a trolley the other afternoon and overheard a fussy woman interfering with a young mother who was having some difficulty carrying her infant.

"Huh," huh'd the fussy one, "a woman ought never to have a child until she learns how to hold one!"

To which the young mother responded:

Berlesque

"Richy Craig, Jr.," memos Jerry Mann, "will never have to worry about playing to an empty house. Milton Berle will always be out front."

Then Came the War

"Dear Walter," night-letters Richy Craig, Jr., "while in Chicago last week the Garrick Theater went Minsky and opened up as a burlesque house. The third night they had a big fire, and the funny part about it is that when the firemen entered the theater the actors gave the best performance since they opened . . . They were so happy to see people coming in.

"There wasn't much damage—except all the costumes were burned—two hats and a yard of chiffon . . . No one was hurt, except two firemen who were overcome by women.

"When one of the firemen took off his shirt, the audience whistled and applauded . . . They thought it was another strip number!" — Faithfully, Richy.

"P. S. Please be sure and send Berle his copy."

Whitewashing Black Sheep

Variety has this to say (among other things) of "Okay America!" the last of the columnist cycle of movies:

"What every film maker has lost sight of . . . seems to have been the necessity to concisely characterize this new journalistic upstart . . . The actual Broadway columnist is a more or less innocuous person . . . for all the propaganda to the contrary."

We consider ourself "an actual Broadway columnist," and a villain! If Variety wishes to infer that our competitors are sissies, that's all right with us, because they are!

Vail in Pitt For Stock

Ed Vail who has been busy for several months arranging to reopen the Pitt Theater as a stock house, has completed his plans sufficiently to announce that the theater will reopen under his management on October 3, and that the resident company will be known as the Edwin Vail Players.

Mr. Vail, who has been in New York for some time, is expected to return Monday with the roster of players he has engaged and the names of plays contracted for. He knows the stage of the Pitt very well, since he was long employed there as character actor and director in the George Sharp Players.

Maureen O'Sullivan Signs for Lead

Maureen O'Sullivan has been signed to play the leading feminine role in George O'Brien's Fox picture, "Robbers' Roost," which is now being adapted from the Zane Grey novel of that name. This marks the return of Miss O'Sullivan, after an absence of more than a year, to the company that discovered her in Ireland and gave her her first movie chance in "Song o' My Heart."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well let's see what's in the news that's fit to reprint today? Al Smith had one of the finest and most fearless articles in this week's S. E. Post. Why is it he is about the only politician on either side that can write on a subject and you can tell where he stands?

Will Rogers

Roosevelt is headed West, "says he is just out to meet the folks." But he will give preference to any one of legal age, and a registered voter. Mr. Hoover, who originally wasn't going further West during the campaign than the Potomac, has started looking at time tables. Politicians in order to hold the real dyed-in-the-wool radio nut, are crooning their speeches.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

NEWS OF THEATERS

Chevalier As A Tuneful Tailor

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Something new in the world of pictures was revealed at the Penn Theater yesterday. It is called "Love Me Tonight," and Maurice Chevalier is the pivot on which it turns. He is a tuneful Parisian tailor who allows a scapegrace vicomte to run up too big a bill, and then follows him to his uncle's chateau to collect it. The vicomte introduces him as a baron, and he has to play the part. The beautiful princess falls in love with him—and it all ends just as a Grimm or Andersen fairy tale should.

Mr. Seibel

But Chevalier is only the pivot on which the thing turns. You may admire him as France's gift to Vassar and Bryn Mawr, or you may think he is just another Bill Haines with an accent and an ingratiating grin. He's at his best here.

But two other men are responsible for this gem of musical pictures. The director was Rouben Mamoulian, and he has produced a sequence of views that are both artistic and dramatic. There are woodland scenes as beautiful as Corot; and there are glimpses of Paris that are truly poetic. No picture in years has had so many exquisite backgrounds, so much jeweled photography, so continuous a dramatic progression. Mamoulian has turned out a masterpiece. But the other man, who must have written the libretto, is Samuel Hoffenstein, who can turn a rhyme as neatly as W. S. Gilbert and has a real Gilbertian sense of humor.

These two men are geniuses—and their work is what makes "Love Me Tonight" memorable as a picture or as a burlesque symphony. It has some songs that are full of melody and fun, especially "The Son-of-a-Gun is Nothing But a Tailor" and the "Mimi" ballad. "Isn't It Romantic" and "Love Me Tonight" also are infectious. The handling of the choruses must give the jaded listener and looker a thrill of joy. After reels of stupidity here is imagination!

Besides Chevalier, who is at his best, there's Jeannette MacDonald, lovely and sweet as the princess. Aubrey Smith, Charlie Ruggles and Myrna Loy have opportunities to shine. And there is a deer that's a dear! Whether to laugh, or to revel in sparkling music of airy texture, or to lose yourself in visual vistas of romantic charm, "Love Me Tonight" is a treat to the fastidious.

An amusing "Mickey Mouse" cartoon, a fast-moving farce of the Taxi Boys, and varied news pictures do not need to be mentioned. "Love Me Tonight" is quite enough to satisfy anybody with taste.

Bela Lugosi In Warner

By EDWARD W. GOSS

Bela Lugosi's latest "thrill" picture, "White Zombie," current in the Warner, is second rate cinema entertainment.

Mr Lugosi tries hard enough to send the customers away talking in whispers and throwing quick glances over their shoulders to make certain no tenant of the world beneath is tracking them down but he falls short. The good old creeps are missing from the picture. All the approved mechanics are used—coffins, staring eyes, black nooks, harsh and eerie noises and lighting effects. They give the impression of being hooked onto the picture, and not woven smoothly into the action.

"White Zombie" is supposed to show a bit of the occult as practiced in Haiti. When the whole thing is boiled down it is found that the production is based on the fact that several people, thought dead, have been placed in coffins and consigned to the grave. Lugosi goes around feeding people a potion which induces something very like death.

The relatives of the person concerned believing him deceased, bury him. After the burial Bela opens the grave, restores the "dead man" to consciousness and then places him under a hypontic spell. The hypnotized one thereafter is a slave to Mr. Lugosi.

You might say the entire thing is wildly fantastic and not find many brave enough to argue with you.

The supporting cast is composed of Brandon Hurst, Madge Bellamy, Joseph Cawthorn, Clarence Muse, John Peters and Robert Frazer.

Cohan Plans Plays For Season

George M. Cohan will not appear on the Broadway stage until late in November or possibly during the holidays, he makes known while completing work in his first talking motion picture, "The Phantom President" at the Paramount studios. He will open his Broadway producing season soon with an unannounced play which he purchased last year. This will be followed by an original play, "Go East, Young Man," which he is writing.

Roland Cast in 'Call Her Savage'

Gilbert Roland has been added to the cast of Clara Bow's first Fox picture, "Call Her Savage," Monroe Owsley, Thelma Todd and Willard Robertson will also play important roles.

Arliss' Ruin Is Fun in Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

George Arliss again is a sauve and adroit businessman in "A Successful Calamity," a light but extremely diverting comedy now on view in the Stanley. The fly in the ointment is that the star characterizes an elderly gentleman who is so lovable that he doesn't seem to fit one's mental concepton of a business man sufficiently hard-fisted to accumulate a fortune as a financier, which is what he seems to be.

The action, based on the Clare Kummer play, is centered in the efforts of Arliss to make his family realize there are pleasures in home life in measure far beyond that of stepping out. So he pretends to have become ruined, merely to get the family to remain one night at home, to see if they wouldn't like it. The result is more far-reaching than he anticipated. The family rallies round, ready to do their darnedest to help the old boy out—to the extent of hocking jewels and looking for jobs. Even the butler chips in.

But there is another result, too, which reveals the financier at work, as he pleasantly gouges a man with whom he had made a trade and who wouldn't stand by his agreement. But he does it with a smile and an I-told-you-I'd-get-you manner.

Arliss is polished and agreeably incisive. Mary Astor gives a nicely reserved portrayal of a faddy woman, his wife. Evalyn Knapp, as the daughter, and William Janney, as the son, are wholesome and appealing, as slightly but not altogether spoiled youngsters.

It is not much to talk about but is highly entertaining.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Humpty Dumpty" will close its engagement in the Nixon with tonight's performance, after which the new musical show will move on Washington for another tryout week before going into New York.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

BY MARK HELLINGER

Paid in Full

JOHN AND JIM. Pals. Buddies. Two kids who were always together, whether they were going to school, eating or fighting.

John was a neat lad. His hair was always parted and his shoes were always shined. He was a model student in school, and he was generally a jump ahead of the other kids when the questions were asked. Jim, on the other hand, was just about the direct opposite. He seldom wore a tie, and he always neglected his hair. In school he was a past master in the art of whaling the teacher with spit balls. And in mathematics his limit was reached in adding up the figures on two dice.

Accordingly, you can see that there wasn't much in common between John and Jim. Nevertheless, all through boyhood they were as close as the fenders on an Austin.

They were 19 years of age when John went to night school—and Jim went to reform school. When they emerged from their respective seats of learning John was an educated young man. But Jim had learned little more than the fact that a Jimmy is more than a name.

Thus you can see that the paths of these boys diverge at this point. John had determined to work his way up on the force. He was going to be a policeman. And Jim was determined to kill one . . .

Within a year John passed his Civil Service examination and was appointed to the force. And Jim had a checkered suit, a sport roadster and a definite entree to the worst society in the city.

They hadn't been seeing each other too frequently. And Jim was somewhat surprised to see John when the latter man cornered him one night in one of his favorite barrooms.

John came to the point immediately.

"I'm coming to you," he said, "because there's no place else I can turn. I need $200, and I need it badly. Can you help me out?"

The other man didn't hesitate for a second. He reached into a pocket and peeled two $100 bills from a large roll.

"Here you are, John," he stated as he handed over the money. "It's a pipe for me to help you out, and there's plenty more where that came from. But ain't this a little out of your line, if I ain't talkin' out of turn? Never heard of you borrowin' before."

The other man shrugged his shoulders.

"I never needed it that badly before," he returned. "I'll tell you the truth, Jim, and I'm sure you'll understand. There are plenty of things I can do in life and some folks may think I'm doing a foolish thing.

"I've been appointed to the police and—"

Jim stepped back. His voice was different from before.

"So you went and done it, eh? My old pal a cop!"

John nodded.

"Why not?" he said. "I expect to advance myself, and I know I will.

"My orders came in yesterday that I was to report for duty next week. I needed about $200 for the uniform and other equipment, and that's why I came to you. You're the only one I know who could be counted upon to lend me that much."

His old friend had listened with a wise look upon his face. As he spoke now, the sneer was obvious.

"You know, John," he murmured, "I think you're just a little bit dopey.

"If it ain't too late, why don't you get wise to yourself? A copper is just about the lowest thing you can be. Good night, guy—you got nerve and you got brains. I could put you in a spot where you could make a lot of dough. What do you want to be a snitcher for?"

John shifted from one foot to the other.

"I appreciate the loan of the 200 bucks," he said quietly, "but if you want to hand out any more of that line, I'll hand it back. You tell me to get wise to myself—but how about you? You keep hanging out with your mob of chiselers and cheap gunmen, and you'll wind up behind the eight ball. Now if you want your $200 back, say so."

Jim looked into the other man's eyes—and shifted his gaze.

"Naw, you keep it. It's your life, an' you can do like you want. Just one thing more. I ain't never gonna take that money back. I want to have the pleasure of knowin' that a copper owes me $200. So long, wise guy."

He turned his back. John hesitated, mumbled something—and left. Thus ended a friendship that dated back through the years . . .

As the story books have it—and as it sometimes goes in real life—John was now a sergeant. Headquarters had put him on plain clothes duty. For the time being, it was his job to memorize the weekly police folder that contained pictures and descriptions of suspects—and to bring in as many as he could find.

You know, of course, that John met Jim on this particular morning. He was walking across City Hall when he recognized the other man. He recognized him in spite of the old clothes, the hungry eyes, the dirty face.

John walked up to him. Jim turned to walk away.

"Just a minute, Jim," said John. "We won't have to talk any more than necessary. But I've been holding that $200 for you for a long time. I've only got $75 with me now and I want you to take that right away. I'll meet you anywhere you say in an hour and give you the rest."

Jim took the money.

"This helps," he said, "but I'm gonna make you hold on to the rest. Up to the day I croak, I'm gonna like the feelin' that I'm still owed money by a rat copper."

The policeman stiffened.

"Jim, you're a fool. I'm only trying to help you just the same as I always did. Yet you stand there and call me a rat. You don't seem to realize that you're just small fry. The police department can't do much with the big shots in the big rackets. Even I admit that. But when it comes to a small-time bum such as you've turned out to be, we can do a lot.

"You mugs haven't got a chance. Don't you know that? Here, take a look at this."

He reached into a pocket and drew forth the weekly police folder. He tapped it significantly.

"You can't beat this. Every cop in town has one. And if a guy thinks he can escape being picked up once his mug is in this folder, he's crazy.

"Take a look at it, Jim, and think it over. I'm going across the street to phone a report. I'll be right back."

John phoned his report. When he returned, the bum had disappeared. The folder lay open on the sidewalk. Uppermost was Jim's picture . . .

HOEL AND CUBA UPSET TACKLE DOPE

AFTER THANKSGIVING DAY last year Pitt's football followers began to wonder just what Coach Jock Sutherland would do in 1932 without the services of those two great tackles, Jim MacMurdo and Jess Quatse, who had just completed their college gridiron careers. Some of those who thought they saw the solution pointed to the very creditable performances of the sophomore understudies, Johnny Meredith and John (Moose) Love. That pair had played satisfactory football in substitute roles, and, while not performing with the offensive smoothness of the regular tackles, had appeared to be far from bad out there.

Bobby Hoel

At any rate, Meredith and Love were picked by the majority of observers to be the regular tackles this fall. The general opinion was that Coach Sutherland would find them the best men available for the posts left vacant by the passing of MacMurdo and Quatse. But strangely enough, neither Meredith nor Love is on the prospective first team.

MEREDITH HAS SEEN Paul Cuba, sturdy New Castle tackle, move ahead of him, and Love has been displaced by Bobby Hoel, sophomore ace from Evanston, Ill. The work of Cuba and Hoel has been surprisingly good so far, and it will not upset expectations if they form the starting pair against Ohio Northern next Saturday.

Cuba was Quatse's understudy in 1930, so that he is far from being an inexperienced player. Last season injuries held him back, but this year he appears determined to be in, and if he continues at his present pace, and Sophomore Hoel keeps on starring, Pitt may not miss MacMurdo or Quatse as greatly as was originally feared.

IT WAS A fine start to which football got away at Forbes Field last night, with 15,000 fans turning out and Duquesne getting off impressively on the right foot with a decisive 20-to-0 victory over hard-fighting Westminster.

The Dukes showed potential strength that warrants their followers in building high hopes. There are some kinks to be smoothed out, but the material is rich in promise of power and speed, and West Virginia, Pitt and other big foes can prepare for plenty of trouble.

WORLD SERIES ARRANGEMENTS have divulged the actual seating capacity of the Yankee Stadium for the first time since it was opened in 1923. The capacity has been variously reported at from 74,000 to 80,000. The actual figures are 69,003, the division being as follows: Lower grandstand, 21,347; messanine, 9,552; upper grandstand, 12,000; box seats, 4,104; bleachers, 22,000. A sell-out for any game in the New York end of the coming series would mean, without counting the intake from the scale of standing room beyond the seating limit of 69,003, receipts totaling $237,119. The record, set at the Stadium in 1928, is $224,130.*

Waite Hoyt

STRANGELY ENOUGH, ONE of the few Giants certain to be retained when Manager Bill Terry starts in on a big job of reconstruction for next year, is a man whom nobody wanted early this season. He is Pitcher Waite Hoyt, dropped by the Yankees, Tigers, A's and Dodgers since 1930.

Terry is sold on the veteran and points out that he has not pitched a poor game since he joined the Giants. "The signing of Hoyt is one move that stood up," the Giant manager said. "Waite has pitched splendidly for us, and he'll get a contract for next season, no worry about that."

TERRY PLANS WHOLESALE changes. Travis Jackson may be tried at third base, and Freddie Lindstrom, if he is not traded at his own request, may be shifted again, this time to shortstop. The decision to try Byrne James at second base this fall is believed to presage the going of Hughey Critz.

Joe Moore is fancied for an outfield berth, along with Mel Ott. Len Koenecke will get another trial in the third garden. Frank Hogan and Frank Healey are to do the catching, with Bob O'Farrell leaving.

FOOTBALL CRITICS ON the coast believe this is Pop Warner's year, and expect to see the old boy win the Pacific Conference championship for Stanford, incidentally scoring his first victory over Southern California since 1926. Warner is in the kind of spot he likes. He has the experts squabbling as to whether California or Southern California is going to win, and paying no attention to Stanford, where Pop is sitting back with a wealth of material. Warner couldn't ask for anything better. If he wins, then he's the Old Master again; if he loses, well, nobody expected him to win. Pop is helping things along in his own way, telling everybody that the Trojans and Bears are going to have powerful teams in view of their great material. Asked about Stanford, Pop replied, no doubt with an inward chuckle, "Stanford depends on superior coaching."

THERE APPEARS TO be little doubt in the minds of Chicago boxing promoters that Max Schmeling will defeat Mickey Walker next Friday night. Mique Malloy is trying to induce the Madison Square Garden bosses to let Jack Sharkey meet Schmeling for the heavyweight title at Soldier Fields in Chicago during the World Fair.

The same promoter is seeking to sign Schmeling for a match with Primo Carnera in Chicago on October 12 in a show for the Paddy Carr Memorial Fund. Carnera signed a blank contract for the match, and Malloy has offered Schmeling 42½ per cent.

DONIE BUSH, former manager of the Pirates, yesterday scored a success in the first year of his return to minor league piloting when his Minneapolis club clinched the American Association pennant, the first flag won by that city since Joe Cantillon's victory in 1915.

Bush used a bunch of veterans. His pitchers were Rube Benton, Jess Petty, Carmen Hill, Pete Donohue, Rosy Ryan, Dutch Henry and Elam Van Gilder. The infielders were Joe Hauser, Andy Cohen, Ganzel and Smith, and the outfielders, Harry Rice, Mowry and Ruble, with Richards and Griffin catching. Bush and Al Mamaux, Newark manager and also a former Pirate, will match wits in the little world series.

Mrs. J. H. Whitney

BELMONT PARK TODAY has the richest race the world over, the annual Futurity for 2-year-olds, which will be worth about $100,000 to the winner. Ladysman, owned by W. R. Coe, and the leading 2-year-old, will go to the post the strongest favorite in the history of the race except only Man o' War in 1919. If he wins, as appears probable, he will duplicate the 1915 feat of his daddy, Pompey, in taking both the Hopeful Stakes and the Futurity. Ladysman's strongest opposition, it is expected, will be offered by the Belair Stud's Happy Gal, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory and W. S. Kilmer's Sun Archer. The Futurity is at a little less than seven-eighths of a mile, over a straightaway course. It was first run in 1888 and gets its name from the fact that the horses are entered for it before they are born. The mare is nominated while on the breeding farm, and the colt or filly foaled later becomes eligible for the Futurity when 2 years old.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Pirates and Giants will make an effort to get together at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The contest scheduled for yesterday was called off on account of wet weather. It will be played off tomorrow as a part of a doubleheader.

The day of idleness brought little gladness to the Buccaneers. When the last returns from Philadelphia reached them they realized they were further away from the Cubs, who won a hairline decision over the Quakers at the Baker Bowl.

CUBS GAIN GROUND

The Buccos this morning were six full games below the league leaders. The Bruins have but nine more games to play, the Freebooters facing 11 unplayed contests. The fact that the Cubs must meet the Buccos in four games offers a little consolation, but the impending series between the two clubs won't have much pep unless the Pittsburghers have a mathematical chance to win when they reach Wrigley Field next Tuesday.

In any event, the Pirates have a double reason for fighting right down to the last ditch. The Pittsburghers are not sure of second place by any means, inasmuch as they are only three and one-half games ahead of the Dodgers. This fact alone would make the Buccos fight, but the more important consideration, of course, is the chance to overtaking the Bruins. The two-way incentive certainly should make the Buccos step on the gas.

Bill Swift was slated for action yesterday and he is the Pirate holdover for the game today. The Giants are likely to fight behind the southpaw slants of Bill Walker.

FINNEY REJOICES

So far on the last Eastern jaunt the Pirates have been a bit better than the 50-50 standard of play. They have won five of their nine games.

Perhaps the happiest member of the Buccaneer squad is Catcher Hal Finney, who handled the offerings of Heinie Meine as the Buccos won over the Braves Thursday.

Finney looked fine in the early weeks of the race; in fact, Manager Gibson decided to use him, but in his first joust he was struck on the throwing arm with one of Pat Malone's fast balls. The result was a fracture and Hal tearfully left the lineup for months.

OUTBOARD RACE TOMORROW

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(Universal.)—Tomorrow, in the World's Fair lagoon, the outboard motor drivers hold their first championship congress in Chicago.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner, in conjunction with the Century of Progress Exposition, has arranged for these competitions, and the William Randolph Hearst gold cup, for which the drivers will compete represents the most magnificent trophy ever offered speedboat competition anywhere.

So, while this is the first time the outboard drivers have come to Chicago on competition bent, the occasion will be a memorable one on many counts.

They have come, these drivers, from all parts of the United States. They represent the best that there are in drivers and craft, and they are prepared for a day of sensational racing with all its kindred thrills and dangers.

The program calls for 25 races, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and continuing at 20-minute intervals until 6 o'clock in the evening.

Quarton Scores Kayo In North Side Bout

Otto Quarton, of the Ambridge A. C., recorded the only knockout in the amateur show presented by the Twenty-seventh Ward Athletic Club on the North Side last night. He knocked out Johnny Fleishman, of Natrona, in the second round. The summary:

112-pound class—Nick Gorode, Natrona, defeated Andy DeSanto, Kittanning, 3 rounds.

118-pound class—Joe Clark, Superior A. C., defeated Gene Pier, North Side A. C., 3 rounds.

126-pound class—Nick Rossi, Verona, defeated Jimmy Jones, Natrona, 3 rounds.

135-pound class—Joe Thomas, unattached, defeated Eddie McNamara, Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., 3 rounds.

160-pound class—Joe Jeffrys, North Side A. C., defeated Buck Walker, Natrona, 3 rounds.

RICH FUTURITY RACE TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The fleetest of the nation's juveniles matched speed and stamina in the 43rd running of the Futurity at Belmont Park today.

Fourteen speedsters, 12 colts and two fillies, were named overnight for the seven-furlong dash, carrying with it a purse of $111,500 and the two-year-old title.

The standout in the field was W. R. Coe's Ladysman, whose daddy, Pompey, won the Futurity in 1925. Ladysman has been the most consistent winner among this season's juveniles and has earned $101,135, chiefly through his victories in the Hopeful and Arlington Park futurity.

After Ladysman, turf experts liked best the chances of W. S. Kilmer's Sun Archer and William Woodward's crack filly, Happy Gal, with H. C. Phipps' De Valera another highly regarded entrant.

Ladysman was to shoulder 130 pounds along with C. V. Whitney's Caterwaul, top weight in the field. Happy Gal was in at 124, Sun Archer at 122 and De Valera at 117.

Completing the field, as nominated last night, was Pompoleon, coupled with Ladysman as the Coe entry; Sun Alley, coupled with Sun Archer as the Kilmer entry; Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory; E. R. Bradley's Barn Swallow; Mrs. Payne Whitney's Dynastic and Jungle King; F. A. Griffiths' Sarada; Mrs. T. J. Lewis' Fingal, and Leo Rosenberg's Kerry Patch.

Should the 14 eligibles go to the post the winner's share of the purse would be close to $95,000.

OLDTIMERS TO PLAY

Shades of yesteryear will return at Brentwood Park tomorrow afternoon when a team of local old-time baseball favorites will clash with the Snee team in a game. Honus Wagner, Kimer Knetzer, Jack Barrett, Otto Jordan, Carl Jordan and others will appear with the old-timers.

Horse Pays Back $221.20 for $2 At Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Rube Samuelson, in winning the sixth race, a mile and a furlong for 3-year-olds and up, paid backers $221.20 for $2 in the pari-mutuels at the Hagerstown fair yesterday.

Only $28 worth of straight tickets were sold on the 5-year-old son of Rire Aux Larmes and Margaretta E., which had not won a race in two years.

One $10 straight ticket was sold to Sherwood Smith, of New York, who said he was "just fooling around." Smith collected $1,106 on his investment.

The horse was the first better than a 100-to-1 shot to win in Maryland in several years. Rube Samuelson is owned by G. B. Gochnauer. Heather Moon, racing here on May 27, 1919, paid $499.20 for a $2 ticket.

Mrs. Josephson Cops Woschengo Title

Mrs. Carrie Josephson defeated Mrs. Margaret Curry, the women's city golf champion, on the twenty-first hole yesterday to win the Woschengo Club title for 1932. The Woschengo Club is a women's organization at the Schenley public links.

Mrs. Josephson was 1 up at the end of the first nine, but Mrs. Curry squared the match on the eighteenth and sent the play into extra holes.

Regis Wolff, former district junior champion, and Mrs. Ted Davies led the field in the mixed foursome tourney at Highland yesterday, having a low gross score of 41-45—86. Richard Boucek and Mrs. W. S. Langfitt finished second with an 89.

POLO TILT POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Postponement of the Monty Waterbury cup polo final until tomorrow was announced last night by the United States Polo Association. The final, between Tommy Hitchcock's Sands Point four and Earle W. Hopping's Easterns was to have been played today, but a heavy rain forced officials to set it back one day.

MILLERS WIN A. A. FLAG

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—It took a long, long time—17 years—but Minneapolis today had caught up with the American Association championship.

The Millers, considered "in" for the past month, yesterday put the clincher on the title by beating St. Paul, the 1931 champion, 9 to 1. Rosy Bill Bryan did a workmanlike job of pitching and his mates backed him up with the proper kind of hitting, and the long battle was over.

The title is Minneapolis' first since 1915 and its fifth in the history of the league. Previously, in 1910-11-12, the Millers won under the leadership of the late Joe Cantillon, who also was at the helm in 1915.

This year brought in Donie Bush to lead the club on the field. With an assortment of youngsters and veterans, Bush moved the club out in front early in July, slipped a little, then cut loose and went on to win easily.

Douglas Captures Senior Golf Title

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Findlay S. Douglas, winner of the national amateur golf title in 1929, today was crowned champion of the United States Senior Golf Association after four days of play in which 300 veterans competed at the Apawamis Club.

R. W. Smith, the Western Pennsylvania senior champion, turned in a card of 165-10—155 in the Class E, 55 to 59 years. Scores of other Western Pennsylvania entries follow:

Class C, 65 to 69 years old—T. S. Jamison, Greensburg and Oakmont, 172-29—144; C. B. Hollingsworth, Greensburg, 184-30—154; John M. Jamison, Greensburg, 182-26—156; 55 to 59 years, D. H. Hudson, Greensburg, 201-40—161; Thomas McGraw, Jr., Oakmont, 186-24—162.

GOODMAN U. S. HOPE AGAINST CANADIAN

BULLETIN.

FIVE FARMS COURSE, BALTIMORE COUNTRY CLUB, Sept. 17.—C. Ross Somerville was leading Johny Goodman, 1 up, after three holes of their 36-hole match for the United States amateur golf championship here today. The Canadian won the first and third holes, and Goodman annexed the second.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Johnny Goodman, the young Nebraskan who wasn't good enough to represent Uncle Sam in the recent Walker Cup matches, today carried America's hopes in the first international battle for the National Amateur golf championship since 1928.

The 22-year-old star from Omaha, who is the youngest finalist since Bobby Jones first won in 1924, was paired with Ross (Sandy) Somerville, the steady-shooting Canadian from London, Ontario, in the 36-hole final over Five Farms course here.

Goodman was left off the Walker Cup team when the United States Golf Association made its selections in June. He wasn't considered a good enough match player.

OUIMET DEFEATED

Yesterday Goodman defeated the defending champion, who also was captain of the American Cup team in the engagements with the British squad, in the semi-finals, 4 and 2. Francis Ouimet was the third successive Walker Cup nominee Goodman had repulsed. Previously he took the measure of Charles Seaver and Maurice McCarthy.

Somerville passed into the championship round with a 7 and 6 victory over Jesse Guilford, of Boston, the 1921 titleholder. Not since Bobby Jones turned back Phil Perkins, of England, four years ago has the shadow of a foreign threat fallen over the late stages of this tournament.

Only once, when Harold Hilton, of Liverpool, England, won in 1911, has the American championship left this country, but Somerville was conceded a fair chance to carry the handsome trophy to Canada.

FINALISTS IMPRESSIVE

Both finalists have reached the match play rounds of this tournament four times, but never before have been able to survive the "sudden death" 18-hole skirmishes of the opening day. Goodman's record probably is more impressive, for he upset Bobby Jones in the opening match at Pebble Beach in 1929. And in defeating Chandler Egan, McCarthy, Seaver and Ouimet he downed four of the best players in this tournament.

Goodman is only a few months older than was Jones when Bobby won his first amateur crown and should he win today he will be the youngest champion in eight years.

Mrs. Van Ryn, Grant Win Doubles Match

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, and Bryant Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., defeated Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, and John Olliff, of Great Britain, 9-7, 6-3 here yesterday in an exhibition match opening the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament.

In another exhibition match, Georgio De Stefani, Italian champion, and Edward Avery, of Great Britain, defeated Taki Kuwabara, of Japan, and Henry Prusoff, Pacific Northwest champion, of Seattle, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—I haven't seen any Department of Labor statistics on same, but rumor factories are now running full blast and have called 30,000 men back to work.

Before the autumn leaves have been shaken down, you'll hear that Babe Ruth is going to own the Red Sox next year, Henry Ford is going to manage the Detroit Tigers, the New York Giants are going to trade a pitcher and three outfielders to the Metropolitan Opera in exchange for the "Lucia" sextet, and the St. Louis Browns' franchise will be moved to Boise City, Idaho.

And even if there isn't a caraway seed of truth in them, it'll still help out the nation's unemployment problem. For after three years of idle rumors, it's nice to see some of them at work.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Rout

Autumn shall bring no rebirth of desire,
Gladly I drop my mad and futile quest;
Try as you may to stir the dying fire,
I will greet love as my unwelcome guest.

Let the mad winds go howling through the town,
They have no gift to wound my feeble pride;
You are but one more torture written down,
You are but one more tiny dream that died.

I am gone sick of eerie ghosts that creep
Down old unbidden highways of my past;
Is it not time to leave the dead asleep—
Is it not time to keep our humble fast?

What can you gain by stabbing at a foe

Too Great a Risk

Just before Jimmy Walker suddenly sailed for the old country, one of the revusical producers who was stuck for a big name in his troupe, decided that a sensational headliner would be the former Mayor.

He raced to a phone and called the Mayfair House:

"Mr. Walker," said a voice, "is still sleeping. He can't be disturbed."

The producer looked at his watch. It read 3:30 p. m.

"The deuce with it," he said to himself, "he'd never make the the matinees, anyway!"

And They Gas Tanks!

Ide Gruber is in again. This time she can make up a sentence with the first name of Ozzie Nelson, the orchestra leader, like this:

"Ozzie can you see?"

Ouch!

Then there was the time Wilson Mizner was haled to court after a card-game raid. The district attorney asked Mizner what he thought of the intelligence of the man who ran the game.

"Int'l'gence?" growled Mizner, "why he has so few brains—he could wear a demi-tasse for a high hat!"

Heheheh

Ethel Whitton, of Chicago, would have you believe that a local theater's marquee lights billed a double feature in this manner:

"Winner Take All," and, "My Wife's Family."

There, Now!

Raymond Ally Smith was riding on a trolley the other afternoon and overheard a fussy woman interfering with a young mother who was having some difficulty carrying her infant.

"Huh," huh'd the fussy one, "a woman ought never to have a child until she learns how to hold one!"

To which the young mother responded:

"Nor a tongue, either!"

Berlesque

"Richy Craig, Jr.," memos Jerry Mann, "will never have to worry about playing to an empty house. Milton Berle will always be out front."

Then Came the War

"Dear Walter," night-letters Richy Craig, Jr., "while in Chicago last week the Garrick Theater went Minsky and opened up as a burlesque house. The third night they had a big fire, and the funny part about it is that when the firemen entered the theater the actors gave the best performance since they opened . . . They were so happy to see people coming in.

"There wasn't much damage—except all the costumes were burned—two hats and a yard of chiffon . . . No one was hurt, except two firemen who were overcome by women.

"When one of the firemen took off his shirt, the audience whistled and applauded . . . They thought it was another strip number!" — Faithfully, Richy.

"P. S. Please be sure and send Berle his copy."

Hi, Lee!

Lee Wahl interrupts an otherwise peaceful column with: At last we've got what the country needs—a good five-cent subway!

That new subway is a break for the ladies, at that. There's more room for them to stand.

Ask Me Another!

"Dear Mr. Winchell," affectionately writes Margaret Conklin, of the editorial dep't for The Macmillan Company, "we have sent you a copy of 'Behind the Door of Delusion' by 'Inmate Ward 8.' Many editors and columnists throughout the country are trying to guess who the author is. I wonder if you know."

Certnee! We met in the same asylum.

"I tried one of your cocktail recipes and then attempted to drive my car home. Instead I went to the hospital for two months. I thought maybe it would make you happy to know what you do to some people, you gangster! I am writing a longer letter to the paper about you and one to the government, which ought to stop anyone like you who prints how to drink and violate the 18th amendment. Whitewashing Black Sheep

Variety has this to say (among other things) of "Okay America!" the last of the columnist cycle of movies:

"What every film maker has lost sight of . . . seems to have been the necessity to concisely characterize this new journalistic upstart . . . The actual Broadway columnist is a more or less innocuous person . . . for all the propaganda to the contrary."

We consider ourself "an actual Broadway columnist," and a villain! If Variety wishes to infer that our competitors are sissies, that's all right with us, because they are!

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well let's see what's in the news that's fit to reprint today? Al Smith had one of the finest and most fearless articles in this week's S. E. Post. Why is it he is about the only politician on either side that can write on a subject and you can tell where he stands?

Will Rogers

Roosevelt is headed West, "says he is just out to meet the folks." But he will give preference to any one of legal age, and a registered voter. Mr. Hoover, who originally wasn't going further West during the campaign than the Potomac, has started looking at time tables. Politicians in order to hold the real dyed-in-the-wool radio nut, are crooning their speeches.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

Chevalier As A Tuneful Tailor

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Something new in the world of pictures was revealed at the Penn Theater yesterday. It is called "Love Me Tonight," and Maurice Chevalier is the pivot on which it turns. He is a tuneful Parisian tailor who allows a scapegrace vicomte to run up too big a bill, and then follows him to his uncle's chateau to collect it. The vicomte introduces him as a baron, and he has to play the part. The beautiful princess falls in love with him—and it all ends just as a Grimm or Andersen fairy tale should.

Mr. Seibel

But Chevalier is only the pivot on which the thing turns. You may admire him as France's gift to Vassar and Bryn Mawr, or you may think he is just another Bill Haines with an accent and an ingratiating grin. He's at his best here.

But two other men are responsible for this gem of musical pictures. The director was Rouben Mamoulian, and he has produced a sequence of views that are both artistic and dramatic. There are woodland scenes as beautiful as Corot; and there are glimpses of Paris that are truly poetic. No picture in years has had so many exquisite backgrounds, so much jeweled photography, so continuous a dramatic progression. Mamoulian has turned out a masterpiece. But the other man, who must have written the libretto, is Samuel Hoffenstein, who can turn a rhyme as neatly as W. S. Gilbert and has a real Gilbertian sense of humor.

These two men are geniuses—and their work is what makes "Love Me Tonight" memorable as a picture or as a burlesque symphony. It has some songs that are full of melody and fun, especially "The Son-of-a-Gun is Nothing But a Tailor" and the "Mimi" ballad. "Isn't It Romantic" and "Love Me Tonight" also are infectious. The handling of the choruses must give the jaded listener and looker a thrill of joy. After reels of stupidity here is imagination!

Besides Chevalier, who is at his best, there's Jeannette MacDonald, lovely and sweet as the princess. Aubrey Smith, Charlie Ruggles and Myrna Loy have opportunities to shine. And there is a deer that's a dear! Whether to laugh, or to revel in sparkling music of airy texture, or to lose yourself in visual vistas of romantic charm, "Love Me Tonight" is a treat to the fastidious.

An amusing "Mickey Mouse" cartoon, a fast-moving farce of the Taxi Boys, and varied news pictures do not need to be mentioned. "Love Me Tonight" is quite enough to satisfy anybody with taste.

Arliss' Ruin Is Fun in Stanley

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

George Arliss again is a [illegible] and adroit business[illegible]. Successful Cal[illegible] extremely [illegible] on view [illegible] the ointf[illegible] acterizes [illegible] is so lovab[illegible] to fit one's [illegible] business ma[illegible] fisted to accu[illegible] a financier, [illegible] seems to be.

The action, b[illegible] Kummer play, is [illegible] efforts of Arliss to [illegible] ily realize there ar[illegible] home life in measu[illegible] that of stepping out [illegible] tends to have become ruined, merely to get the family to remain one night at home, to see if they wouldn't like it. The result is more far-reaching than he anticipated. The family rallies round, ready to do their darnedest to help the old boy out—to the extent of hocking jewels and looking for jobs. Even the butler chips in.

But there is another result, too, which reveals the financier at work, as he pleasantly gouges a man with whom he had made a trade and who wouldn't stand by his agreement. But he does it with a smile and an I-told-you-I'd-get-you manner.

Arliss is polished and agreeably incisive. Mary Astor gives a nicely reserved portrayal of a faddy woman, his wife. Evalyn Knapp, as the daughter, and William Janney, as the son, are wholesome and appealing, as slightly but not altogether spoiled youngsters.

It is not much to talk about but is highly entertaining.

Vail in Pitt For Stock

Ed Vail who has been busy for several months arranging to reopen the Pitt Theater as a stock house, has completed his plans sufficiently to announce that the theater will reopen under his management on October 3, and that the resident company will be known as the Edwin Vail Players.

Mr. Vail, who has been in New York for some time, is expected to return Monday with the roster of players he has engaged and the names of plays contracted for. He knows the stage of the Pitt very well, since he was long employed there as character actor and director in the George Sharp Players.

Maureen O'Sullivan Signs for Lead

Maureen O'Sullivan has been signed to play the leading feminine role in George O'Brien's Fox picture, "Robbers' Roost," which is now being adapted from the Zane Grey novel of that name. This marks the return of Miss O'Sullivan, after an absence of more than a year, to the company that discovered her in Ireland and gave her her first movie chance in "Song o' My Heart."

Bela Lugosi In Warner

By EDWARD W. GOSS

Bela Lugosi's latest "thrill" picture, "White Zombie," current in the Warner, is second rate cinema entertainment.

Mr. Lugosi tries hard enough to send the customers away talking in whispers and throwing quick glances over their shoulders to make certain no tenant of the world beneath is tracking them down but he falls short. The good old creeps are missing from the picture. All the approved mechanics are used—coffins, staring eyes, black nooks, harsh and eerie noises and lighting effects. They give the impression of being hooked onto the picture, and not woven smoothly into the action.

"White Zombie" is supposed to show a bit of the occult as practiced in Haiti. When the whole thing is boiled down it is found that the production is based on the fact that several people, thought dead, have been placed in coffins and consigned to the grave. Lugosi goes around feeding people a potion which induces something very like death.

The relatives of the person concerned believing him deceased, bury him. After the burial Bela opens the grave, restores the "dead man" to consciousness and then places him under a hypontic spell. The hypnotized one thereafter is a slave to Mr. Lugosi.

You might say the entire thing is wildly fantastic and not find many brave enough to argue with you.

The supporting cast is composed of Brandon Hurst, Madge Bellamy, Joseph Cawthorn, Clarence Muse, John Peters and Robert Frazer.

Cohan Plans Plays For Season

George M. Cohan will not appear on the Broadway stage until late in November or possibly during the holidays, he makes known while completing work in his first talking motion picture, "The Phantom President" at the Paramount studios. He will open his Broadway producing season soon with an unannounced play which he purchased last year. This will be followed by an original play, "Go East, Young Man," which he is writing.

Roland Cast in 'Call Her Savage'

Gilbert Roland has been added to the cast of Clara Bow's first Fox picture, "Call Her Savage." Monroe Owsley, Thelma Todd and Willard Robertson will also play important roles.

HOEL AND CUBA UPSET TACKLE DOPE

AFTER THANKSGIVING DAY last year Pitt's football followers began to wonder just what Coach Jock Sutherland would do in 1932 without the services of those two great tackles, Jim MacMurdo and Jess Quatse, who had just completed their college gridiron careers. Some of those who thought they saw the solution pointed to the very creditable performances of the sophomore understudies, Johnny Meredith and John (Moose) Love. That pair had played satisfactory football in substitute roles, and, while not performing with the offensive smoothness of the regular tackles, had appeared to be far from bad out there.

Bobby Hoel

At any rate, Meredith and Love were picked by the majority of observers to be the regular tackles this fall. The general opinion was that Coach Sutherland would find them the best men available for the posts left vacant by the passing of MacMurdo and Quatse. But strangely enough, neither Meredith nor Love is on the prospective first team.

MEREDITH HAS SEEN Paul Cuba, sturdy New Castle tackle, move ahead of him, and Love has been displaced by Bobby Hoel, sophomore ace from Evanston, Ill. The work of Cuba and Hoel has been surprisingly good so far, and it will not upset expectations if they form the starting pair against Ohio Northern next Saturday.

Cuba was Quatse's understudy in 1930, so that he is far from being an inexperienced player. Last season injuries held him back, but this year he appears determined to be in, and if he continues at his present pace, and Sophomore Hoel keeps on starring, Pitt may not miss MacMurdo or Quatse as greatly as was originally feared. feared.

IT WAS A fine start to which football got away at Forbes Field last night, with 15,000 fans turning out and Duquesne getting off impressively on the right foot with a decisive 20-to-0 victory over hard-fighting Westminster.

The Dukes showed potential strength that warrants their followers in building high hopes. There are some kinks to be smoothed out, but the material is rich in promise of power and speed, and West Virginia, Pitt and other big foes can prepare for plenty of trouble.

WORLD SERIES ARRANGEMENTS have divulged the actual seating capacity of the Yankee Stadium for the first time since it was opened in 1923. The capacity has been variously reported at from 74,000 to 80,000. The actual figures are 69,003, the division being as follows: Lower grandstand, 21,347; mezzanine, 9,552; upper grandstand, 12,000; box seats, 4,104; bleachers, 22,000. A sell-out for any game in the New York end of the coming series would mean, without counting the intake from the scale of standing room beyond the seating limit of 69,003, receipts totaling $237,119. The record, set at the Stadium in 1928, is $224,130.

Waite Hoyt

STRANGELY ENOUGH, ONE of the few Giants certain to be retained when Manager Bill Terry starts in on a big job of reconstruction for next year, is a man whom nobody wanted early this season. He is Pitcher Waite Hoyt, dropped by the Yankees, Tigers, A's and Dodgers since 1930.

Terry is sold on the veteran and points out that he has not pitched a poor game since he joined the Giants. "The signing of Hoyt is one move that stood up," the Giant manager said. "Waite has pitched splendidly for us, and he'll get a contract for next season, no worry about that."

TERRY PLANS WHOLESALE changes. Travis Jackson may be tried at third base, and Freddie Lindstrom, if he is not traded at his own request, may be shifted again, this time to shortstop. The decision to try Byrne James at second base this fall is believed to presage the going of Hughey Critz.

Joe Moore is fancied for an outfield berth, along with Mel Ott. Len Koenecke will get another trial in the third garden. Frank Hogan and Frank Healey are to do the catching, with Bob O'Farrell leaving.

FOOTBALL CRITICS ON the coast believe this is Pop Warner's year, and expect to see the old boy win the Pacific Conference championship for Stanford, incidentally scoring his first victory over Southern California since 1926. Warner is in the kind of spot he likes. He has the experts squabbling as to whether California or Southern California is going to win, and paying no attention to Stanford, where Pop is sitting back with a wealth of material. Warner couldn't ask for anything better. If he wins, then he's the Old Master again; if he loses, well, nobody expected him to win. Pop is helping things along in his own way, telling everybody that the Trojans and Bears are going to have powerful teams in view of their great material. Asked about Stanford, Pop replied, no doubt with an inward chuckle, "Stanford depends on superior coaching."

THERE APPEARS TO be little doubt in the minds of Chicago boxing promoters that Max Schmeling will defeat Mickey Walker next Friday night. Mique Malloy is trying to induce the Madison Square Garden bosses to let Jack Sharkey meet Schmeling for the heavyweight title at Soldier Fields in Chicago during the World Fair.

The same promoter is seeking to sign Schmeling for a match with Primo Carnera in Chicago on October 12 in a show for the Paddy Carr Memorial Fund. Carnera signed a blank contract for the match, and Malloy has offered Schmeling 42½ per cent.

DONIE BUSH, former manager of the Pirates, yesterday scored a success in the first year of his return to minor league piloting when his Minneapolis club clinched the American Association pennant, the first flag won by that city since Joe Cantillon's victory in 1915.

Bush used a bunch of veterans. His pitchers were Rube Benton, Jess Petty, Carmen Hill, Pete Donohue, Rosy Ryan, Dutch Henry and Elam Van Gilder. The infielders were Joe Hauser, Andy Cohen, Ganzel and Smith, and the outfielders, Harry Rice, Mowry and Ruble, with Richards and Griffin catching. Bush and Al Mamaux, Newark manager and also a former Pirate, will match wits in the little world series.

BELMONT PARK TODAY has the richest race the world over, the annual Futurity for 2-year-olds, which will be worth about $100,000 to the winner. Ladysman, owned by W. R. Coe, and the leading 2-year-old, will go to the post the strongest favorite in the history of the race except only Man o' War in 1919. If he wins, as appears probable, he will duplicate the 1915 feat of his daddy, Pompey, in taking both the Hopeful Stakes and the Futurity. Ladysman's strongest opposition, it is expected, will be offered by the Belair Stud's Happy Gal, Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory and W. S. Kilmer's Sun Archer. The Futurity is at a little less than seven-eighths of a mile, over a straightaway course. It was first run in 1888 and gets its name from the fact that the horses are entered for it before they are born. The mare is nominated while on the breeding farm, and the colt or filly foaled later becomes eligible for the Futurity when 2 years old.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Pirates and Giants will make an effort to get together at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The contest scheduled for yesterday was called off on account of wet weather. It will be played off tomorrow as a part of a doubleheader.

The day of idleness brought little gladness to the Buccaneers. When the last returns from Philadelphia reached them they realized they were further away from the Cubs, who won a hairline decision over the Quakers at the Baker Bowl.

CUBS GAIN GROUND

The Buccos this morning were six full games below the league leaders. The Bruins have but nine more games to play, the Freebooters facing 11 unplayed contests. The fact that the Cubs must meet the Buccos in four games offers a little consolation, but the impending series between the two clubs won't have much pep unless the Pittsburghers have a mathematical chance to win when they reach Wrigley Field next Tuesday.

In any event, the Pirates have a double reason for fighting right down to the last ditch. The Pittsburghers are not sure of second place by any means, inasmuch as they are only three and one-half games ahead of the Dodgers. This fact alone would make the Buccos fight, but the more important consideration, of course, is the chance to overtaking the Bruins. The two-way incentive certainly should make the Buccos step on the gas.

Bill Swift was slated for action yesterday and he is the Pirate holdover for the game today. The Giants are likely to fight behind the southpaw slants of Bill Walker.

FINNEY REJOICES

So far on the last Eastern jaunt the Pirates have been a bit better than the 50-50 standard of play. They have won five of their nine games.

Perhaps the happiest member of the Buccaneer squad is Catcher Hal Finney, who handled the offerings of Heinie Meine as the Buccos won over the Braves Thursday.

Finney looked fine in the early weeks of the race; in fact, Manager Gibson decided to use him, but in his first joust he was struck on the throwing arm with one of Pat Malone's fast balls. The result was a fracture and Hal tearfully left the lineup for months.

OUTBOARD RACE TOMORROW

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(Universal.)—Tomorrow, in the World's Fair lagoon, the outboard motor drivers hold their first championship congress in Chicago.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner, in conjunction with the Century of Progress Exposition, has arranged for these competitions, and the William Randolph Hearst gold cup, for which the drivers will compete represents the most magnificent trophy ever offered speedboat competition anywhere.

So, while this is the first time the outboard drivers have come to Chicago on competition bent, the occasion will be a memorable one on many counts.

They have come, these drivers, from all parts of the United States. They represent the best that there are in drivers and craft, and they are prepared for a day of sensational racing with all its kindred thrills and dangers.

The program calls for 25 races, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and continuing at 20-minute intervals until 6 o'clock in the evening.

Quarton Scores Kayo In North Side Bout

Otto Quarton, of the Ambridge A. C., recorded the only knockout in the amateur show presented by the Twenty-seventh Ward Athletic Club on the North Side last night. He knocked out Johnny Fleishman, of Natrona, in the second round. The summary:

112-pound class—Nick Gorode, Natrona, defeated Andy DeSanto, Kittanning, 3 rounds.

118-pound class—Joe Clark, Superior A. C., defeated Gene Pier, North Side A. C., 3 rounds.

126-pound class—Nick Rossi, Verona, defeated Jimmy Jones, Natrona, 3 rounds.

135-pound class—Joe Thomas, unattached, defeated Eddie McNamara, Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., 3 rounds.

160-pound class—Joe Jeffrys, North Side A. C., defeated Buck Walker, Natrona, 3 rounds.

RICH FUTURITY RACE TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The fleetest of the nation's juveniles matched speed and stamina in the 43rd running of the Futurity at Belmont Park today.

Fourteen speedsters, 12 colts and two fillies, were named overnight for the seven-furlong dash, carrying with it a purse of $111,500 and the two-year-old title.

The standout in the field was W. R. Coe's Ladysman, whose daddy, Pompey, won the Futurity in 1925. Ladysman has been the most consistent winner among this season's juveniles and has earned $101,135, chiefly through his victories in the Hopeful and Arlington Park futurity.

After Ladysman, turf experts liked best the chances of W. S. Kilmer's Sun Archer and William Woodward's crack filly, Happy Gal, with H. C. Phipps' De Valera another highly regarded entrant.

Ladysman was to shoulder 130 pounds along with C. V. Whitney's Caterwaul, top weight in the field. Happy Gal was in at 124, Sun Archer at 122 and De Valera at 117.

Completing the field, as nominated last night, was Pompoleon, coupled with Ladysman as the Coe entry; Sun Alley, coupled with Sun Archer as the Kilmer entry; Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Crowning Glory; E. R. Bradley's Barn Swallow; Mrs. Payne Whitney's Dynastic and Jungle King; F. A. Griffiths' Sarada; Mrs. T. J. Lewis' Fingal, and Leo Rosenberg's Kerry Patch.

Should the 14 eligibles go to the post the winner's share of the purse would be close to $95,000.

OLD TIMERS TO PLAY

Shades of yesteryear will return at Brentwood Park tomorrow afternoon when a team of local old-time baseball favorites will clash with the Knee team in a game. Honus Wagner, Elmer Knetzer, Jack Barrett, Otto Jordan, Carl Jordan and others will appear with the old-timers.

Horse Pays Back $221.20 for $2 At Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Rube Samuelson, in winning the sixth race, a mile and a furlong for 3-year-olds and up, paid backers $221.20 for $2 in the pari-mutuels at the Hagerstown fair yesterday.

Only $28 worth of straight tickets were sold on the 5-year-old son of Rire Aux Larmes and Margaretta E., which had not won a race in two years.

One $10 straight ticket was sold to Sherwood Smith, of New York, who said he was "just fooling around." Smith collected $1,106 on his investment.

The horse was the first better than a 100-to-1 shot to win in Maryland in several years. Rube Samuelson is owned by G. B. Gochnauer. Heather Moon, racing here on May 27, 1919, paid $499.20 for a $2 ticket.

Mrs. Josephson Cops Woschengo Title

Mrs. Carrie Josephson defeated Mrs. Margaret Curry, the women's city golf champion, on the twenty-first hole yesterday to win the Woschengo Club title for 1932. The Woschengo Club is a women's organization at the Schenley public links.

Mrs. Josephson was 1 up at the end of the first nine, but Mrs. Curry squared the match on the eighteenth and sent the play into extra holes.

Regis Wolff, former district junior champion, and Mrs. Ted Davies led the field in the mixed foursome tourney at Highland yesterday, having a low gross score of 41-45—86. Richard Boucek and Mrs. W. S. Langfitt finished second with an 89.

POLO TILT POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Postponement of the Monty Waterbury cup polo final until tomorrow was announced last night by the United States Polo Association. The final, between Tommy Hitchcock's Sands Point four and Earle W. Hopping's Eastcotts was to have been played today, but a heavy rain forced officials to set it back one day.

MILLERS WIN A. A. FLAG

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—It took a long, long time—17 years—but Minneapolis today had caught up with the American Association championship.

The Millers, considered "in" for the past month, yesterday put the clincher on the title by beating St. Paul, the 1931 champion, 9 to 1. Rosy Bill Bryan did a workmanlike job of pitching and his mates backed him up with the proper kind of hitting, and the long battle was over.

The title is Minneapolis' first since 1915 and its fifth in the history of the league. Previously, in 1910-11-12, the Millers won under the leadership of the late Joe Cantillon, who also was at the helm in 1915.

This year brought in Donie Bush to lead the club on the field. With an assortment of youngsters and veterans, Bush moved the club out in front early in July, slipped a little, then cut loose and went on to win easily.

Douglas Captures Senior Golf Title

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Findlay S. Douglas, winner of the national amateur golf title in 1929, today was crowned champion of the United States Senior Golf Association after four days of play in which 300 veterans competed at the Apawamis Club.

R. W. Smith, the Western Pennsylvania senior champion, turned in a card of 165-10—155 in the Class E, 55 to 59 years. Scores of other Western Pennsylvania entries follow:

Class C, 65 to 69 years old—T. S. Jamison, Greensburg and Oakmont, 172-29—144; C. B. Hollingsworth, Greensburg, 184-30—154; John M. Jamison, Greensburg, 182-26—156; 55 to 59 years, D. H. Hudson, Greensburg, 201-40—161; Thomas McGraw, Jr., Oakmont, 186-24—162.

GOODMAN U. S. HOPE AGAINST CANADIAN

BULLETIN.

FIVE FARMS COURSE, BALTIMORE COUNTRY CLUB, Sept. 17.—C. Ross Somerville was leading Johny Goodman, 1 up, after three holes of their 36-hole match for the United States amateur golf championship here today. The Canadian won the first and third holes, and Goodman annexed the second.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Johnny Goodman, the young Nebraskan who wasn't good enough to represent Uncle Sam in the recent Walker Cup matches, today carried America's hopes in the first international battle for the National Amateur golf championship since 1928.

The 22-year-old star from Omaha, who is the youngest finalist since Bobby Jones first won in 1924, was paired with Ross (Sandy) Somerville, the steady-shooting Canadian from London, Ontario, in the 36-hole final over Five Farms course here.

Goodman was left off the Walker Cup team when the United States Golf Association made its selections in June. He wasn't considered a good enough match player.

OUIMET DEFEATED

Yesterday Goodman defeated the defending champion, who also was captain of the American Cup team in the engagements with the British squad, in the semi-finals, 4 and 2. Francis Ouimet was the third successive Walker Cup nominee Goodman had repulsed. Previously he took the measure of Charles Seaver and Maurice McCarthy.

Somerville passed into the championship round with a 7 and 6 victory over Jesse Guilford, of Boston, the 1921 titleholder. Not since Bobby Jones turned back Phil Perkins, of England, four years ago has the shadow of a foreign threat fallen over the late stages of this tournament.

Only once, when Harold Hilton, of Liverpool, England, won in 1911, has the American championship left this country, but Somerville was conceded a fair chance to carry the handsome trophy to Canada.

FINALISTS IMPRESSIVE

Both finalists have reached the match play rounds of this tournament four times, but never before have been able to survive the "sudden death" 18-hole skirmishes of the opening day. Goodman's record probably is more impressive, for he upset Bobby Jones in the opening match at Pebble Beach in 1929. And in defeating Chandler Egan, McCarthy, Seaver and Ouimet he downed four of the best players in this tournament.

Goodman is only a few months older than was Jones when Bobby won his first amateur crown and should he win today he will be the youngest champion in eight years.

Mrs. Van Ryn, Grant Win Doubles Match

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Mrs. John Van Ryn, of Philadelphia, and Bryant Grant, of Atlanta, Ga., defeated Carolin Babcock, of Los Angeles, and John Olliff, of Great Britain, 9-7, 6-3 here yesterday in an exhibition match opening the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament.

In another exhibition match, Georgio De Stefani, Italian champion, and Edward Avery, of Great Britain, defeated Taki Kuwabara, of Japan, and Henry Prusoff, Pacific Northwest champion, of Seattle, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—I haven't seen any Department of Labor statistics on same, but rumor factories are now running full blast and have called 30,000 men back to work. Before the autumn leaves have been shaken down, you'll hear that Babe Ruth is going to own the Red Sox next year, Henry Ford is going to manage the Detroit Tigers, the New York Giants are going to trade a pitcher and three outfielders to the Metropolitan Opera in exchange for the "Lucia" sextet, and the St. Louis Browns' franchise will be moved to Boise City, Idaho.

Nick Altrock

And even if there isn't a caraway seed of truth in them, it'll still help out the nation's unemployment problem. For after three years of idle rumors, it's nice to see some of them at work.

Duquesne and Westminster left some 15,000 cash customers more or less cold as they inaugurated the intercollegiate gridiron campaign at Forbes Field last night, plugging through a listless two and one-half hours of football with the Dukes winding up on the long end of a 20-to-0 score.

The contest was practically devoid of thrills. Duquesne hardly had to scratch the surface to beat the invading Titans, who, while they possessed bulk, lacked speed and evidenced but slight knowledge of fundamentals. The Titans turned out to be about as poor a set of tacklers as have been seen here for y'ars and y'ars.

DUKES SHOW CLASS

The Dukes, however, evidenced enough potential strength to send half a dozen or more visiting coaches and scouts home with something on their minds save today's breakfast order. The Duquesne line, which Joe Bach has been working so hard to perfect, looked like the money. The backs ran hard and performed cleverly on the defense. Quarterbacks Larry Sullivan and Frank DeCoster, who figure to share the job of running the team this fall, called the right plays at the right time and took advantage of Westminster's weaknesses.

Westminster employed a six-man line against the Dukes in the first half, but instead of having the two men backing up the line in such a position that they could cover the area directly ahead of the ball, they kept them back of the tackles. As a result, the Dukes' used a quarterback sneak play and cut-backs to gain many valuable yards. In the second half, the Titans tried a seven-man line, with the center dropping into the hole, and fared somewhat better.

TITAN DEFENSE WEAK

Poor coverage on forward passes by the Westminster secondary gave the Dukes two of their three touchdowns. In the first quarter, on third down, Al DeLuca whipped a pass to Ben Pawlina, good for 28 yards and a touchdown. Sullivan booted a placement goal for the extra point.

The second period was scoreless. The Dukes worked the ball to the two-yard line, only to lose it on downs.

In the third quarter, a 21-yard pass, Sullivan to DeLuca, and a 15-yard penalty inflicted on the Titans for roughness gave the Dukes the ball on the Westminster 19. Pawlina and DeLuca alternated in lugging the pigskin to the three-yard mark, from which stripe Fullback Zaninelli hammered through his own right guard for a score. This time, Sullivan's try for extra point was wide.

Pawlina took up the scoring job for the second time in the last period when he leaped between two Westminster secondary defensemen, snared a pass hurled by Sullivan and spun over the goal. Sullivan split the uprights with another placement goal for the twentieth point.

M'DONALD STARS

Later in the quarter, Jim McDonald, Duquesne's highly touted sophomore halfback, galloped around left end for 31 yards and what looked like a touchdown, but a Duquesne player was detected clipping from the rear and all McDonald got out of the run was the exercise.

Westminster's lone threat came in the dying minutes of the game when Wilhelm intercepted a flat pass thrown by Nussbaum and raced 54 yards to Duquesne's 26-yard mark. A 17-yard pass put the ball on the Dukes' 11-yard mark, but the Titan aerial attack fizzled out at this point and the Red and Blue goal line remained uncrossed.

Coach Layden uncovered some promising sophomore backs in Strutt, sub fullback, and Marin, a halfback.

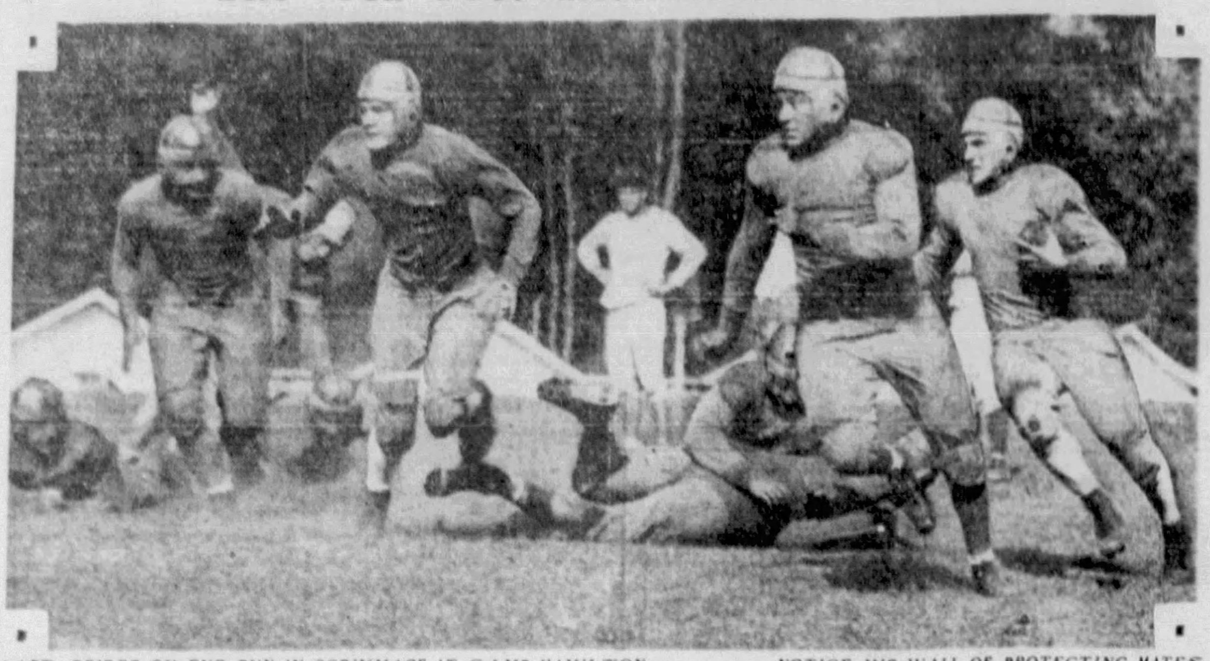
The game felt the effect of the new rules, particularly the dead ball edict. On the first kickoff one of the five Titans on the 45-yard line wandered from the line too soon and the ball was called back and the Dukes permitted to kick over again, five yards nearer the goal line.

On more than one occasion, on the dry-as-toast field, the ball was blown dead with the runner on one knee or still able to drive forward. Wait until the rule strikes a wet day. The howls will be heard throughout the length and breadth of this fair land. And how they'll be heard.

Fight Results

At Detroit—Ernie Maurer defeated Frankie Jarr, 10 rounds; Billy Marrone defeated Connie Delmont, 2 rounds.
At Bismarck, N. D.—Dick DeMarrs defeated Doc Holly, 8 rounds.
At Hollywood—George Hansford defeated Vincent Torres, 10 rounds.
At New York—Frankie (Kid) Bruno defeated Meyer Rowen, 8 rounds.
At Mexico City—Baby Arizmendi defeated Tommy Paul (non-title), 10 rounds.

The Old Pitt Interference Clicks!



CAPT. REIDER ON END RUN IN SCRIMMAGE AT CAMP HAMILTON . . . . . NOTICE HIS WALL OF PROTECTING MATES

There's nothing like the interference of Pitt football machines when they function properly. Here we see Capt. Paul Reider, stellar halfback, sweeping around end behind perfect interference during a brisk scrimmage at Camp Hamilton, near Windber, Pa., where the squad is conditioning for one of the toughest schedules ever arranged. The campaign gets under way with a game against Ohio Northern at the Stadium one week from today. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

PITT RESERVES SHOW CLASS

WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 17.—The town of Bellaire, O., has given many good football players to the collegiate world, and Pitt has received its share of them. Hart and Bob Morris, being the most famous up to this year.

But yesterday here at Camp Hamilton, two new names were added to the list as Miller Mungas, alert little quarterback, and Stanley Oleojnicsak, sturdy tackle, did yoemen service, the former with the varsity and the scrubs, and the latter with the reserves.

The Panther varsity managed to win a decision over the third stringers yesterday, but it was not through any fault of the above pair or of Harvey Rooker, Tarentum end.

ROOKER STARS

Rooker and Oleojnicsak held their side of the line safe against the varsity onslaughts, and when a varsity back did get through he was promptly set back by Mungas, who uses his 160 pounds to the best advantage when it comes to backing up a line.

Mungas has been coming along at top speed lately, and just when Bobby Hogan thought that he had a comfortable lead over Rocco Cutri for the quarterback berth, up bobbed the swarthy Bellaire youth and now Mr. Hogan is hustling again.

Rooker, a transplanted halfback, hadn't been showing much and was being overshadowed by his fellow townsman, Heinie Weisenbaugh, but he came to life yesterday and the majority of the plays sent around his side of the line ended up with him having his arms around Capt. Reider's legs.

RAP NEW RULE

The ruling declaring the ball dead as soon as any part of the ball carrier's body touches the ground is not going to help the game, in the opinion of the Pitt players. This was again demonstrated in yesterday's scrimmage.

This morning will see the Pitt first and second teams lined up against each other for the first time since spring practice.

Local Horse Wins At Waynesburg Fair

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 17.—Mountaineer Direct, bay gelding owned by William Haas, Pittsburgh horseman, won the 2.17 pace in straight heats while Abe Harvester, brown gelding owned by W. W. Acton, of Barnesville, O., took the mixed 2.12 pace and 2.12 trot event in the closing day of the twenty-first annual Waynesburg fair here yesterday.

THE BABE

He's the Grand Slam of World Series—Here's His Life Story

This is the sixth of 10 stories relating the prodigious world series feats of the one and only Babe Ruth. Nearing the end of his career, the Babe this year will make his tenth and perhaps last appearance in the classic.

The "Return of Ruth," a legendary, almost historic, drama nowadays and apparently needing only unanimous opinion that the great one is through to start a revival, was a magnificent thing at its inception in 1923.

Relegated to the ball players' boneyard, dubbed the "busted phenomenon," the Babe suddenly braced. A new spirit, inspired by mild, kindly little Miller Huggins, suddenly swept over the entire Yankee club.

Babe Ruth

An illy disciplined mob of temperamental stars, each playing his own game, was transformed into a well-ordered, sincere, closely-knit team, with Ruth, the contrite, showing the way. Beaten off by the Giants in two successive world series, humiliated, the Yankees came back to sweep the American League again in 1923, with Ruth hitting .393, greatest average he ever compiled, along with 41 home runs.

NOT THE SAME RUTH

Into the third straight series with the Giants swept the Yankees, and this time Ruth was the deadly spearhead. He rallied such mighty pitchers as Herb Pennock, Waite Hoyt, Sam Jones and Bob Shawkey, and his slugging mates, Bob Meusel, Joe Dugan, Wally Pipp, Whitey Witt and Aaron Ward.

Ruth hit three home runs—a triple, a double and two singles—in the six games the Yankees needed to batter down the Giants, four games to two. Two of his home runs, the first he ever hit in world series play, came in the second game of the series and won it for Herb Pennock, 4 to 2. His distance smashes opened his assault on world series hitting records. No one before him had hit two homers in successive times at bat nor three home runs in one series.

SUBDUES SCOFFERS

Today, his home run record is four for one series, made against the St. Louis Cardinals in 1926 and equaled by Lou Gehrig against the Cards in 1928.

The manner of Ruth's home run hitting subdued the scoffers who had waved farewell to the Babe in 1922. They said then that John McGraw knew the big fellow's weaknesses, that Ruth could not hit a low inside curve or a change of pace.

In the second game, off Hughie McQuillan, the Babe smashed a low, inside curve into the stands. His next time at bat, against Jack Bentley, he wafted a slow ball out of the park.

Again in this series, however, the first $1,000,000 post-season classic in baseball history, the master mind of the Giants found Ruth's second weakness. The first always has been a base on balls, something the Giant hurlers fed him liberally after the second game.

Leading Pennock, 4 to 1, pitching beautifully, Art Nehf suddenly weakened in the eighth inning. Two singles and two walks filled the bases and forced in a run. Rosy Ryan took Nehf's place and walked Joe Dugan, forcing in the second run to cut the Giants' lead to 4-3.

Ruth was up with the bases full. Ryan curved over two strikes. McGraw, on the bench, saw the Babe's anxiety, read rightly that he'd not let another ball past him without taking a cut.

Deliberately he ordered Ryan to heave the next one into the dirt. Rosy did. The Babe took a mighty swing. Back to the bench the Babe trudged. Meusel, the next batter, singled to save the day.

It was the last triumph of McGrawian mind over Ruthian matter. They never met again on world series fields.

Grays, Crawfords To Close Season

The season-long series between the Homestead Grays and the Pittsburgh Crawfords will be brought to a close Monday morning at 12:01. The teams will clash tonight in the next to the last game. Last night, at Greenlee Field, the Grays defeated the Crawfords, 13 to 10, although outhit 11 to 9.

The Edgewood nine defeated Springdale, 5 to 3, in the playoff series for the Greater Pittsburgh League title. Homestead Aces downed the Soho Indies, 12 to 6.

The Whitaker nine, Greater Pittsburgh Class A champions, left this morning for Dayton, where it will compete in the National Baseball Federation elimination series, scheduled to get under way tomorrow afternoon.

HANSFORD VICTOR

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—George Hansford, Los Angeles, took an easy decision last night over Vincent Torres, Mexico, in a 10-round bout. Both are featherweights.

LOCAL RACQUET PLAY OPENS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The first annual Stanton Heights invitation men's singles tennis tournament gets under way on the North Aiken rectangles early this afternoon. With 16 contenders representing a half-a-dozen leading local net organizations slated for action, the affair looms as one of the strongest of the smaller district conclaves of the year.

Favored entrants include Dr. John O'Loughlin and Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. aces and sole seeded performers; Frank McClintock, University Club mainstay; Jack Beatty, Vin Glidden, George Henderson and Hub Rinehart, Stanton stars; Bob Lampus, Shannopin leader and Beaver County champion; Tom Robinson, veteran Fox Chapel luminary, and Frank Smith, boss of the crack Edgewood array.

First and second round competition will be cared for today, with semi-finals slated for tomorrow morning and the final fracas set for shortly after the noon hour.

Wood Postpones Try for Record

DETROIT, Sept. 17.—(INS.)—Gar Wood took his Miss America X into the St. Clair River to assault the world straightaway speed record of Kaye Don today, but was forced to postpone his trials because of rough water.

The day dawned calm and clear, but shortly after 7 a. m. a stiff breeze developed. The wind, aided by the churning propellors of hundreds of boats that gathered along the course, kicked up a choppy sea.

Wood will be out again to make an attempt to break the world record at 7 a. m. Tuesday.

Kaye Don's mark, made on Loch Lomond in the Miss England III, is 119.75 statute miles per hour. Wood must go one mile an hour faster to set a new record.

Wood later announced that if the course smothed out and the timing equipment was ready, he might start his record attempt this afternoon or at dusk.

BRUINS BOAST GAME WRECKER IN HARTNETT

Associated Press.

With all the talk of the Yankees' wrecking crew and what they are likely to do to the Chicago Cubs' pitching in the approaching World Series, it might be timely to point out that the Cubs boast a pretty fair game breaker-upper of their own in big Gabby Hartnett.

If the Chicagoans win in the National League, which they will, barring a major catastrophe, the Yank curvers will do well to work on Hartnett very carefully. He is hitting like a ton of brick for Manager Charley Grimm, specializing in home runs where they will do the most good.

GABBY HITS HOMER

Hartnett's smash over the right field wall in the third inning, his fifth in eight games, started the Cubs on the way to their 3 to 2 victory over the Phillies yesterday.

As all the other National League teams were idle, the victory planted the Cubs six full games ahead of the second place Pittsburgh Pirates, with only nine to go. They now need to win only five more, even if the Pirates capture all of their remaining 11, to pick up the marbles.

Bud Tinning, who took Burleigh Grimes' place as one of the Cubs' starting pitchers, went the route yesterday, keeping nine Phillie hits well spaced.

Appearing in Chicago for the last time before they go back to tackle the Cubs in the big series, the Yankees scored a 4-to-1 win over the White Sox. Wilcy Moore and Dan MacFayden gave up only five hits, while the American League champions jumped on Sam Jones for five hits and three runs to sew it up in the third inning.

A's BEAT BROWNS

Al Simmon's 33rd home run of the year with Cochrane on base helped Lefty Grove, of the Athletics, take a close decision from Irving (Bump) Hadley, of St. Louis, 3 to 2.

Ivy Paul Andrews, who missed being in the world series money when the Yankees traded him to Boston in the MacFayden deal, pitched the Red Sox to a closing 6-to-2 triumph over Cleveland.

Washington took its season final from Detroit, 8 to 3. Alvin Crowder setting the Tigers down with three hits, two of them by Heine Schuble.

REGATTA FINAL ON TODAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—(AP.)—Winner of one heat, George Reis, of Bolton Landing, N. Y., had his sleek speed boat El Lagarto primed and ready for today's semi-final and final heats in the President's Cup race.

The mahogany-hulled craft roared over the 15-mile course in the Potomac River yesterday at 57.692 miles per hour, to lead Horace Dodge's Delphine IV 300 yards over the finish line.

El Lagarto, winner of last year's feature event of the President's Cup regatta, today was expected to be challenged also by Dodge's Delphine V, which developed engine trouble and did not finish.

There were only three entries in the race for the cup President Coolidge donated in 1926. A fourth entry, Miss Columbia, owned by a Red Bank, N. J., syndicate, was withdrawn.

Shady Side Polo Team Faces Vangs

The Shady Side and Vang polo teams will clash this afternoon on the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. field in the third game of their series. The proceeds will be turned over to charity.

In the first game of the series, played last Sunday, Shady Side won, 4 to 3. The second game, played under the lights Wednesday night at New Kensington, also was won by Shady Side, 14 to 9.

TARTANS SHINE IN WORKOUT

Sturdy defensive play in both lines, some sensational bucking and running by Johnny Sayles, and clever punting by Joe Mihm and Ray Tesser featured the first practice game in Carnegie Tech's training camp yesterday afternoon.

Only one workout was on today's program, with Judge Steffen slated to return to Chicago tonight. He will be back in Pittsburgh for the final week of preliminary work.

Behind closed gates, Wally and Bob Waddell divided their squad into two teams, and sent them into action under regular game conditions for almost an hour.

Most of the playing was in the center of the field, the sole threat of one team to score being converted into a touchdown near the close of the session.

Riding along behind big Joe Mihm, Sayles was a consistent gainer, and it was his club that finally tallied, when Bill Spisak, sophomore back, slid over from two-yard line. Bevevino handled the winning club, with Harry McCurdy at quarterback for the other outfit.

The entire repertoire of plays was tried out, and although there was some staggering around, the squad as a whole seemed farther advanced than at this time a year ago.

Baby Arizmendi Wins Over Paul

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 17.—(INS.)—Baby Arizmendi, Mexican featherweight champion, today holds a decision over Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, N. Y., the National Boxing Association featherweight titleholder, but does not get the crown.

Arizmendi won the judges' votes over Paul here last night, but the bout was a non-title affair. The local champ had little trouble outboxing Paul throughout the 10 rounds, and almost had the latter out in the last heat after a hard right drove Paul through the ropes. More than 15,000 saw the bout.

CRACK SCHOOL GRID TEAMS PLAY TODAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

Four members of the Class AA School Football Conference are involved in opening games scheduled in various sections of Western Pennsylvania this afternoon.

The Wilkinsburg High School eleven, coached by Elmer Carroll, engages Avalon at Wilkinsburg; Turtle Creek Union, coached by Foxy Miller, faces Pitcairn at Turtle Creek; Norwin, coached by Jack Clawson, opposes East McKeesport at Irwin, and Jeannette, coached by A. Markley Barnes, entertaines Sewickley Township at Jeannette.

While all of the double A members have been hit hard by graduations none is expected to encounter much difficulty in winning this afternoon.

SCHEDULE ATTRACTIVE

Quite an attractive schedule of Class A and B contests also are listed for disposal this afternoon. Ambridge, forced to cancel its game with Monaca because of the recent strike of students at Monaca, has scheduled a game with Lee Schachern's East Liverpool eleven.

NEW CASTLE WINS

Favorites came through in scholastic games played yesterday afternoon and last night.

At New Castle, Phil Bridenbaugh's powerful eleven trounced Union Township High, 27 to 0. Scott High made it two in a row by defeating Munhall at North Braddock, 18 to 0. Charleroi walloped Ellsworth-Cokeburg, 44-0, and Monessen rolled over Belle Vernon, 24-0. Monessen, Charleroi and New Castle are Class AA teams.

In other games, Glassport tool Centerville, 12-0; Crafton wo over Coraopolis, 13-12; Freepor defeated Brentwood, 2-0; Beave Falls defeated the alumni, 14-(and Trinity upset Claysville, 20-(

Local Gunners Help To Defeat British

The American Dewar rifle team, of which four Pennsylvania small bore marksmen were members, was the winner in this year's small bore international competition, according to announcemen made to the National Rifle Asso ciation in Washington by th Society of Miniature Rifle Club of Breat Britain.

The American team, firing at Camp Perry, O., on September 5, scored 7,872 out of a possible 8,000, while the British team, which fired in England more than a week later, turned in 7,838, giving this country possession of the Lord Dewar trophy for the sixteenth year since the start of the competition in 1909. The British have won it three times.

The Pennsylvania members of the team and their scores were: R. F. Louden, Butler, 396; W. L. Wilson, Erie, 393; H. D. Griffith, Pittsburgh, 391; Virgil Richard, Pittsburgh, 390; W. T. Bryan, Roslyn, 387.

Milo D. Coleman, a crack shot of Pittsburgh, also had a hand in the victory, serving as an assistant coach of the team.

Kladdick Scores K. O. Over Billy Winslow

A single knockout featured the amateur boxing show staged last night by the Allegheny Elks on the North Side. Frank Kladdick, of the Cyclone A. A., won by a technical knockout over Billy Winslow, of the Braddock Library, in the first round. The summary:

112-pound class—Young Molnar, Braddock Library A. C., defeated Frank Salak, Ukranian A. C., 3 rounds; Frank Schrider, Pittsburgh Boys' Club, defeated Matt Oznask, Emerald A. C., 3 rounds.

118-pound class—Leo Sweeney, Pittsburgh Boys' Club, defeated John Tirpak, Cyclone A. C., 3 rounds; Johnny Saville, Linwood A. C., defeated Mel Fint, Braddock Library A. C., 3 rounds.

126-pound class—George Metz, Pittsburgh Boys' Club, defeated Hy Zelky, Braddock Library A. C., 3 rounds; Frank Ricard, Linwood A. C., defeated Sunny Price, Clearfield, 3 rounds.

160-pound class—Frank Kladdick, Cyclone A. C., won by a technical knockout over Billy Winso, Braddock Library A. C., first round.

ROOSEVELT + Campaign Speech Tonight + ON THE AIR

Constitution, Bonus Talks Broadcast

Broadcasts today bring to radio listeners a group of prominent figures involved in the controversy over the eviction of the bonus army from Washington.

Immediate payment of the bonus is debated pro and con by Gen. Smedley D. Butler and Gen. John F. O'Ryan, wartime commander of the Twenty-seventh Division of the A. E. F., during the National Grange program on KDKA at 1:30. Gen. Butler takes the affirmative side, and Gen. O'Ryan the negative.

Gen. Butler

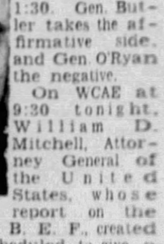
On WCAE at 9:30 tonight, William D. Mitchell, Attorney General of the United States, whose report on the eviction of the B. E. F., created a furore, is scheduled to give a Constitution Day address. Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War while the veterans were fighting with the Allied forces in France, is heard over WCAE at 2:15 in an address entitled, "The Constitution in a Changing Society."

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, speaking from Salt Lake City, Utah, will be heard throughout the country over coast-to-coast NBC and CBS networks, including KDKA and WJAS, tonight from 10:15 to 11 o'clock. The broadcast also will be carried by KDKA'S international short-wave unit, W8XK.

* * *

Program Pointers

"Helena's Boys," a three-act comedy, is the "S. R. O." presentation on KDKA at 9:30 tonight. Florence Malone, noted dramatic actress, whose early broadcasting career included performances in the "Westinghouse Salutes" here, and Charles Webster, star of "Biblical Dramas" and other NBC productions, are heard in the leading roles . . . A program of representative music from Brazil, Argentine, Colombia, Mexico and Cuba is presented when Erno Rapee pays a mythical visit to Latin America on WCAE at 8:30



Miss Malone

The Boswell Sisters, replacing Ruth Etting, who is on vacation, reveal a bit of their belief in omens when they sing "I'm Getting Superstitious" on WJAS at 9.

Gus Van sings two of his own comedy songs, "Pastafazoola" and "I'll Lend You Anything Except My Wife" as highlights of the Week-end Revue on KDKA at 9 o'clock. The harmonizing Pickens Sisters and Ohman and Arden, piano duo, also are featured.

One of America's greatest turf events, the Belmont Futurity, worth $122,220, is described by Clem McCarthy at a track-side microphone over WCAE today at 4.

Muriel Pollock, Vee Lawnhurst and the Mooney Brothers, piano duo and vocal foursome, present a program of popular song and dance hits, as Mixed Doubles in Rhythm on KDKA at 8:45.

Like to dance? Try Gus Arnheim on WJAS at 8:30; Vincent Lopez and Charlie Agnew on WCAE at 10; Tommy Klein, WJAS at 11:15; Jack Pettis on KDKA at 11:30, and dial WCAE at 11:45 for continuous rhythm until 2 a. m. by Paul Whiteman. Lew Conrad, the College Inn Orchestra, Dick Snyder and the Lotus Garden Orchestra.

On Networks Tonight

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, shown here sending his clarion-like voice to 12,000 farmers gathered in Topeka (Kan.) in his Western tour for the presidency, will be heard over Stations KDKA and WJAS at 10:15 o'clock tonight when he speaks from Salt Lake City (Utah). This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

LISTENING IN

Opera to Radio.
Gershwin's Gift.
To the Rescue.

One of opera's greatest personalities, Mme. Frances Alda, is turning her attention toward the development of young singers for broadcasting. Following months of study to ascertain the exact technique necessary for successful microphone reproduction, Mme. Alda opened her new studios this week in New York. She holds that many successful concert and operatic artists fail on the air because they try to use the same methods before the microphone that they use on the stage, and that radio audiences, becoming more critical daily, are demanding real artistry from their musical performers.

Mme. Alda

George Gershwin gave William Merrigan Daly a wrist watch as a memento of that all-Gershwin concert last month.

Romance via the air . . . Official instructions for an ice-bound detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Bache Peninsula, which could not be reached by the supply boat, now overdue, are being relayed to the men through the short-wave facilities of KDKA. Radio is the only way in which a message can reach the post quickly . . . Meanwhile the Arctic darkness, which will last until the end of February, is closing in on the stranded men.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- BY SALLY MARTIN

People Can Not Hold Love By Being Disagreeable

Why has T. D.'s wife fallen for someone else?

T. D., according to himself, has done everything in his power to avert the catastrophe. He has told her all about her "duty," and what a bum she is, and even beaten up on her. But, strangely, she still won't love him as she should. And insists she's going to move out on him.

So what's a poor guy to do?

Can you maybe give him a hint?

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I wonder if you can give a distracted husband some advice? I hope so, because I sure need it.

"I have been married for seven years, and I have never so much as looked at another woman, or thought of such a thing. When I married my wife, so far as I was concerned, it was for keeps. But she doesn't seem to see it that way, and I don't know what to do.

"I have always worked hard and supported my wife to the best of my ability. I have never been stingy with her. We have a nice little home and a small car. And everything seemed to be all right until a few months ago, when a family moved into the neighborhood and we got friendly with them.

"The man had a brother about my wife's age, and it was not long before I began to notice she seemed to be very friendly with him. And now she tells me that she is in love with him and wants me to give her a divorce. He, so it seems, is also in love with her.

CAN'T UNDERSTAND HER

"I can't figure out what is the matter with her. I have tried to talk to her about her duty to me, and to our marriage. I have even got sore and told her just what kind of a bum I thought she was. And the other day I got mad and beat her. But nothing seems to do any good. She won't speak to me, or go anywhere with me. But she will go out with these people. I don't think that the man and his wife really suspect how things are between her and his brother.

They seem to be okay.

"What puzzles me is what ails a woman like my wife. Why she should act that way? I can't make it out at all. I have done everything I could think of to show her how wrong she is and make her different. But you might just as well talk to the wind, it seems. Nothing I can do or say has any effect on her.

"And now she says that if I won't give her a divorce she will leave me anyway.

"What can I do? How can I make her see her duty, and stop this foolishness? I am willing to overlook it all if she will get sensible and be like she used to be. How can I get her back, caring for me? What ails her, anyway? "T. D."

SHOULD BE PLEASANT

What ails her?

I suspect you do, Big Boy. Yeah, I know. You kept a roof over her head. You bought her things. You were "true" to her. But how much of a real teammate and playmate were you to her? How much did you love her and praise her and make life interesting for her? Mighty little, I suspect.

And now that the blow has fallen you talk about "duty," and beat up on her! You can't keep anyone faithful and loyal that way. Being disagreeable won't hold anyone's love. In fact, it will drive anyone away from you, and that mighty fast.

How'll you get her back? Probably you can't. Probably you've spoiled things completely. But if you really want to try, get busy and see how pleasant you can be. How charming. How understanding. You can't catch flies with vinegar. But honey is mighty good bait. So try putting a little fun and thrill in her life. Then, if it is too late...if that won't work... let her go.

'PLAYING WITH FIRE'

Drawn By Nell Brinkley

"Fire, that's closest kept, burns most of all."
—Shakespeare.

Many things have changed and passed, but not the exceeding fascinating, absorbing, alluring game of playing with fire. The small infant, just as did the first child of Adam, reaches ardent fingers for the bright tongue of the fire. And young damsels, even as the first Eve clothed in her crown of glory did, dance palpitating, hearts a-pit-a-pat, like moths, around the flame of Love where they find him.

HE is the prey to their young minds, sure with the knowledge gained from reading the daily papers and robust romances. HE the weak one. HE the victim. They corner him in the green fields of romance, Jeanne, and Jane, and Jill, and Joyce, and June, Juliette, Jenny, and Jacqueline, and madly and gaily they hold hands around him—ring-around-the-rosy-one—keeping him close, unused to the hurt, that can come from Venus' runagate son.

But the fire that is kept the closest burns most of all, and soon the smarting young man looses his arrows, nocks one to his good bow, and then is the slaughter of the foolish damosels.

He has been known to scorch the gentlemen, too, who took him too lightly.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Eating With Delicacy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A says that a chocolate eclair should be broken and eaten with the fingers, the same as any other pastry of that kind.

B says it should be cut and eaten with the fork? Which is correct?

2. Please tell me a correct and graceful way of eating watermelon?

3. A says that when a man and woman meet accidentally, the woman should greet the man first. Is this correct?

1. B wins. It's a disagreeable picture to see, or even to think of seeing anyone eating a creamy eclair in the fingers. I'm sure that B shuddered at the thought of A's eating an eclair or any other pastry of this kind in the fingers . . . it's cause for shuddering. I can think of fewer items of food that have more need of a friendly and helpful fork.

2. When we are served watermelon in slices, the best way to eat it is to cut small portions with a small knife, remove as many of the seeds as we see, and transfer the piece to the mouth with a fork. If a seed is lurking in one of the mouthfuls we take, we remove it, using the thumb and first finger, as unobtrusively as possible.

When watermelon is shaped into small balls, and served in a fruit cocktail, alone or with other fruits, it is eaten with a teaspoon. When it is cut into small squares, triangles, or circles, and served on a dessert plate, it is easily eaten with a tea knife and fork, or with a fork only.

3. Yes, this is correct.

Mourning Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father-in-law died one month ago. How long should I wear black? I do not like black, but I would not like to show any disrespect to him as I cared very deeply for him.

One sister-in-law wears black and one does not, and she says that it is not correct to do so.

Please tell me what is proper. I am 35 years old. M.

What you wish to do is, in this case, the proper thing to do. That is, our custom concerning the wearing of mourning depends nowadays only on our choice. You won't be showing your father-in-law the slightest bit of disrespect by not wearing black.

In the summer and in your home remember that the wearing of all-white is as deep mourning as all-black. And these days and days of white costumes!

Or wear black dresses, if you wish, with the lovely and generous white lingerie touches. Or wear black and white prints, white backgrounds with white designs. Or dark brown and white prints. Or simply modify all of the colors of your dresses that you buy now, not wearing black, but wearing dark shades.

The sister-in-law who says that it is not correct to wear mourning is not right in this statement, but is isn't necessary.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

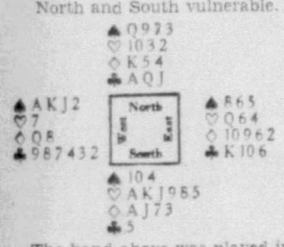
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Taking Finesses

When a Contract player advances beyond the rank of a mere amateur, he becomes very much inclined to display his skill by taking finesses. A finesse in Bridge is an encircling movement, seeking to take advantage of the location of adverse honors. The old definition of a finesse as an attempt to take a trick with a card not the highest in the suit is inadequate. When the location of the adverse honors is unknown, to take a finesse, hoping to encircle the adverse high card and thus prevent it from takink a trick, has only an even chance of success. Hence, if there is a method that offers a greater degree of certainty than the even chance, it should be taken, as is shown in the hand below:

North—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The hand above was played in a team-of-four match, and at both tables the contract was four hearts. One player made his contract with an overtrick. The other was set one in his contract of four.

In both cases, West opened the spade King, and when the Queen appeared in Dummy, the shift was clearly indicated. West shifted to the club, and one South decided to finesse, playing the Knave. East won, and while East did not return a club, the Declarer elected later to play for the even break in hearts, in which suit he held nine in the combined hands. He, therefore, lost two spades, a club and a trump.

The other South made a better plan of play. When the club was played, he refused to finesse because the finesse in this suit was entirely unnecessary. East, he reasoned, probably held the club King, and so an effort to get rid of his losing spade, following a successful finesse, would lose in any event. He, therefore, played the Ace and led a heart, and although he held nine trumps, elected to finesse. The reason for taking the heart finesse and refusing the finesse in clubs is apparent after a little study. South was willing for West to have the lead, as any lead he would make after winning the trump, except the return of that suit, would be advantageous to South. Another club would establish a club for a discard of a loser in the South hand. Another lead of spades would establish the Queen of spades in Dummy. As the cards lay, through refusing an unnecessary finesse and taking one which could not injure his game prospects, South not only made his contract, but an overtrick.

In the other case, however, taking an unwise finesse, which had only the remotest chance of benefitting the Declarer, South lost his contract.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

Today's Question

West and East always pass. North, the Dealer, opens the bidding with two diamonds, a Forcing bid, to which South responds with two hearts. North then bids three diamonds. What is the proper bid for South to make holding the following hand?

♠ Q 5 3 ♡ K J 10 8 7 ◇ 9 3 ♣ 10 7 6

Answer: Three notrump. The heart suit is not rebiddable, there is not a second biddable suit, and, of course, a diamond Raise should not be given as the hand lacks adequate trump support and distributional values.

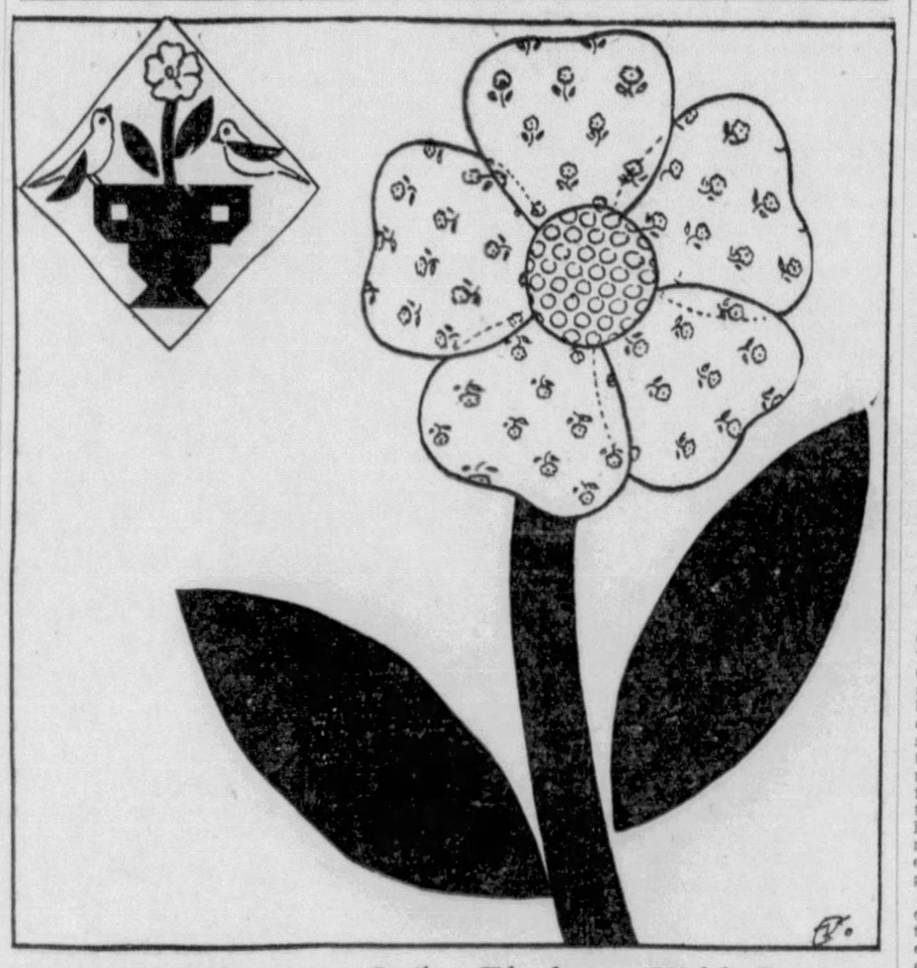
Nancy Page Quilt Club -:- -:- By Florence La Ganke



Garden Bouquet Quilt - Block 4 - Wild Rose

A DIRECTION LEAFLET that will aid in making the Garden Bouquet Quilt will be sent free to any reader sending a stamped, addressed envelope to Nancy Page, in care of this paper.

As the members of the Nancy Page Quilt Club came to attention for this, the eighth meeting of the club, they heard the strains of MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose." One quick-witted member exclaimed, "I know what flower we are making today. It's the wild rose." And sure enough it was. Nancy had made hers of a fast-colored, sprigged print with a white ground and pale pink flowers. But she might just as well have chosen pale pink in a solid color. In either case the center is made of large French knots done in fast-colored embroidered cotton.

The leaves are done in green and the stem is either cut from a piece of the same green material or is made from bias tape. Nancy advises the use of bias tape, for then the stem is always even in width.

Of course the whole flower may be done in outline stitch. Or the colors may be put on by using crayons in the correct colors. To do this the design is faintly traced onto the white triangle and then the outlines are filled in with crayon. Next, the material is pressed with a hot iron. This melts and sets the color from the crayon.

The flower may be appliqued in either one of two ways.

If the pieces are cut the exact size given they may be placed on the cloth according to the small inset pattern and then fastened with fine buttonhole stitch done in fast-color embroidery cotton, the color of the material.

Or they may be cut ¼-inch larger all around than the pattern. Then the raw edges are turned under, basted and pressed. After laying in place on the white triangle the pieces are fastened by using a slanting, fine or invisible hemming stitch.

When the members came to club they had already pieced the urn, which makes the lower half of the diamond block, seamed on to its upper edge the triangle of white, the piece 12½x12½x17½ inches.

The birds may or may not have been appliqued before the flower is put on. The patterns for the birds and for the pieces of the urn have already been given in this series. A wise quilt maker has stored them away for future use in her Nancy Page quilt scrap book.

By tracing the outline faintly on the white, one has a pattern to go by. Then by tracing the pattern onto a piece of lightweight cardboard one has a pattern which may be cut and used as a guide. And this still allows one to keep the original with its attached directions in the scrap book.

Next week comes the first block in the second row. It's a trillium.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Garden Bouquet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper please send 10 cents for each block missing. Also enclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Rarity of Botulism Due to Care in Preserving Food

For many years little was known concerning a disease called "botulism." Under certain conditions a food may become contaminated with the germ of this ailment. When this food is eaten, botulism results.

Dr. Copeland

Within recent years this disease has steadily declined. It is hoped that within a short time it will no longer exist. It used to be caused by eating commercial canned food products. Due to the rigid measures of health law enforcement and the co-operation of the canning industry, the disease rarely, if ever, comes from this source. Instead, the few outbreaks that have been reported of late have been traced to the consumption of home-canned foods.

Botulism may be caused by eating contaminated meat and vegetables. It is particularly common when vegetables, such as ripe olives, canned string beans, asparagus, corn or apricots, are put up in home preserving. Lack of proper facilities in home canning may permit the live germ to enter the finished product. On the contrary, the commercial plants have scientifically constructed machines and processes that eliminate the possibility of any germs being left in the cans.

The decrease in the number of cases of botulism may be attributed to our increased knowledge. Or it may be due to the decline in home canning.

Canned foods can now be purchased all year round and are prepared in such a way as to tempt the housewife. The purchasing of high grade canned foods guarantees the housewife a scientifically pure food and saves her many hours of unnecessary labor.

When foods are canned at home, only fresh and clean foodstuffs should be used. Heating at a high temperature is important. The cans or jars used for preserving should be cleansed and boiled before use. They should be air-tight and boiled at a high temperature so as to destroy all germs.

Contrary to a common belief, cooking alone is not sufficient to destroy the germs of poisonous food. Food that is contaminated should never be used. Meats should be thoroughly cooked and served as soon as possible. Remember that when food is allowed to stand it deteriorates and allows bacterial growth. Foods that are capable of spoiling should be kept in a refrigerator and should be cleaned carefully before using.

Answers to Health Queries

Lou. Q.—I am 19½ years old, 5 feet 7 inches tall. What should I weigh? 2. How can I fatten my face?

A.—You should weigh about 134 pounds. This is about the average weight for one of this age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. A few pounds above or below the average is a matter of little or no significance.

2.—Try to gain weight in general. Eat plenty of good nourishing food, including milk and eggs. Exercise daily in the fresh air and sunshine. Sleep as many hours as possible. Take cod liver oil as a general tonic and builder.

Privacy for Children

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A very important factor bearing on a child's high or low marks at school is the preparation we make for his privacy for study at home, and for his healthful and undisturbed sleeping quarters.

No child, in however harmonious a family, can efficiently study in the bosom of that family. He needs a private place, a place all his own, where he can settle down in the certainty that he will remain undisturbed until his school work is completed—and this privacy should be unviolated.

If possible—and right now many parents can make is possible because of reduced rents and low sales prices—each child should have a room of his own in which to study and sleep.

Proper rest is almost out of the question when children of varying ages occupy the same room, even though they have saprate beds. The younger retires earlier than the older child, and is disturbed when the latter gets ready to go to bed. The older child may be allowed to stay up later, and in reading, or studying, or preparing for the night, will unavoidably impair the younger child's rest.

Anyway, a child should have a place where he can be alone when he so desires. One can't get a proper perspective on the day's happenings, or on plans for tomorrow, when there are people on every side. The nice art of thinking, I believe, is being lost to us as a people because we are too much together.

Try to give your child his own room this year. If you cannot move into larger quarters, it is even worth while to use a long table in the living room for dining purposes, to give the child the dining room for his own private use.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Feminine feet that hobble along on high heels day and night are grateful for a few hours encasement in good old oxfords. Considering how decent and patient feet are, lugging the body's weight, it would seem as if they might have a rest now and then, a chance given for toes to unhuddle, an opportunity for sole spread. Women who've never packed their little dogs into comfortable, wide low-heeled shoes don't know what they're missing. Oh, bliss!

Curly eyelashes, ambrosial tresses and lily white hands aren't one bit more important than knowing how to cart one's body around, stepping pretty, sitting pretty, moving with grace. To hold up the chest, put the best foot forward, hold the tummy flat, is to look better and feel better. The organs of the inner sides work better when the old backbone is energized, stretched tall. Nerves are steadier. Complexion is clearer. Very difficult to make the candidates for beauty understand that there can be no external improvement without health and splendid vitality.

Not one woman among 50 carries her anatomical frame as it should be carried. The universal association of beauty questers specializes on hair and complexion, thinks nothing at all about posture. Eye shadows intrigue the members, a new shade of powder sends them into a state of twittering ecstacy, chatter about lacquered wigs sets their pulses thumping. Yet unless a woman walks like a queen she can never claim an appearance of distinction.

Household Hints

When separating the yolk from the white of an egg, break it into a funnel over a glass. The white will pass through and the yolk will remain in the funnel.

If you are obliged to use your dining room table for the purpose of cutting out your clothes patterns it is wise to first cover it with a silence cloth. This will prevent the surface of the table from becoming scratched by scissors, pins, etc.

ALIBI DEFENSE IN ARSON TRIAL

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 17.—Intimations by District Attorney A. B. Decastrique of perjury charges loomed as testimony was resumed today in the trial of L. J. Kamons and son, Abbon Kamons, Pittsburgh stogie manufacturers, charged with heading an arson ring. The Kamons denied testimony of the prosecution linking them with the burning of the Daniel Lazor shoe store at Ambridge last Christmas Eve. Friends and relatives of the Kamons testified they attended a party for an aunt of the Kamons on the night of the fire.

Sam Neiman, Pittsburgh insurance adjuster, denied the commonwealth testimony that he had conferred with Abe Redlich and L. J. Kamons about $50 to be paid Arch Fisher, then fire chief of Ambridge. He admitted he knew all the parties involved, and that he helped to adjust the Ambridge fire loss.

HURT IN CRASH, STEEL MAN DIES

John W. Kirkpatrick, 73, veteran Pittsburgh steel official, died late yesterday in the Oil City Hospital from a fractured hip received in an automobile crash near there Sunday. At the time of his death, Mr. Kirkpatrick was chairman of the board of the West Leechburg Steel Company. He lived at 6930 Penn avenue.

Educated in Pittsburgh public schools, he was graduated from Chester Military Academy and entered the steel business. Mr. Kirkpatrick originally organized Kirkpatrick and Company, later becoming associated with the Leechburg Iron Works which was sold to the American Steel Company in 1910. He leaves a son, William C. Kirkpatrick, and a daughter, Mrs. Charles S. Todd, both of Pittsburgh.

Injunction Hearing On U. S. Project

A hearing on a bill in equity seeking an injunction in connection with a labor controversy which threatens delay in the building of the annex to the United States Veterans' Hospital at Aspinwall will be fixed today in Common Pleas Court by Judge Samuel H. Gardner.

Late yesterday P. J. Savage, sub-contractor for the plastering work on the building, filed the bill against the Operative Plasterers' and Cement Finishers' International Association and the Plasterers' Union, Local No. 31, Pittsburgh.

Two Chances to Register for Election

Residents of cities in Allegheny County who have been assessed, still have two chances to qualify in order to vote at the November election.

September 20—Second registration day in Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne. Pittsburgh polls will be open from 8 until 11 o'clock a. m. and from 5 until 11 o'clock p. m.; in other cities, 8 to 10 a. m.; noon to 3 p. m. and from 5 to 11 p. m. eastern daylight savings time.

October 8—Third and last registration day in the cities. This is also the last day to pay poll taxes. Only those regularly assessed can pay taxes.

September 7 was the last day to be assessed.

PRINTERS VOTE 5-DAY WEEK

LONG BEACH, Cal., Sept. 17.—(AP.)—The five-day week plan for printers on newspapers will become effective next January 1 if approval is given by individual unions in a referendum vote.

The International Typographical Union convention here yesterday adopted the five-day week plan, 76 to 74, later amending its resolution to require the local unions' approval.

The plan, known as the New York proposition, provides a printer who has worked five days in any one week must engage a substitute for additional work. It affects approximately 22,000 union members.

Local unions were asked to make the plan operative in commercial offices wherever possible.

OBITUARY

Sherwood C. Martin.

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon for Sherwood C. Martin, 75, who died Thursday at his home, 415 South Atlantic avenue. For many years he was president of the American Face Brick Association, a director of the Diamond National Bank and a member of the Chamber of Commerce. He was a member of Crescent Lodge, F. and A. M.; Tancred Commandery, Shilo Chapter, Syria Temple and the Consistory. He was also a member of Christ M. E. Church, where he served as trustee. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ella Coe Martin; a son, Arthur C. Martin; four grandchildren, two brothers, Wesley B. Martin, of Pittsburgh, and Wilbur P. VALENTINE :-: Captivating Story of a Shy Girl Rushed Into Love :-: By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Val and Joe Decide to Get Married and Then Move To Minnesota

CHAPTER XXIV.

Joe's wire was a shock.

"Arriving eight ten Sixteenth street Sunday. Love, Joe."

Valentine met him, standing in her old brown coat (she had put on the new one, then decided to keep it new for the trousseau), frowning a little, scanning the passengers as they came off the train.

When she saw him the worry, the hundred little gnawing fears vanished.

It was Joe. Joe come back to her.

She ran into his wide open arms, and was happy.

On the way back in the taxi, with Joe's bags piled in front, his overcoat and half a dozen books on the seat beside them, some of her fears came back.

"I'm afraid there is going to be trouble. Your mother—"

"I'll fix that up. Don't worry, Val."

She looked up at him, at the grim line around his mouth, would he? Would Joe, gentle, good-natured Joe, be able to cope with an hysterical, sobbing mother?

They parted at the door.

Aunt Julia, Val knew, was sitting on the davenport just inside the lace curtains, watching.

His mother, not so cautious, was leaning out of her front window. She had on a kimona over a bright pink nightgown, and the inevitable towel was tied around her head.

When she saw them, she flung up the window, reached her arms toward Joe. "My boy! Come to mother!" she called in her full, contralto voice.

"All right, ma. Right with you!" Joe answered. Then turned back to pay the taxi driver.

Val looked down at her feet. Joe was having difficulty finding the right change. It seemed hours.

Mrs. Carey, at her window, began to sob, louder and louder. Ruth and Vivian, in water-wave combs and gay-flowered lounging pajamas, dashed around from the back yard.

"Oh, goodie, goodie, Joe's home!"

"Joe, where's my bracelet? Where's my bracelet? Bracelet, bracelet——"

"I'll see you later — when you've talked — to her," Val said, and crossed to the house, leaving Joe, accompanied by the two capering girls, to go to his mother.

The front door opened as Val came up the stairs.

"I must say she's making a fine spectacle of herself," Aunt Julia said, licking her lips with satisfaction. "Crying out loud, on the front street! And still wearing a nightgown at quarter past 9 in the morning. That's a fine mother-in-law you're going to have, Miss Valentine Macfarlane!"

Val smiled, a little wearily.

"Maybe she'll never be my mother-in-law. Joe came out to settle things, but she may settle everything for us."

"If Joe Carey lets his mother tell him what to do, at his age, then he's not much of a man!"

"Oh, don't blame Joe. He's only a man, and she's his mother. Besides, I don't think I could compete with her myself."

"I could," Julia Macfarlane said flatly.

There was no doubt about it. She could. But whether she could manage Val's problem was something else again.

Her first idea, to send Val back to Santa Barbara until the excitement blew over, had certainly been a failure. Undaunted by Millie's plea for postponement of the visit, she had written again, insisting that the need was NOW.

"LEAVING SANTA BARBARA GOING LOS ANGELES OR POSSIBLY EAST. IMPOSSIBLE TO HAVE VALENTINE WITH ME NOW. WILL TRY TO SEND FOR HER LATER. AFFAIRS VERY UNSETTLED. Millie."

"Hmm . . . that man has left her. Or she's seen someone she thought she liked better," Aunt Julia thought.

She thought of telling Val, "That mother of yours is up to her old tricks. It's a good thing you've got me to count on. You certainly can't count on her."

But that was rather harsh. She decided to say nothing.

Late Sunday afternoon Joe called for Valentine. They went off together, and were late coming home.

Aunt Julia got undressed, and sat propped up against her pillows in bed, her old elderdown cape wrapped around her shoulders, to read and wait for Val's return.

She listened, straining her ears to hear what they were saying when Val and Joe stood on the front porch, talking. They must have been there for half an hour, but she couldn't hear a word they said.

Val came in at last, her eyes starry, her voice a little shaky:

"We're going to get the license tomorrow. I'm going back to Minnesota with him Friday . . . Aunt Julia, don't look at me so! Aren't you happy—for me?"

* * *

Aunt Julia had breakfast ready at 8 o'clock as usual. Val had to go down town, finish her office work, help break in her successor.

Aunt Julia's head felt swollen and hollow, as if it would burst. She thought of Mrs. Carey's wet towels tied tight . . . that would help. But she wasn't that kind. No wet towels for her. She'd get up and dress no matter how she felt. Mrs. Carey could have hysterics and do her best to spoil everything, but she wouldn't, not if it killed her. She, Julia Macfarlane, could carry on.

As an extra gesture she made Danish coffee cake, and cooked the eggs with cream and cheese the way Val liked them best.

"Might as well do it up brown," she thought, setting the table expertly, listening for Val, keeping an eye on the percolator.

Val ate the eggs and coffee cake with a dreamy smile. Hurried off to work, came back at 6, still dreamy, still smiling.

"Did you get your license? Let me see it."

"You don't get it. You just file a notice of intention, they call it. And then you come back and call for it. Oh, Aunt Julia, Joe is so wonderful. I mean he's so different from other people—"

"Humph! Not so much as he used to be. He was about the queerest kind—"

"Aunt Julia, don't start that! But even then he was nicer than the others. And now . . . I don't know—but he's finer—more—I can't explain it—finer—better—"

"It must be wonderful to be in love," Miss Macfarlane said, squeezing out the dish rag with a practiced twist.

"It is," Val said seriously. And she felt so sorry for poor Aunt Julia, who had never been in love, that her soft eyes filled with tears and she went to the back door to call the cat, to hide them.

Everything made her want to cry, she was so happy.

Mrs. Carey . . . but that wouldn't worry her, she wouldn't let it . . . Mrs. Carey had insisted that she come to the wedding.

"There won't be any wedding," Joe had said.

"But there will be witnesses. That's the law. And if you won't have your own mother, instead of a stranger—"

Synopsis

Valentine Macfarlane is practically deserted at the age of 8 by her gay, widowed mother, Millie. She is brought up by a man-hating maiden aunt, Julia. Millie roams the world, returns to America, but Julia clings to the child. Valentine becomes engaged to Joe Carey. Joe leaves to take an architect's position in Minneapolis. Aunt Julia is opposed to the match and sends Val to Santa Barbara to visit her mother. Val is both shocked and intrigued by life in the "gay set." She returns to her aunt and her stenographic job. Joe sends her a diamond engagement ring as a birthday present. Mrs. Carey is hysterical when she learns of the engagement and other neighbors begin to gossip about Val.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Curing Marion of Infatuation Involves Anxiety

I took Lillian with me for my call upon Mrs. Arlen and her daughter. She, with the others, had but just returned from the shore cottage, to which she and Harry had taken the young people after Lee Chow's collapse, and though I had compunctions about asking her to go with me, my need of her outweighed consideration for her.

"I can't face those two by myself," I told her, when we were driving away from the farmhouse.

"That's as good an excuse as any," she said with a grin. "I don't blame you at that. I'd sooner sit by the side of a marsh with the mosquitoes active than listen to Avis rehearsing her patter. But that isn't what's eating you, and you know it. You're simply dying of curiosity to know how Mary's scheme for curing Marion is coming on, and you've picked on me as the likeliest person to cough up the truth. 'Fess up, now. Ain't I the slick little deducer?"

"Take my side combs, also my wrist watch," I told her, laughing, "but begin your tale promptly. I'll drive slowly, so you'll be finished by the time we reach the hotel."

"I wonder if we'll find Noel there," she said. "He certainly has been conspicuous by his absence while we were at the shore. Only came over one evening, and then kept very much in the background."

"I hope he isn't taking this little comedy of Mary's seriously," I said worriedly.

BILL TO SUFFER

"Who ever heard of a young lover taking anything in any other way than seriously?" she retorted. "I'm only thankful that he hasn't sent exploding shrapnel in all directions. But I think I would rather have him stage anything except a return to the place where the Arlen angler is baiting her hooks. Well, thank all the little josses, he won't have to stand it much longer."

There was jubilance in her voice, and with my left hand guiding the wheel I put my right on her arm imperatively.

"I shall shake and slap in another minute if you don't tell me what has happened," I said.

"Of course, it's all up in the air yet," she said. "There hasn't been any showdown, and someway I have the impression that the hardest thing of all to accomplish will be placating Ronald when this is all over. He's played up to Mary beautifully, and I don't think one of the youngsters suspects that he isn't quite crazy about her. They all think Marion would be wearing a nice little bouquet of willow by this time if it weren't for Bill. That poor lad! Tarkington's William Sylvanus Baxter had nothing on him when he was 17."

"Which poor lad? Ronald or Bill?" I asked her slyly.

"What? Be your age and never mind my mixed antecedents," she retorted. "I mean Bill, of course. I am afraid he's the one who's going to suffer over this. But I'm going to see to it that even when Marion finds out about the comedy she still gives Bill the best of it, at least so far as this crowd can see. He'll be going back to school before the rest anyway, and I won't have him humiliated."

ADOLESCENT AFFECTION

"Neither will I." My voice was savage for an instant, for Dicky's oldest nephew has endeared himself to me. Then I made a swift calculation.

"The younger boys have to go back a full week before the others," I said. I won't give this dinner-dance until after they go, then there will be no chance of Bill's being hurt. Once in school, he'll be so busy that he won't have time to worry."

"Leave us hope," Lillian commented skeptically. "His devotion to Marion is something beautiful, and—pitiable. He's been in the seventh heaven ever since they came back from camp, however. Marion, determined not to be a wall flower, has kept Bill in constant attendance, and he's simply delirious with joy."

"Poor lad!" For an instant my heart was hot against Marion then I reflected that in this modern age it was useless to worry about adolescent affection. A subnormal or abnormal boy or girl—yes; but an upstanding normal boy like Bill—if we could manage things so that there should be no blow to his pride, this emotional experience would probably be most beneficial to him.

"Then you think that the scheme has worked, and that Marion's cure is accomplished?" I asked.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Today many thousands of boys and girls attended the formal fall opening of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Clubs, which meet every Saturday at 16 of the Warner Neighborhood Theaters.

Many of these youngsters were attending their first Komic Club meeting and tonight they'll proudly show to their parents the membership card and button which they received when they enrolled today.

Today, as stated above, marked the formal opening of the fall and winter activities of the club. Elaborate stage shows— interesting games—contests—marked the opening session and each of the managers assured the members that from now until the end of the school year, they will receive the same kind of entertainment each Saturday.

MINSTREL SHOW

The Washington Chapter minstrel show with the following members taking part, brought the largest attendance in the history of this chapter.

Soloists—Marion Kemp, Ethel Grinage, Marcurite Birmingham, Virginia McDonald, Gloria Conselmi, Romaine Tate, Virginia Hinerman, Thais Bowers, Alice Gloady, Rita Folino, Edna Cunningham, Donna Fay Walker, Gale Hartzell, Myrtle Sholton, Velma McVehil, Virginia McVehil and Mary Jane Irwin.

Billy Brownlee and Mary Jane Wood offered an acrobatic and contortionist dance.

Betty George, Helen Brainer, Roger Doyle, Frank Rungo, Harold Wolfe, Jean Skirble, Betty Jane Haught and Alvin Bales were the tap dancers.

Roger Doyle was the interlocutor, and Stanley Wolfe and Billy Brownlee were the end men.

All in all it was a great show and the youngsters and the grown-ups more than enjoyed themselves. Manager Wear, after the performance, said:

"The members of the Washington Chapter enjoyed themselves so much today that I may repeat the show in its entirety in a couple of weeks."

SHOW IN AMBRIDGE

At the Ambridge Theater the members were entertained by the same stage show that surprised the members of the Kenyon Chapter last Saturday.

Those taking part in this entertainment were:

Libby Wolfe .....

.....Mistress of Ceremonies
Mary Lazar....Acrobatic Dance
Marie Simon...Eccentric Dance
Jimmy Brown..Songs and Dances
Frances Gentis .....

.....Songs and Dances
Grace Shomo..Songs and Dances
Jane Guziak...Acrobatic Dance
Marguerite and Dolores Antonelli..Comedy Act and Songs and Dances.

Miss Marie Thomas, organist of the Ambridge Theater, furnished the musical part of the program, playing for all the youngsters several popular numbers which they took delight in singing.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

A Dreadful Situation

Adult Education Is Necessary to Prevent Auto Accidents
—Comment on Local News.

*Pittsburgh had a good chance of winning the na*tional safety contest as the American city with the greatest decrease in auto accidents in 1932, until September came along with five traffic fatalities the first week. A dreadful situation was disclosed at a meeting yesterday of the education subcommittee of the Better Traffic Committee, called to discuss what could be done.

The appalling fact was disclosed that while child fatalities from auto accidents have decreased in Pittsburgh from 68 in 1924 to 36 in 1931, adult fatalities have increased in the same period from 96 to 136. Unless this upward trend for grownups is arrested—indeed, unless the 1931 death rate is materially reduced—it will not be proper to speak of Pittsburgh as a safe city.

If the automobile death rate for children in 1924 had not been reduced, 411 boys and girls in Pittsburgh who are today living vigorous, active lives, would be in their graves. To what can the saving of these 411 lives be attributed? There can be little doubt that the answer is, "Education in the principles that make for traffic safety." That is the remedy that must be applied to the Pittsburgh adults who are being slaughtered in such appalling numbers.

Every child in the public and parochial schools is being taught safety as a part of the school course. The children hear lectures on traffic accident prevention by traffic officers. They are required to write essays on the subject. Eighty-six thousand school children in Pittsburgh submitted essays on traffic safety last year in competition for college scholarships and hundreds of other prizes offered by the Better Traffic Committee.

If requiring the children to write safety essays has made them safety conscious and effected a reduction of nearly 50 per cent in child fatalities during a period in which the volume of traffic increased 150 per cent—and it can scarcely be questioned that it has been at least an important factor in the reduction—it seems that it would almost pay to make every adult write such an essay.

While the compulsory writing of safety essays by adults is impractical, there is another way in which education can be forced on motorists, and that is by requiring drivers to undergo periodical examinations as to their knowledge of traffic regulations and safety requirements, and as to their physical and mental ability to operate automobiles without imperiling their own lives and the lives of others.

*Such examinations, say once a year, would be ex*ceedingly unpopular; yet they would be fully justified if necessary to save life. There is undoubtedly need of some kind of new procedure to make certain that motorists learn the traffic laws, for inquiries by the Better Traffic Committee into the causes of motor mishaps in Pittsburgh have revealed widespread ignorance.

C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, ventured the assertion that not one out of 10,000 Pittsburgh motorists is aware that a speed in excess of 20 miles an hour is unlawful in crossing street intersections. Here is just one law, one simple law that could be obeyed by everyone without hardship, which, if generally known and heeded, would save many lives.

Judge M. A. Musmanno, a veteran of the World War and a captain in the United States Army Reserve Corps, is no pacifist; which makes his decision yesterday in the case of the University of Pittsburgh students who were fined in police court for attempting to hold a pacifist meeting last June all the more impressive. He found there had been no disorderly conduct, as charged, and ordered the fines remitted.

The University of Pittsburgh and the police, too, might well ignore the utterances of radicals, so long as they are not provocative of disorder. To arrest would-be agitators every time they attempt to speak simply advertises and makes martyrs of them. Besides, as Judge Musmanno says, such repression makes a mockery of our constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech.

Mayor Charles H. Kline was the recipient of many congratulations yesterday on the decision of Judge Thomas D. Finletter setting aside the verdict of the Butler County jury that had found the Mayor guilty of malfeasance. The congratulations might well have been postponed, however; for the Mayor is not yet "out of the woods." The Superior Court still has to pass upon the matter.

City Council is reported to have decided to accept the Duquesne Light Company's latest offer of a rate reduction, a reduction averaging between 10 and 20 cents a month for domestic consumers. If that means that the city has to pledge itself not to sue for a still lower rate, the wisdom of the decision is questionable. Fortunately, there is hope that the Public Service Commission will see that justice is done regardless of what Council may agree to.

Senator William S. Rial, chairman of the Senate committee that is to investigate the relations that existed between the public utilities and the Public Service Commission under the regime of the late chairman W. D. B. Ainey, announces that hearings probably will start a week from next Monday. The testimony adduced may have an important bearing on the justice of some of the utility rates that Pittsburghers are now paying.

*If it should be proved, as charged, that the presi*dent of the Equitable Gas Company paid an expensive hospital bill for a member of the Public Service Commission at a time when the city of Pittsburgh was suing the company for a lower gas rate, the action of the commission in ruling against the city and upholding the high rate could well be called into question as due to bribery and undue influence.

Will Pittsburgh's skyline change as much during the next 40 years as it did during the last? The Sunday Sun-Telegraph will present in the Gravure Section a photograph taken from Mt. Washington in the early nineties and another of the same scene taken a few days ago. The contrast is remarkable. A new portrait of Pope Pius XI is another worth while feature.

*The American Weekly, distributed as a supple*ment with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, publishes an article about some remarkable mural paintings and sculptures found by the Carnegie Institution in a ruined city of the ancient Mayas. The article is of particular interest to Pittsburgh because of the discovery of relics of the Mound Builders near the city this week.

"COME ONE, COME ALL, THIS ROCK SHALL FLY FROM IT'S FIRM BASE AS SOON AS I" G.O.P.
DEMOCRATIC VICTORY
ROCKED-RIBBED REPUBLICAN MAINE
Nelson Harding

Who would have dreamed that solid rock
Could be uprooted by a shock?
Who ever thought that coast would shake
And crumble as if from a quake?

And yet that granite now has flown
From "its firm base" and also thrown
The elephant that felt so sure
Its rock-ribbed stronghold was secure!

A Dastardly Act of Desperate Politicians

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Surely it is not necessary to interpret the sweeping Democratic victory in rock-ribbed Maine. Whatever they may say, the triumph has been a revelation even to the Democrats. They had hoped for a substantial reduction in the normal Republican majority, but their fondest hopes never have gone so far as a victory.

The Hoover "general staff," as Ogden Mills calls the higher dignitaries of the cabinet, hurried to Maine to hold the line; and Mr. Mills himself made a speech in Portland, pitifully inadequate as it was. But all to no avail. Maine has voted its opinion of the Hoover administration; and at this moment it appears that two Republican congressmen have lost their seats to Democrats.

It is as though Mississippi had gone Republican. Even Mr. Coolidge's plea in the Saturday Evening Post for the continuation of the regime of which he was a part has gone unheeded in Maine. The voters there read it and understood that the author, sharing so heavily in the responsibility for the crash, was merely making a plea in self defense.

This will be bad news for Wall street.

* * *

Police Chief Refutes Hurley

Mr. Hoover and his "general staff," of which Ogden Mills speaks so admiringly, insist on playing politics with human misery. Not only has it sought, through the Mitchell "report" on the veterans in Washington, to picture them as criminal and reds, but it appears, as we suspected, that the "report" is a campaign document having too little relation to the truth.

And here is proof enough for us.

The chief of police in Washington is Gen. Glassford. He owes his place to the federal government. He can be removed by pressure from the President. He commanded the admiration of the nation, and won the respect of the jobless veterans by the tact, the good sense, and the justice of his methods up until the time Hoover and Pat Hurley called in the army, the bayonets, the torches, and the tanks.

And having read Mitchell's campaign document, Glassford bluntly says:

"Attorney General Mitchell's report is at variance with the facts known to police."

He thereupon makes a formal reply which proves the trickery and deception of the administration's creed.

And that means, in other words, that the administration, having resorted to hysterical and extreme methods that have shocked the judicious, seeks to "frame" the veterans who fought for the republic.

* * *

Campaign of Vilification

We wonder just how long this campaign of vilification against decent, industrious men and women who want work and are denied, is to continue, and how far the blunderers will carry it.

The vilest thing that has been done in America for generations was done in Maine last week. There are jobless men there as everywhere. These men are jobless from no fault of their own. They want work, beg for work, demand the right to work. But there is no work. And since there is no work there is no wage received. And when no wage is received a man must starve or accept charity in some form.

For more than two years Mr. Hoover stubbornly refused to consider a program of public construction to furnish work; and refused his consent that a penny of federal money be used to feed the starving. He said that was the business of counties and municipalities—though this is a national calamity. The result is that of the 11,000,000 out of work great numbers have been forced to accept assistance from the local communities.

Now what happened in Maine?

* * *

Poor Jobless Refused Franchise

It is naturally assumed that not many of the jobless men and women are enamored of the Hoover administration. The fear in administration circles is that they will vote their resentment. This fear prevailed in Maine. And so the Hoover leaders in Maine put their heads together and conceived the brilliant notion of going to the courts and having all the jobless who had to accept bread from the local governments or starve pronounced "paupers," and refused the right to vote.

This hideous thing happened at Lewiston, Me., where the Republican-controlled Board of Registration removed almost 400 from the polling list—because they are out of work, unable to get jobs, and have been forced to accept assistance.

That comes as near to treason as anything we know.

In days like these it is an incitation to revolution.

It is enough to characterize the jobless veterans as "reds" and "criminals" and "bums" without a sweeping characterization of the jobless as "paupers" to be denied their American right to express their opinion at the polls on the administration that promised them a "chicken in every pot" and has put them beyond the pale of citizenship.

* * *

Stupidity of Arrogant Men

This, like the expulsion of veterans in Washington by bayonets and tanks, is worse than a crime—it is a blunder. In every age and country in days of dire distress stupid, arrogant men without imagination or sense have made such blunders. It is not the infamy of it so much as the stupidity that is appalling. We would suggest that no attempt be made nationally to adopt this method of disfranchisement—unless we want serious trouble in America.

There are 11,000,000 jobless in America today. They are not "bums," they are not "paupers" in the accepted meaning of the word, they are not "criminals" and they are not "reds." There may be some criminals among them—just as there are some criminals among the highly placed and the fortunate—but let them be dealt with as individuals. As Floyd Gibbons has said, even on the showing of Mitchell's campaign document against the jobless, there was a greater per cent of convicted criminals in the Cabinet of Mr. Harding in which Mr. Hoover sat than there was among the veterans in Washington.

* * *

Dangerous to Deprive Jobless of Vote

There are just as good and patriotic Americans among the 11,000,000 jobless who have been forced to accept assistance from municipalities and counties as can be found in the Cabinet in Washington. It is a dastardly and a dangerous thing to put these men beyond the pale of citizenship and brand them as "paupers."

But whenever it is done or attempted the fact will be given the utmost publicity; thus shall we learn what the American people think of such tactics—such brutality and stupidity.

Marry-Go-Round

Gamblers in Love

Ennui is that "all gone feeling" a girl has, when the wrong man calls up, and the right one doesn't.

* * *

"There may be one fool born every minute," says Reno Ruth, "but they get married two at a time."

* * *

A woman's life is spent in seeking love, a man's in trying to dodge it. But, if they would only consider that love is like your shadow (which flees when you pursue it, and follows when you flee) they would simply reverse their methods.

It may cause a man regret or remorse to drift into a foolish summer love-affair with the wrong woman; but the only thing that causes him downright repentance is not to be able to drift out of it without a struggle.

* * *

Of course, marriage is a lottery! If it were not, it would lose its one charm for men—its appeal to their gambling instinct.

* * *

"Natural beauty" went out of fashion when women got tired of depending on anything so uncertain and capricious as Nature for anything so staple and indispensable as Beauty.

* * *

"If you make a better mousetrap," says the week-end hostess, "the world may beat a path to your door; but if you make a better cocktail, it will wear out your porch-rugs."

Some day modern girls will learn that, in order to attract men, a woman must be like ice cream, sweet and cold; she loses half her charm the moment she melts and becomes goocy.

* * *

Most of a man's follies begin in recklessness—and end in rheumatism; most of a woman's begin in vanity and end in Reno.

The three greatest enemies to love are jealousy, onions and TIME.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Purely personal piffle: Somehow when I meet Ted Healy I want to wrestle. Few write so gracious a letter as Pierre Cartier. My Boston, for no reason, stretched out flat on the stone markers where Lindbergh landed at La Bourget, and where Jeanne d'Arc became a flaming torch at Rouen.

I never sleep a wink the night before starting on a journey. No person ever seemed so mysterious to me as Tex Rickard. The most accomplished newspaper reporter I know is Alfred Segal, of Cincinnati. I think there is an Ethiopian in the woodpile in that Virginia shooting.

Cities impress me in staccatto. For instance, San Francisco: Cable cars and a stiff climb. Chicago: Parmelee transfer and the blind fiddler with his fox terrier. New Orleans: The old absinthe house and wide Canal street. I daydream of jogging through Ireland in a donkey-drawn cart.

Negro spirituals often affect me more than profound sermons. I always expect girls named Daisy to be flippant. A stony-faced neighbor greets me with a quick pig-like grunt. I had a crossing cop tell him I was a professional gigolo and he believes it. A hat clerk recently talked me into a derby.

I don't like Pa and Ma as names for parents. Father and Mother strike me as better. I once went home from a business college and addressed my father as "Governor." But just that once. My wife cannot go to sleep unless the room is in order. I never pick up anything.

I love to hear Ramsay MacDonald say "wurruld." And I'd give a lot to talk Back Bay Boston naturally. My only affectation in speech is self-consciousness before Englishmen when I find myself putting on a little side. I now have a fountain pen that doesn't smear me to the arm pits.

* * *

The shyest man I ever met was Pierre Loti, the most enthusiastic, Harry Van Hoven, and the most fascinating, Michael Arlen. The most beautiful sight I ever saw was an orchid growing on the side of a palm tree on a lagoon's edge in Florida. And a full moon was in effulgence, too. Had I been a poet! The people who have belittled my writing efforts most have been among those with whom I was reared. The most hilarious simile I know, and unpublishable, was authored by an Ohio river wharf master.

* * *

Six people have given me cigarette lighters since I quit smoking. I could shoot in cold blood people who nudge me at plays. For eight years, I've had a weekly letter from an unknown women in Illinois who signs herself "Buddy," and seems to think I'm her son. I own but one painting of any value—a gift. I flip a coin in the air when worried and puff up like a poisoned pump when bitten by a mosquito.

* * *

My enthusiasm for poetry is slim. The reading I look forward to with greatest zest is a detective story in the train berth. But invariably I read a few pages, turn out the lights and gaze out the window. Books that open with a scene in a restaurant make me a customer, too. My wife and I carry on a sustained conversation, using only the first letter of each word.

* * *

Greenwich Village and around Washington Square at night are the loveliest sections of the city. I once caught a bare toe in a bicycle chain and it's still out of kilter. My favorite hot night dinner is: Pear and cream cheese salad, fried corn and a pineapple sherbet. O, yes, iced tea to drink.

* * *

Next to dog poisoners, my greatest contempt is for blackmailers. The breeziest people are advertising chiefs. There are several hundred schemes now hatched to shear the investment suckers when things get going full tilt again. You'll thank me for this advice a year from now—buy only government bonds for awhile.

* * *

My wife was many years stopping me saying "rich millionaire," but I still say "eye-talyan" and accent the "po" in policeman.

LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

"Life is so ugly," you cry. "Every day I hear of such terrible things! Crookedness and cruelty everywhere, and nothing being done to stop it. How can I go on; how can I believe in anything or hope for anything, when I face such conditions continually? Why is life like this?"

Why is life like this. I don't know, stranger. I have lived 49 years, but I still know nothing of life. I still cannot understand why such ugliness should be. And, like you, there are times when it seems unbearable; when I, too, want to quit. But I don't quit; for I have found a way to bear it, a way to help it.

I HAVE DISCOVERED A WONDERFUL SECRET. I HAVE DISCOVERED THAT BEAUTY CURES UGLINESS — THAT ORDER HEALS DISORDER—THAT SANITY IS A SHIELD AGAINST THE INSANITY OF LIFE.

Every morning I pick up my paper and read about my world. You know what I read—column after column of ugly facts. Little children murdered. Decent men and women disgraced. Millions of laborers wandering homeless and hungry. The rich and the powerful living in wanton luxury while the poor and the helpless starve.

Terrible news! Facts which prove that human beings are still incredibly cruel and stupid, after thousands of years of civilization.

Ghastly facts; but I must face them. I can't turn away from them, as many do. If I wish to be an honest writer, if I even wish to be a self-respecting citizen, I must know the truth about my world.

Yet, as I read, I grew sick, and for a long time such disgust and despair rose in me that my whole life became demoralized. And then I discovered that it was possible to face the ugliness in life and yet stay steady and serene. This is how I do it:

When I must read about an ugly condition, I do so to the bitter end. I force myself to face everything that I should face. I don't sentimentalize about it. I don't try to sweet-kids it away. I make myself realize the whole thing. But, even while I'm doing that, I ALSO FORCE MYSELF TO REMEMBER SOMETHING ELSE.

I MAKE MYSELF REMEMBER THE BEAUTIFUL THINGS WHICH MAN HAS DONE, AS WELL AS THE UGLY THINGS.

I REMEMBER THE GREAT ACTS OF COURAGE AND SELF-SACRIFICE, OF TENDERNESS AND HONOR AND CONTROLLED INTELLIGENCE WHICH RISE, LIKE SHINING PEAKS, ABOVE THE DARK JUNGLES OF HUMAN IGNORANCE AND BRUTALITY.

I REMEMBER THAT, IN MY OWN SELF, BEAUTY AND UGLINESS ARE MINGLED, COWARDICE AND COURAGE, CRUELTY AND KINDNESS.

And, as I remember these things, the darkness lifts and life seems cleaned and healed. I don't know why this is so. I don't know why the thought of beauty and goodness should have this power to heal the realization of ugliness and vice; but it has. Over and over I have proved it.

I prove it in the common conduct of my daily life as well as in my reading life. When I have to deal with vicious people; when I have to enter into disgusting and disorderly conditions or situations, I do the same thing. I think of beauty. I try to create beauty and order in the place where I find myself.

I do this literally, by sweeping and airing a room, by putting flowers in a vase and a clean cloth on the table—by bathing a tired little child and telling it a gentle, merry story.

Simple acts. Simple thoughts. Acts and thoughts which any man or woman may use under any circumstances; even under the most horrible circumstances.

YET THEY HAVE NEVER FAILED ME. NEVER YET HAVE I SEEN BEAUTY FAIL TO CONQUER UGLINESS, OR ORDER FAIL TO HEAL DISORDER.

How can you bear life? That's how I bear it. Try it and see.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

To say that if you please yourself first, many others will be pleased is not a truism.

But it is true that if you please yourself you are sure of at least one person being pleased—taking for granted that the afterclap does not change your mind as to what you really want.

It is only a selfish person who thinks of him or herself first in the matter of being pleased.

The wise person tries to figure out what is best for all concerned and is only pleased when events take that course.

Too many folk think only of themselves and their plans.

In so doing they work for what they suppose to be their own interests.

Very often they find that they have frustrated their own interests by not looking out for the other fellow.

The one who is known to desire his own way all the time makes enemies.

Even his best friends go back on him in thought if not in action.

Instead of warning him of what may result from his close adherence to this rule of pleasing himself first, very often they think best to let him take the consequence.

Only a blow squarely between the eyes wakes a selfish person.
